P R E F A C E.

THE mode of cookery which the author of the following sheets has pursued for a series of years having obtained the most distinguished approbation of the public, has induced him to commit his practice to paper; in doing which, a deviation has been made from the usual introductory methods of other treatises of the kind, in omitting to give particular directions for the choice of fish, meats, poultry, and vegetables, and at what times they respectively might be in season, &c. &c.

the author conceiving the simpler method to be the most acceptable; and, therefore, as actual knowledge must ever supersede written forms, he would advise a frequent attendance at the different markets, fully assured that experience will convey greater instruction in marketing than all the theories which could be advanced. There are, nevertheless, some useful observations interspersed in the course of the work for that purpose, the author having confined himself chiefly to the practical part of cookery; he has also given some directions in a branch of the confectionary business; in both of which it has been his constant endeavour that they might be rendered as simple and easy as possible, and that economy might pervade the whole.

The receipts are written for the least possible quantities in the different made dishes and sauces, it being a frequent error in most of the books that they are too expensive and too long ; by which means the art has been rendered intricate in the extreme, both in theory and practice.

Independant, also, of a close adherence to any given rules, there are other qualities essential to the completion of a thorough cook ; such as, an acute taste, a fertile invention, and a rigid attention to cleanliness.

The preceding hints and subsequent directions, it is hoped, will prove fully adequate to perfection in cookery ; the work being entirely divested of the many useless receipts from other professions, (which have been uniformly introduced in books of the like nature,) and nothing inserted but what has an immediate reference to the art itself.

There is prefixed a Bill of Fare for each month in the year, as a specimen of the seasons, which may be altered as judgment directs ; and an alphabetical Table of Contents, by which, from the first letter or word of the different articles, will be found their respective receipts.

February 14, 1807.

THE ART OF COOKERY.

BEEF STOCK (or Broth).

CUT chuck beef into pieces, put it into a pot, set it on the fire, with a sufficient quantity of water to cover it. When it boils skim it clean; add a bunch of parsley and thyme, cleaned carrots, leeks, onions, turnips, celery, and a little salt. Let the meat boil till tender, skim off the fat, then strain it through a fine hair sieve.

VEAL STOCK (or Broth for Soups).

Take a leg of veal and some lean ham, cut them into pieces, put them into a pan with a quart of water, some peeled carrots, turnips, onions, leeks, and celery; draw them down till nearly tender, but of no colour; then add a sufficient quantity of beef stock to cover the ingredients, boil all together one hour, skim it free from fat, and strain it. Some game drawn down with it will make it excellent.

N. B. I have directed the veal stock not to be drawn down to a colour, as in that state it will answer two purposes; first, for white soups; and, secondly, as it might be coloured with a bright liquid to any height, which will be directed for gravy soups. It frequently happens, likewise, that, if not strictly attended to, it will burn.

CONSUME, OR THE ESSENCE OF MEAT.

REDUCE veal stock to a good consistence, but be careful not to let it colour.

CULLIS, OR A THICK GRAVY,

Take slices of ham, veal, celery, carrots, turnips, onions, leeks, a small bunch of sweet herbs, some allspice, black pepper, mace, a piece of lemon-peel, and two bay leaves; put them into a pan with a quart of water, and draw them down till of a light brown colour, but be careful not to let it burn; then add to it a sufficient quantity of beef stock to cover it. When it boils, skim it very clean from fat, and thicken it with flour and water, or flour and butter passed. Let it boil gently three quarters of an hour; season it to the palate with cayenne pepper, lemon juice, and salt; strain it through a tamis cloth or sieve, and add a little liquid of colour, which may be made as in the following receipt.

LIQUID OF COLOUR FOR SAUCES, &c.

Put a quarter of a pound of the best brown sugar into a frying pan very clean from grease, and half a gill of water; set it over a gentle fire, stirring it with a wooden spoon till it is thoroughly burnt and of a good bright colour, then add half a pint of water; when it boils skim it and strain it. Put it by for use in a vessel close covered.

BENSHAMELLE.

Take white veal, lean ham, turnips, celery, onions cut in pieces, a blade of mace, a little whole white pepper; sweat them down till three parts tender, then add to it with beef stock. Let it boil, skim it clean, and thicken with flour and water, or flour and butter passed; add to it a sufficient quantity of cream to make it quite white. Let it simmer gently half an hour, and strain it through a tamis cloth.

N. B. Let it be of the thickness of light batter.

TO MAKE A PASSING OF FLOUR AND BUTTER FOR CULLIS OR BENSHAMELLE.

Put fresh butter into a stewpan over a fire, when it is melted add a sufficient quantity of sifted flour to make it into a paste, and mix them together with a whisk over a very slow fire for ten minutes.

SOUP A LA REINE.

Take three quarts of veal stock with a blade of mace boiled in it; then strain it to the crumb of four penny french rolls, three quarters of a pound of sweet almonds blanched and pounded very fine, likewise the white meat of dressed fowl pounded. Let all simmer together for ten minutes, and rub them through a tamis cloth till the soup is of a proper thickness; season it to the palate with salt; make it boil, and serve it up with a gill of cream in it.

CRAYFISH SOUP.

Take three quarters of veal stock, the crumb of four penny french rolls, the meats of a hen lobster, and half a hundred crayfish pounded, with some live lobster spawn; add all together, make it boil, skim it clean, rub it through a tamis cloth, make it of a middling thickness, and season to the palate with salt and a little cayenne pepper. Serve it up with crust of french bread cut into small round pieces.

VERMICELLI SOUP, (white.)

Take three quarts of veal stock and two ounces of vermicelli, boil them together a quarter of an hour, rub it through a tamis cloth, season with salt, make it boil, skim it, and add a leason. Let it simmer for five minutes.

TO MAKE THE LEASON.

Take the yolk of four eggs, half a pint of cream, and a little salt, mixed well together.

CLEARED BROWN STOCK (or Broth for Gravy Soups.)

Take three quarts of veal stock perfectly free from fat; add a small quantity of liquid colour to make it of a fine brown; season it to the palate with salt and a little cayenne pepper; beat up together two yolks, two whites, and two shells of eggs; whisk them with the stock, set it over a fire, let it boil gently ten minutes, then strain it through a tamis cloth. This stock is required for rice, brown vermicelli, celery, santé, or turnip soups.

N. B. I have directed the brown stock, for gravy soups only, to be cleared with eggs, as that method has been most approved, it being pleasant to the eye, and equally agreeable to the palate.

RICE SOUP.

Add to three quarts of cleared stock two ounces of rice, washed, picked, parboiled, and drained dry. Let it boil gently till the rice is tender.

RICE SOUP (white).

Wash and pick two ounces of rice, boil it in a pint of milk; when it has nearly absorbed the milk, add three quarts of veal broth; season with salt to the palate. Let the rice boil till tender; five minutes before it is to be served up add a leason of four yolks of eggs and have a pint of cream; have ready a knuckle of veal, which has been boiled gently till tender in a quart of water. Strain the liquor from it, skim it free from fat, put the veal and liquor to the soup, and serve it up.

N. B. Instead of knuckle of veal, two cleaned calves feet may be boiled till tender; afterwards take the bones out, and add the liquor and feet to the soup: or, a fowl may be cut into quarters, done in the same manner as the veal, and added to the soup.

MACRONI AND PARMESAN CHEESE SOUP.

Take a quarter of a pound of riband macroni, boil it till tender in a quart of veal broth, then add three ounces of grated parmesan cheese, a small quantity of pounded mace, five pints more veal broth; boil all together five minutes, and rub it through a tamis cloth; then boil it again for ten minutes, skim it, season it with salt and cayenne pepper to the palate, add a leason of four yolks of eggs and cream.

OYSTER SOUP.

Take a quart of large oysters, blanch them with a pint of water: let half of them be bearded and preserved, to be served up in the soup; the others to be boiled till the goodness is extracted; which strain through a sieve, and to the liquor add five pints of boiling veal broth, a small quantity of pounded mace, the crumb of two penny french rolls; then rub through a tamis cloth, make it boil, and skim it, add the bearded oysters; let them simmer ten minutes; then whisk with the soup the yolks of four eggs and a pint of cream, a little salt and cayenne pepper.

CELERY SOUP.

Cut celery heads two inches long, then some of the white part into small pieces; wash, blanch, and drain it, and put to it three quarts of cleared stock. Make it boil, skim it, and let the celery simmer till tender.

TURNIP SOUP.

Pare good and firm turnips, cut them with a knife or scoop into shapes, fry them with a bit of lard till of a light brown colour, then drain and wipe them free from fat (or they may be steamed with a very little water, to prevent them from burning, till they are half done); then put to them cleared stock, and boil them gently till tender.

CRESSEY SOUP.

Take twelve large red carrots, scrape them clean, cut off only the red part in thin slices, and put them into a stewpan with a quart of water;

add cleaned turnips, celery, leeks, and onions, cut in pieces, and half a pint of split peas. Stew all together till tender, adding some stock to prevent burning; then rub it through a tamis, and put to the pulp five pints of veal stock, and some blanched water-cresses; make it boil for twenty minutes, skim it, season it with salt, and serve it up.

N. B. To be the thickness of pease soup.

SANTE, OR SPRING SOUP.

Pare, and cut into shapes, turnips and carrots, likewise celery heads about two inches long; wash them, and steam them separately with a very little water till they are three parts done; then cut the white parts of the celery into small pieces, likewise leeks, cabbage, cos lettuces, endive, and chervil, of each a small quantity; blanch and drain them dry, then put all the vegetables together; add to them three quarts of cleared brown stock, and boil them gently till tender. In spring add young green peas, tops of asparagus, and button onions, steamed as the above.

N. B. A small piece of bouillie beef may be stewed till tender; and ten minutes before it is to be served up wipe it dry, and put into the soup with the vegetables.

ONION SOUP.

Take eight middling-sized peeled onions, cut them into very thin slices, pass them with a quarter of a pound of fresh butter and flour till tender; then add three quarts of veal stock; make it boil twenty minutes; skim it, season it with salt, and add a leason; mix it well with a whisk, make it simmer, and serve it up.

GREEN PEAS SOUP.

Take one quart of young green peas, four turnips pared and cut in the form of dice, two cos lettuces cut in small slices, two middling-sized onions cut very fine; wash them, add a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, and stew them till nearly done. Then take two quarts of large fresh green peas, and boil them in three quarts of veal stock till tender; strain and pound them, preserving the liquor; then rub the peas through a tamis, and add the pulp with the liquor to the above herbs, a little flour and water, pepper and salt, and season to the palate, with a bit of sugar if approved. Boil all together half an hour; skim it, and when it is to be served up, add the pulp of some boiled parsley rubbed through a tamis to make it look green. Cut pieces of bread into thin sippets, dry them before the fire, and serve up on a plate.

N. B. Meagre green peas soup may be done in the same manner, omitting the veal broth, and as a substitute add three quarts of water.

OLD PEAS SOUP.

Take chuck beef cut into pieces, knuckles of ham and veal, pickle pork cut into square pieces of half a pound each; put all into a pot with peeled turnips, leeks, onions, carrots, and celery, cut into slices, and some old split peas, with a sufficient quantity of water; when it boils, skim it, and add a very small bunch of dried mint. Let the ingredients boil till tender, then take the mint out, rub the soup through a tamis till of a good thickness; when done, add to the liquor, turnips cut in the form of dice, celery and leeks cut small and washed. Make the soup boil, skim it, season with pepper and salt, and serve it up with the pork in it. Some bread cut in the form of dice, and fried, to be served up on a dish.

N. B. The pork to be taken out when nearly done, and added to the soup half an hour before it is served up.

PEAS SOUP (another way).

Put the peas with the above-mentioned vegetables into a pot with some warm water; stew them gently till tender, then add a little dried mint, and rub them through a tamis cloth; put the pulp to some good veal stock, likewise add some turnips pared and cut into forms like dice, some leeks and celery cut small and blanched; season to the palate with pepper and salt; then making it boil, skim it, and stew the herbs till tender. Serve it up with pieces of pickle pork in it.

N. B. The pickle pork to be cut into small square pieces and boiled till nearly done, and then added to the soup a quarter of an hour before it is to be served up to table. Let the soup be of a proper thickness.

GIBLET SOUP.

Take three sets of goose giblets, cleaned, cut into pieces, and blanched, add to them a small quantity of knotted marjoram, savory, thymes, basil, and parsley chopt fine; likewise four large onions, peeled and chopt, with eight eschallots, a little beaten spices, pepper and salt, and two quarts of water; when the giblets are three parts done, pick them from the herbs, and chop the bones down; put the giblets into a pot with boiled eggs and forcemeat balls; strain the liquor, let it settle, have ready three ounces of fresh butter and flour passed over a fire for five minutes, then add to it half a pint of madeira or sherry wine, the liquor of the giblets, free from sediment, juice of lemon, cayenne pepper, and salt to the palate, and two quarts of good beef broth; make it boil, add to the giblets; let them stew gently till tender, and skim clean from fat.

FISH MEAGRE SOUP.

Take pieces of different sorts of fish, such as salmon, skate, soles, &c. sweat them till tender, with turnip, onion, celery, a clove of garlick, and a blade of mace; then add some plain veal broth. Let all simmer together for half an hour; then strain and skim it free from fat; season with salt and cayenne pepper; clear it with white of eggs, and colour with a little saffron.

N. B. It may be served up with celery or rice in it.

MOCK TURTLE OF CALF'S HEAD.

Take a scalp cleaned by the butcher, scald it for twenty minutes, then wash it clean, cut in into pieces two inches square, add a gallon of veal stock, and boil them till nearly done. Have ready some pieces of veal cut in form of dice, but four times larger, seasoned with herbs, spices, and onions, the same as gilet soup, and strain to it the liquor the scalp is boiled in. Let the meat simmer till almost done; pick it, and add to it the scalp with forcemeat and egg balls; then thicken the liquor as for gilet soup, and when it boils skim it clean, put it to the meats, and simmer all together half an hour.

MUTTON BROTH.

Take a neck of mutton cut into pieces, preserving a handsome piece to be served up in the tureen. Put all in a stewpot with three quarts of cold beef stock, or water with a little oatmeal mixed in it, some turnips, onions, leeks, celery cut in pièces, and a small bunch of thyme and parsley. When it boils skim it clean, and take the piece of mutton out when nearly done, and let the other boil till tender; then have ready turnips cut in form of dice, some leeks, celery, half a cabbage, and parsley, all cut small, and some marigolds; wash them, strain the liquor of the meat, skin it free from fat, add it to the ingredients, with the piece of mutton, and a little pearl barley if approved; season with salt, simmer all together till done, and serve it up with toasted bread on a plate.

PARTRIDGE SOUP.

Cut to pieces two or three picked and drawn partridges or pheasants, an old fowl, a knuckle of veal; some lean ham, celery, onions, turnips, a carrot, and a blade of mace. Put them in a stewpot with half a pint of water, set them over a fire close covered, and steam them till three parts done. Then add three quarts of beef stock, simmer till the ingredients are tender, strain the liquor through a fine sieve, and when cold take the fat clean off, add a little liquid of colour, a small quantity of salt and cayenne pepper, whisk with it two eggs and their shells, clear it over a good fire, and strain it through a tamis cloth; then cut half a middling-sized white cabbage into small slices, scald it, add to the soup, and boil it gently till tender.

N. B. One of the partridges to be preserved and served up in the soup.

REAL TURTLE.

Hang the turtle up by the hind fins, and cut off the head overnight; in the morning cut off the fore fins at the joints, and the callipee all round; then take out the entrails, and be careful not to break the gall; after which cut off the hind fins and all the meat from the bones, callipee and callipash; then chop the callipee and callipash into pieces; scald them together, the fins being whole, but take care not to let the scales set. When cleaned, chop the fins into pieces four inches long; wash the pieces of the callipee, callipash, and fins, and put them into a pot with the bones and a sufficient quantity of water to cover; then add a bunch of sweet herbs and whole onions, and skim it when the liquor boils. When the fins are nearly done take them out, together with the remainder of the turtle, when done, picked free from bone. Then strain the liquor and boil it down till reduced to one third part; after which cut the meat into pieces four times larger than dice; put it into a pot, add a mixture of herbs chopped fine, such as knotted marjoram, savory, thyme, parsley, a very little basil, some chopped onions, some beaten spices, as allspice, a few cloves, a little mace, black pepper, salt, some veal stock, and the liquor that was reduced. Boil the meat till three parts done, pick it free from herbs, strain the liquor through a tamis sieve, make a passing of flour and three quarters of a pound of fresh butter, mixing it well over a fire for some time, and then add to it madeira wine, (if a turtle of seventy pounds weight, three pints) and the liquor of the meat. When it boils, skim it clean, season to the palate with cayenne pepper, lemon juice, and salt, and strain it to the pieces of fins and shell in one pot, and the lean meat into another ; and if the turtle produce any real green fat, let it be boiled till done, then strained, cut in pieces, and added to the fins and shell, and then simmer each meat till tender. When it is to be served up, put a little fat at the bottom of the tureens, some lean in the centre, and more fat at the top, with egg and forcemeat balls, and a few entrails.

N. B. The entrails must be cleaned well, then boiled in water till very tender, and preserved as white as possible, and just before they are strained off add the balls. If a callipash is served up, the shell to be cut down on each side, and chop the pieces for the soup ; the remaining part of the back shell to be pasted round with a raised crust, egged, ornamented, and baked, and the soup served in it in the same manner as in the tureens.

CALLIPEE.

Take a quarter of the under part of a turtle of sixty pounds weight, and scald it, and when done, take the shoulder-bone out and fill the cavity with a good high-seasoned forcemeat made with the lean of the turtle ; put it into a stewpan, and add a pint of madeira wine, cayenne pepper, salt, lemon juice, a clove of garlick, a little máce, a few cloves and allspice tied in a bag, a bunch of sweet herbs, some whole onions, and three quarts of good beef stock. Stew gently till three parts done ; then take the turtle and put it into another stewpan, with some of the entrails boiled and some egg balls ; add a little thickening of flour and butter to the liquor, let it boil, and strain it to the turtle ; &c. then stew it till tender, and the liquor almost reduced to a glaize. Serve it up in a deep dish, pasted round as a callipash, ornamented and baked.

N. B. I think the above mode of serving it up in a dish the best, as it frequently happens the shell of the callipee is not properly baked.

GLAIZE FOR HAMS, LARDING, ROASTED POULTRY, &c.

Take a leg of veal, lean of ham, beef, some indifferent fowls, celery, turnips, carrots, onions, leeks cleaned and cut into pieces, a little lemon peel, mace, and black pepper, a small quantity of each, three quarts of water, sweat them down till three parts done ; then add a sufficient quantity of water to cover the meat, and boil it till the goodness is extracted ; skim it, and strain the liquor into a large pan. Next day take the fat from it very clean ; set the stock over a fire, and when warm clear it with whites and a few yolks of eggs ; then add a little colour and strain it through a tamis ; boil it quick till reduced to a glaize, and be careful not to let it burn.

N. B. In the same manner may be made glaize of separate herbs or roots, which will be serviceable on board a ship, or in the country, where herbs or roots cannot be procured at all times; and they are to be preserved in bottles, as they will not, when cold, be of a portable substance.

FISH PLAIN BOILED TO BE PREPARED THUS :

Put them in clean boiling pump water well salted, and when served up to be garnished with fresh picked parsley and scraped horseradish; except salt fish, which should be properly soaked, then cut in pieces and put in cold water, and when it boils let it simmer six or eight minutes, and serve it up on a napkin with boiled parsnips and potatoes round, or on a plate, and egg sauce in a boat.

N. B. Fish should be chosen very fresh and of good appearance, it adding as much to their beauty as gratifying to the palate when dressed, there being in my opinion but two sorts—good and bad. But as an exception to the above observation, skate will be better for eating if kept for one or two days in a cool place before it is dressed.

FISH GENERALLY TRIED.

Pieces of skate.	Perch.
Whitings.	Flounders.
Fillets of haddocks.	Slices of hollibut.
Smelts.	Slices of cod.
Soles.

TO PREPARE THE ABOVE FOR FRYING, &c,

Wipe the different sorts of fish dry, beat yolk of eggs, and spread it over them with a paste brush; then put crumbs of bread over the egg. Have plenty of lard in an iron frying pan, and when it almost boils put a proper quantity and fry them of a fine gold colour; drain them dry, and serve them up with fried parsley and scraped horseradish.

N. B. The crumbs to be rubbed through a hair sieve. The parsley also to be picked, washed, and dried with a cloth, then to be put into the lard not very hot, and fried of a green colour. Drain it dry, and sprinkle a little salt over.

BROILED FISH PREPARED THUS :

Wipe the fish dry, flour them well, and have the gridiron clean; then rub the bars with a veal caul, and put the fish at a proper distance. Broil them gently over a clear coal fire till of a fine colour, and serve them up directly.

N. B. Fish in general to be floured, except herrings, which are only to be scored with a knife, and the following methods of broiling other fish to be observed.

BROILED SALMON TO BE PREPARED THUS :

Take pieces or slices of salmon, wipe them dry, dip them in sweet oil, and season with pepper and salt; fold them in pieces of writing paper, broil over a clear fire, and serve them up very hot.

N. B. In the same manner are to be done red mullets, &c.

BROILED MACKAREL, COMMON WAY.

Wipe them dry, split them down the back, sprinkle with pepper and salt, and broil them gently.

TO STEW FISH.

Add to some cullis a few chopped eschallots, anchovies, a bay leaf, horseradish scraped, a little quantity of lemon peel, and some red port; season it well with cayenne pepper, salt, and juice of lemon, and when it boils let it be of a proper thickness, and strain it to the fish; then stew it gently, and serve it up in a deep dish with the liquor, and fried bread round it. If carp or tench, some of the hard roe mixed in batter and fried in pieces. The roes likewise of different fish may be stewed in the same manner, and served up as a dish of themselves. Eels, soles, or other fish may be done the same way.

BAIGNETS OF FISH.

Make a light forcemeat with fish of any kind. Afterwards put a small quantity into pieces of puff paste, the size of a common puff; then fry them in boiling lard, drain them dry. Serve them up with truffle, or benshamellé sauce round them.

N. B. Meat, &c. may be done the same way.

WATER SOUCHEE OF PERCH, FLOUNDERS, SOLES, EELS, &c.

Take perch cleaned and fresh crimped; put them into boiling pump water well seasoned with salt, and when they boil, skim them clean. Take them out with a large skimmer, put them into a deep dish, strew parsley roots and scalded parsley over, and add some of the liquor. Serve them up as hot as possible, with slices of brown bread and butter on a plate.

N. B. The time the fish are to boil must be according to their size; and the parsley roots are to be cleaned, cut into slips, and boiled by themselves till tender.

ROASTED PIKE OR STURGEON.

Let the fish be well cleaned, then make a stuffing of capers, anchovies, parsley and thyme chopped fine, a little grated nutmeg and lemon peel, pepper, salt, breadcrumbs, fresh butter, and an egg. Fill the fish and sew it up; turn it round, and fasten the head with the tail; then egg the fish over and breadcrumb it; after which bake or roast it gently till done, and of a good brown colour. Serve it up with a sauce over, made of cullis, fresh butter, cayenne, anchovie essence and lemon pickle.

BACQUILLIO WITH HERBS.

Let the fish be well soaked; then boil them and pick free from bone. Wash and chop small some spinach, sorrel, green onions, and parsley; after which add fresh butter, essence of anchovies, cayenne pepper, and plenty of the juice of seville oranges. Sweat the herbs down, add the fish, and simmer them till tender.

ENTREE OF CRIMP'D COD.

Take a slice of crimp'd cod, cut three inches thick; put it into boiling salt and water, let it boil ten minutes, then pick it into flakes; when they are cool, have ready a batter made with flour, sweet oil, a table spoonful of white wine, and a little salt; make some lard boiling hot, dip each flake into the batter, and fry them of a nice colour; drain them dry, serve them up with fried parsley, round, and oyster sauce in a butter-boat.

ENTREE OF HERRINGS.

Take eight fresh herrings, wipe them dry, score them with a knife; have ready a mixture of parsley and eschallots chopt very fine, a table spoonful of sweet oil, and a little salt; dip the fish in the mixture separately, afterwards roll them in fine bread-crumbs; broil them over a clear fire, when done serve them up very hot; the sauce to be served in a butter-boat, made with melted butter, mustard, ketchup, and a little vinegar.

DRYED SALMON WITH PORCHED EGGS.

Take four thin slices of salmon, soak them in milk three hours, then wipe them dry, broil them over a clear fire; when done serve them up on fried or toasted bread, and eight porched eggs over the salmon, and a sauce made with a little essence of veal, cream, and yolk of eggs, to be put round the toasts.

ENTREE OF FISH IN A MOULD.

Wipe a tin mould clean, then rub the inside with fresh butter; strew over the bottom grated parmezan cheese an inch thick, and put a layer of boiled ribband macroni, of the same thickness, and upon that some fish of any kind, boned, cut into pieces, and strewed with herbs, such as parsley, thyme and eschallots chopt very fine, and a little beaten spices and cayenne pepper, then a layer of macroni and parmezan cheese. Put the fish into a moderate oven, bake it one hour, then turn it carefully out of the mould into a dish, and serve it up with a little good strong cullis round it. ✓

TO PICKLE SMELTS.

Lay four dozen smelts in rows in a jar, then make a pickle of half a pint red port, a lemon cut in slices, pint best vinegar, a small quantity of pounded ginger, nutmeg, mace, pepper, salt, cochineal, saltpetre, sugar, and a bay leaf. Boil the ingredients together, skim clean, and put it to the smelts; pour over it when cold a little sweet oil; tie the jar down close with some bladder and leather; set it in a cool place.

ENTREE OF EELS.

Take good-sized eels, bone and cut them in pieces of three inches long; pass them over a slow fire in a small quantity of sweet herbs and eschalots, fresh butter, pepper, salt, and lemon juice. When three parts done put all on a dish, dip each piece in the liquor, breadcrumb, and broil them over a clear fire. Serve them up with anchovie sauce in a boat.

ENTREE OF EELS (another way).

Take two large eels, bone and lay them flat, put upon each some light forcemeat well seasoned, roll them up separately, bind them round with tape, put them into a stewpan with a gill Madeira wine, one clove, garlick, half a bay leaf, four peeled eschallots, a little thyme, and a pint veal broth. Let them stew till done, then strain the liquor, skim it free from fat, season to the palate, thicken with flour and water, reduce it to half a pint; put the eels into a deep dish, glaize the tops, and serve them up with the sauce under, and sippets fried bread round the dish.

ENTREE OF SOLES (en metelote).

Let good-sized soles be cleaned and filleted; roll them up, put them into a stewpan, add a little fresh butter, lemon juice, pepper, and salt, and simmer them over a slow fire till done. Serve them up with a sauce over, made of button onions, mushrooms, egg balls, pickle cucumbers scooped round, slices of sweetbreads, and good strong culis coloured with lobster spawn.

N. B. The above fillets may be fried, and served up with the sauce round.

ENTREE OF FILLETS OF SOLES WITH LOBSTER, &c.

Wipe half the quantity of fillets dry, roll them up and tie round with thread, then egg and breadcrumb, fry them of a nice colour; have ready the other part rolled up likewise, and boil them in salt and water. When they are done, put the boiled and fried alternately into a dish, and serve up with lobster or Dutch sauce under.

N. B. The meat of the lobster to be pounded and rubbed through a sieve, the pulp added instead of pieces, and made in the same manner as lobster sauce.

ENTREE OF WHITINGS, &c.

Take fillets of haddocks or whittings, wet them with whites of eggs, and lay upon them slices of salmon, seasoned with pepper and salt. Put them into a stewpan with a little fresh butter; stew the fish over a slow fire till done, with the pan close covered. Serve them up with a sauce over, made with chopped parsley, chopped mushrooms and eschallots, a little rhenish wine, mustard, and cullis, mixed and boiled together for ten minutes.

ENTREE OF SALMON.

Make white paper cases, and put a little sweet oil at the bottom of each. Cut into pieces some fresh salmon, pepper and salt them, and put them into the cases; then set them over a fire on a baking plate and in a stewpan covered over, with a fire at top and bottom. When broiled enough, serve them up with poached eggs on the top of the salmon, and anchovie sauce in a boat.

ENTREE OF FRESH SALMON AND CAPERS.

Cut four thin slices fresh salmon; have ready a mixture of parsley, thyme, basil and eschallots, a small quantity of each chopped very fine, and a little sweet oil, and yolks of two eggs, cayenne pepper and salt; dip the slices of fish into it separately, afterwards strew them with fine bread-crumbs; put them into boiling lard, fry them of a good colour, drain them dry, serve them up with a sauce round them made with cullis and some capers chopped.

ENTREE OF SMELTS, &c.

Clean, turn round, and fry of a good colour, some fresh smelts; then three parts boil a slice of fresh crimped cod cut two inches thick; pull it into flakes, have ready some benshamelle, whisk it with the yolks of two eggs, add the flakes of the cod, season with salt and lemon juice to the palate, and simmer the fish over a slow stove till done.

Serve it up with the fried smelts round the dish, and a few over the stew.

OLIVES OF SOLES.

Fillet two large soles, wipe them dry, then wash the inside of each over with white of egg, lay a little light forcemeat, made with some of the fish, instead of meat; roll them up and run a small wooden skewer through, afterwards dip each separately in a batter made with two ounces sifted flour, salt and sweet oil, a small quantity of each, a table spoon white wine, and two eggs, the batter to be well beaten; have ready some boiling lard, fry the fillets of a brown colour, drain them dry. Serve them up with some good benshamelle sauce under.

SLICES OF COD FRIED WITH OYSTERS,

Egg, breadcrumb, and fry in boiling lard, some slices of crimped cod; when done, drain them dry, serve them up with oyster sauce in the center, made in the same manner as for beef steaks.

ENTREE OF SCAITE.

Boil four or five rings of best crimped scaite in strong salt and water gently for ten minutes; drain it very dry and put it upon a dish; have ready a sauce made with a little scalded parsley, chopped fine, some liver of the scaite boiled and rubbed through a sieve, a little mustard and melted butter, a gill of veal broth, a gill of cream, and the yolks of four eggs whisked together over a fire till it nearly boils. Serve it over the fish.

ENTREE OF FISH IN BALLS.

Bone a haddock, or any kind of fish, then pound the meat in a mortar, add to it a small quantity of parsley, thyme, basil and eschallots, chopped very fine, a little beaten spices, one table spoonful of white wine, cayenne pepper and salt, some bread-crumbs, half a gill of cream, the yolks of four eggs; likewise two whites of eggs beat to a solid froth; mix all well together, and roll it into balls the size of a small walnut, put them into boiling water, simmer them a quarter of an hour, drain them dry, and serve them up with a little strong cullis sauce over.

N. B. In the same manner may be done fowls or meat.

ENTREE OF TUREOT BAKED.

Take a middling sized turbot, well cleaned; fill the cavity near the head with some light force-meat well seasoned, then wash the best side over with white of egg, and strew fine breadcrumbs upon it; bake it gently till of a brown colour. Serve it up with a sauce under it, made with a gill of cullis, half a table spoonful anchovie essence, half a gill of Madeira wine, three ounces of fresh butter, and the juice of a lemon, mixed well together over a fire.

N. B. Turbots may be done and served up in the same manner, with a Dutch sauce, or with lobster or shrimp sauce, not made too thick, and a leason of two yolks of eggs, and half a gill of cream added five minutes before it is to be sent to table.

ENTREE OF SLICES OF STURGEON.

Cut the slices very thin, put them into a stew-pan over a fire, with parsley, thyme, and eschallots chopped very fine, two ounces fresh butter, grated nutmeg, pepper, salt, and a little lemon juice; when three parts done lay them upon a dish, and when cool put each slice between some light forcemeat, which egg and strew over with fine bread-crumbs. Fry them gently in boiling lard till the forcemeat and fish are done; then drain dry and serve up with sauce under, made with strong cul-lis, a small quantity of Madeira wine, and some capers chopped.

ENTREE OF MACKAREL.

Split them down the back, season with pepper and salt, and lay a sprig of fennel in them. Broil them gently, and when to be served up, the fennel to be taken out, and a mixture of fresh butter, chopped parsley, green onions, pepper, salt, and plenty of lemon juice, to be put in its stead.

MACKAREL THE GERMAN WAY.

Split them down the back and season with pepper and salt; broil them, and serve them up with the following sauce in a boat:—pick and wash fennel, parsley, mint, thyme, and green onions, a small quantity of each. Boil them tender in a little veal broth; then chop and add to them some fresh butter, the liquor, grated nutmeg, the juice of half a lemon, a little cayenne pepper and salt. Let it boil, and make it of a proper thickness with flour and water.

Entrée of FILLETS of MACKAREL.

Take two fine mackarel, cut them down the back and take out the bones; fill the cavity with a mixture made with two ounces fresh butter, some scalded fennel, and raw parsley and eschalots, or green onions, chopped very fine, the juice of lemon, pepper and salt; then make a case with two sheets of large writing paper doubled, rub a little sweet oil over the inside, put the mackarel into it, set the case on a baking plate over a moderate fire, put a stew-pot, cover over the fish with some fire upon it. When the mackarel are done, serve them up with a little boiling imperial sauce over.

OLIOS, or a Spanish Dish.

The articles that are wanted consist of the following:

- Leg of mutton of ten pounds.
- Leg of veal ditto.
- Chuck beef ditto.
- Lean ham six pounds.
- Best end of a neck of mutton.
- Breast of veal, small.
- Two pieces of bouillie beef of one pound each.
- Two pair of pigs feet and ears.
- A bologna sausage.
- A fowl.
- A pheasant.
- Two partridges.
- Two ruffs and rees.
- Two quails.

Two teal.
 Two pigeons.
 Two rabbits.
 One hare.
 Two stags tongues.
 One quart of burgonza peas.
 Turnips.
 Carrots.
 Celery.
 Onions.
 Leeks.
 Parsley.
 Thyme.
 Garlick.
 Allspice.
 Cloves.
 Mace.
 Nutmegs:
 Black pepper.
 Haricot roots.
 Fried bread.
 Eggs.
 Saffron, and Lemons.

The OLIO to be made as follows :

Take the beef, veal, mutton, and ham ; cut them into pieces, put them into a pot, cover with water, and when it boils skim clean ; then add carrots, celery, turnips, onions, leeks, garlick, parsley and thyme, tied in a bunch ; allspice, cloves, nutmeg, black pepper, mace, and a little ginger, put in a cloth. Boil all together till it becomes strong stock, and strain it. Then cut the bread f veal into tendrons, and best end of neck of mutton into steaks, and half fry them; pigs feet and ears cleaned; hare cut into joints and daubed with bacon; bouillie beef tied round with packthread; poultry trussed very neat, with the legs drawn in close; the tongues scalded and cleaned; and the rabbits cut into pieces. When the different articles are ready, blanch and wash them, then braise each in a separate stew-pan, with the stock that was strained. When the different things are braised enough, pour the liquors from them into a pan, leaving a little with each to preserve from burning. When they are to be served up, skim the liquor very clean, and clear it with whites of eggs; then cut turnips and carrots into haricots, some button onions peeled, and heads of celery trimmed neat; after which blanch them, cut the bologna sausage into slices, boil the burgonza peas till three parts done, then mix all together, add some of the cleared liquor, and stew them gently till done. The remainder of the liquor to be coloured with a little saffron, and served up in a tureen with a few burgonza peas in it.

When the olio is to be served up, take a very large deep dish, make several partitions in it with slips of fried bread dipped in whites of eggs, and set it in a slow oven or before a fire; then lay the tendrons, birds, beef, mutton, fowls &c. alternately in the partitions, and serve up with the haricot roots, &c. over.

N. B. The whole of the liquor to be seasoned to the palate with cayenne pepper and lemon juice.

[This receipt for a Spanish olio is only written to shew how expensive a dish may be made, and which I saw done. As a substitute I have introduced the following English one, which has been generally approved; and I think with particular attention, it will exceed the former in flavour.]

HODGE PODGE, (or English Olio.)

Take four beef tails cut into joints, bouillie beef two pieces about a quarter of a pound each, and two pieces of pickle pork of the same weight. Put them into a pot, cover with water, and when it boils skim clean, and add half a savoy, two ounces of champignons, some turnips, carrots, onions, leeks, celery, one bay leaf, whole black pepper, a few allspice, and a small quantity of mace. When the meats are nearly done, add two quarts of strong veal stock, and when tender take them out, put them into a deep dish, and preserve them hot till they are to be served up; then strain the liquor, skim it free from fat, season to the palate with cayenne pepper, a little salt, and lemon juice, and add a small quantity of colour; then have ready turnips and carrots cut into haricots, some celery heads trimmed three inches long, and some whole onions peeled. Let them be sweated down, till three parts tender, in separate stewpans, and strain the essences of them to the above liquor; clear it with whites of eggs, strain it through a tannis cloth, mix the vegetables; add the liquor to them, boil them gently for ten minutes, and serve them over the meats. (A partridge or a chicken may be added with the beef tails, pork, &c. if approved.)

LIGHT FORCEMEAT FOR PIES OR FOWLS, &c.

Cut in pieces lean veal, ham, and fat bacon; add chopped parsley, thyme, eschallots, a little beaten spices, juice of lemon, pepper and salt, a few cleaned mushrooms, or mushroom powder. Put over a slow fire till three parts done; then pound in a marble mortar till very fine, and add a sufficient quantity of yolk of raw eggs and breadcrumbs to bind it.

FORCEMEAT BALLS FOR RAGOUTS, &c.

Cut lean veal and beef suet into small pieces, and add chopped parsley, thyme, marjoram, savory, eschallots, pepper, salt, breadcrumbs, a little grated nutmeg, and yolk of raw eggs. Pound all well together, and roll into balls.

N. B. The balls should be boiled or fried before they are added to any thing.

EGG FOR BALLS.

Boil six eggs, take the yolks, pound them, and add a little flour and salt, and the yolks of two raw eggs. Mix all well together, and roll into balls. They must be boiled before added to any made dish or soup.

OMLETS OF EGGS FOR GARNISHING OR CUTTING IN SLIPS.

Take eggs, break them, and put the yolks and whites into separate pans; beat them up with a little salt, and then put them again into separate earthen vessels rubbed with sweet oil. Have ready a pot of boiling water over a fire, put them in close covered, and let the omlets steam till thoroughly done.

RAGOUT OF OYSTERS, &c.

Blanch two dozen large oysters, preserve the liquor, then wash and beard the oysters, put them into a stewpan, add to them some stew'd mushrooms, a throat sweetbread blanched and cut into thin slices. Make a sauce with the liquor strained from the sediment, a gill essence of veal, ketchup, lemon pickle, cayenne pepper and salt, thicken with flour and butter, add a little colour, and strain to the oysters and sweetbreads; stew them gently ten minutes, and serve them up with fried bread round the dish.

OX CHEEK.

Bone and wash clean the cheek; then tie it up like a rump of beef, put it in a braising pan with some good stock (or water); when it boils, skim it, add two bay leaves, a little garlick, some onions, champignons, celery, carrots, half a cabbage, turnips, a bundle of sweet herbs, whole black pepper, a little allspice and mace. Let the cheek stew till near done, then cut the strings, put the cheek in a clean stewpan, strain the liquor through a sieve, skim off the fat very clean, season with lemon juice, cayenne pepper and salt, add a little colour, clear it with eggs, strain it through a tamis cloth to the cheek, and stew it till tender.

BEEF TAILS.

Cut the tails into joints, and blanch and wash them; then braise them till tender, drain them dry, and serve them up with haricot sauce over. (Or the tails may be glaized and the sauce put round.)

ENTREE OF BEEF STEAKS.

Take two rump steaks cut three inches thick, lard them with bacon seasoned with cayenne pepper and salt, braise them with a pint of water, a bay leaf, a few allspice, a clove, garlick, an onion, a small bundle of parsley, and a gill of red port; when the steaks are done, and the liquor nearly reduced, put them upon a dish, strain their liquor over, and serve them up with stewed sorrel or endive round them.

HARICOT SAUCE.

Take clean turnips and carrots, and scoop or cut them into shapes, some celery heads cut about two inches long, button onions peeled, some dry or green morells, and artichoke bottoms cut into pieces. Let them all be blanched in separate stewpans till three parts done; then drain and put them all together with some small mushrooms stewed, and a good cullis well-seasoned, and simmer the vegetables till done.

BEEF COLLOPS.

Take the fillet from the under part of a rump of beef, cut it into small thin slices, and fry them till three parts done; then add to them slices of pickled cucumbers, small mushrooms stewed, blanched oysters, some good seasoned cullis, and stew them till tender.

FILLET OF BEEF LARDED.

Take a fillet or piece of a rump, force it and lard it with bacon, turn it round like a fillet of veal, cover it with bards of fat bacon, then roast it; when nearly done take off the paper, and let the larding be of a light brown colour, glaize the top, and serve it up with the following sauce made with cullis, lemon pickle, and ketchup; add likewise some scalded celery heads and button onions; then stew till tender, and put the sauce round the beef.

BEEF PALATES:

Scald and scale the palates clean, and boil them till tender; when cool roll them up with forcemeat in the middle, and tie them with thread; braise them as white as possible and serve them up with a sauce made of ham, breast of fowl, pickle cucumbers, omlets of eggs, and good-seasoned cullis or benshamelle.

N. B. The ham, &c. are to be cut in the form of dice, and the omlets made as omlets for garnishing.

RUMP OF BEEF A LA DAUBE, (or braised).

Bone a rump of beef and daub it with slips of fat bacon, seasoned with sweet herbs, eschalots, beaten spices, pepper, and salt. Bind it round with packthread, and braise it till tender; then wipe it dry, glaize the top, and serve it up with the sauce round. Either spanish onion sauce, or savoy, haricot, or ashée sauce may be used.

N. B. It may be served with the sauce either plain or daubed.

PICKLED RUMP BEEF.

Take four ounces common salt, two ounces bay salt, and two ounces salt-petre, some brown sugar, two ounces of powder of dried juniper berries, and three quarts of water, boil all together a quarter of an hour: when it is cold put a middling size fat rump of beef into it. Let it remain for a fortnight, turn it every day, then take it out of the pickle, hang it up to smok for a week; before it is to be dressed, lay it in warm water for four hours, then braise with two quarts of beef broth, a pint of sherry wine, and some onions; when it is to be served up, wipe it dry, glaize it, and put mashed turnips and carrots round it.

To make SPANISH ONION SAUCE.

Braise six spanish onions with the beef till three parts done; then peel them, and add some good cullis seasoned with cayenne pepper, salt, and lemon juice, a gill red port and a little sifted lump sugar, stew them till tender.

SPANISH SAUCE, for stewed meats.

Cut a pound of lean ham into small pieces, put it into a stewpan with a little water, four peeled eschalots, a laurel leaf, one clove, garlick, and an anchovy rubbed through a sieve; stew gently for half an hour, then add half a pint of veal broth, half a gill of ketchup, two table spoonfuls of sweet oil, and half a gill of red wine, season with cayenne pepper, and lemon juice, make it of a proper thickness, let it simmer till the ham is done, and strain it.

SAVOY SAUCE.

Cut some savoys in quarters, blanch them, and then tie them round and braise them with the beef till half done. Take them out of the liquor, cut off the string, and put them into a stewpan with good strong cullis, and simmer them till tender.

ASHEE SAUCE.

Take some pickled cucumbers chopped small, then capers, parsley, eschalots, breast of a fowl, lean of ham, carrots, and yolks and whites of eggs; then add to them a good seasoned cullis and a little mushroom ketchup. Simmer all together a quarter of an hour.

N. B. The ham, fowl, egg, and carrot, to be boiled before they are chopped.

BRISKET OF BEEF with Spanish Onions.

To be done in the same manner as the rump, but not to be daubed with bacon.

BEEF PALATES FRIED.

Blanch and peel three ox palates, add to them some boiling liquor made with half a gill of vinegar, a gill of veal broth, cayenne pepper and salt a little of each, four eschalots chopped fine, and a bay leaf; let them remain in the liquor eight hours, then strain the liquor to a sufficient quantity of sifted flour and three eggs, to make it into a light batter; afterwards cut the palates into quarters, dip them separately into the batter, and fry them in boiling lard till done, and of a good colour, then drain them dry, serve them up with cullis sauce under, and some fried parsley on a plate.

N. B. Beef tails may be boiled till the bones can be taken away, and afterwards done in the same manner as the palates.

PALATES WITH HAM, &c.

Blanch, peel, and afterwards boil three beef palates till nearly done, have ready slices of lean ham of the same thickness, and likewise some slices of bread, then cut each the size of a crown piece; let the ham and palate be stewed till tender in a little veal broth, and a gill of white wine; let the bread be fried when the ingredients are to be served to table; put round the bottom of a dish, the pieces of palate, and upon them the bread, and the ham at top, pour a sauce over made with cullis and a little ketchup.

N. B. The pieces of ham, palate, and fried bread, to be of an equal number.

RUMP OF BEEF, au Cardinal.

Bone the rump, and daub it well with slips of fat bacon, seasoned with parsley, thyme, eschalots chopped fine, some beaten spices and pepper; put it into a deep pan, have ready a mixture of two ounces of salt-petre, four ounces of common salt, beaten ginger one ounce, and brown sugar two ounces pounded together, rub the beef with it, and let it remain twenty four hours; then wash it with warm water, put it into a stew pot, and cover it with bards of fat bacon and writing paper; add two quarts of water, a pint of red port, six onions, three laurel, two bay, and six basil leaves, two cloves, of garlick some slices, carrot, turnips, and celery, half a pint of vinegar, an ounce of mushroom powder, half a gill of lemon pickle, stew the beef till tender, and take it out of the liquor, wipe it dry, glaize the top, put it into a dish, preserve it in a warm place, then strain the liquor, skim it free from fat, afterwards reduce it to a pint, and serve it with the beef.

BEEF TONGUE, aux Trouffles.

Boil a pickled neat's tongue two hours; peel it, let it remain till cool; then cut a large incision in the under part, and fill it with light forcemeat with some green truffles pounded in it, sew it up, trim it neatly, rub it over with yolk of egg, and cover it with paste made with beef marrow instead of butter, afterwards wash the paste over with white of egg, ornament it in the same manner as a raised pie, with the remaining part of the paste, then bake till tender in a moderate heated oven, and serve it up with truffle sauce under; or it may be served with stewed spinach or turnips.

N. B. It may be eaten with chickens, turkey, or roast veal.

BRISKET OF BEEF with Ashee or Haricot.

To be done in the same manner as the preceding.

BOUILLIE BEEF with Sour Crout.

Take a piece of brisket of beef of six pounds weight which has been salted for two days; stew it till tender, in the mean time cut a large white cabbage into small slips, wash it clean, then blanch and squeeze it, put it into a stewpan with half a pound of fresh butter, add an onion stuck with six cloves, half a gill of vinegar, a tea spoonful of coriander seeds pounded and sifted, a clove, garlick, pepper and salt to the palate, put the ingredients over a moderate fire; when the cabbage is three parts done, add a pint of strong veal broth, and a little flour, let the cabbage stew till tender, be careful not to let it burn; when the beef is to be served wipe it dry, glaize it and pu. the crout round it, and some fried sausages.

RUMP OF BEEF a la Mode.

Bone the rump, daub it with slips of fat bacon seasoned with sweet herbs, beaten spices, and pepper and salt. Bind it round with packthread, put it into a braising pan, cover it with some veal stock, make it boil, skim it, and add a pint of red port, half a gill of brandy, some onions, turnips, celery, a few bay leaves, garlick, champignons, a few whole allspice, and a little mace. Let it stew till nearly done; then take it out of the liquor, cut off the strings, wipe it dry, and put it into a clean stewpan; then strain the liquor, skim the fat off clean, season with cayenne, salt, a gill of vinegar, lemon pickle, and a small quantity of juice of lemon; add a little colour, clear it with whites of eggs, and strain it through a tamis cloth to the beef. Stew it gently till done, and serve it up in a deep dish.

N. B. To the liquor, when cleared with eggs and strained, may be added some passing of flour and butter, by way of thickening, if approved. The reason for clearing the liquor is, that it will make it appear bright either thickened or plain.

BEEF PALATES a la Cream.

Blanch, peel, and boil the palates till three parts done; then line a tin mould with veal cowl; lay a palate upon it, and over it some light forcemeat with green truffles pounded in it; upon that more cowl, a palate, and forcemeat, and so alternately till the mould is full. Bake in a moderate oven till the palates are tender; then put a palate and forcemeat on the dish separately, with the fat taken away; and serve them up with a sauce over them, made with the yolks of two hard eggs, one anchovy, a little salt, grated nutmeg, a table spoonful of lemon pickle, and a gill of veal consommé to be rubbed through a tamis, afterwards make the liquor boil, and add a leason of two yolks of eggs, and a gill of cream.

BAKED BEEF.

Bone either a leg, or sticking, or a head of beef, wash it clean, chop plenty of parsley, a middling quantity of thyme, eschalots, marjoram, savory, and a little basil. Then mix them together, and add a small quantity of beaten allspice, mace, cloves, pepper, and salt. Rub the beef well with the ingredients, set it in an earthen pan, put to it a gill of vinegar, half a pint of red port, eight middling-sized whole onions peeled, two bay leaves, a few fresh or dried champignons. Let the meat remain till next day; then add a sufficient quantity of water to it, cover the pan close, and bake the meat till tender.

CANELLON OF BEEF.

Make a forcemeat of lean veal and ham, bread soaked in cream, some green truffles, pepper, salt, a small quantity of beaten spices, beef marrow, parsley and eschalots chopt, and a little white wine. Let the ingredients be pounded well together with two eggs, then make it into the form of a pudding, and cover it with bards of bacon, white paper, and a paste made with flour and water. Bake it, and when it is to be served up, take the bards, paper, and paste away; glaze the top of the forcemeat, and put a good benshamelle or cullis sauce round it.

BEEF OLIVES.

Roll some of the above forcemeat in slices of a fillet of beef cut from the under part of a rump, put a small skewer through each of the olives, dip them in batter, and fry them in boiling lard; when they are done, drain them dry, and serve them up with stewed French olives round.

STEWED FRENCH OLIVE SAUCE.

The olives are to be stoned, and stewed in strong veal broth till they are tender, and the liquor nearly reduced; season to the palate with cayenne pepper, salt, and lemon juice.

MARROW BONES.

Chop the bones at each end so as to stand steady; then wash them clean, saw them in halves, set them upright in a saucepan with water, and boil them two hours. Serve them up very hot, and with fresh toasted bread.

MUTTON RUMPS MARINATED.

Clean and cut the rumps of an equal length, and lay them in a pan, and the marinate liquor for a whole night; then pass them in butter till nearly done. Lay them on a dish to cool, wash them over with yolk of egg, and breadcrumb them. Fry them gently in boiling lard till done, and of a nice colour. Drain them dry, and serve them up with a very good seasoned cullis sauce and ketchup in it.

N. B. In the same manner may be done mutton steaks.

TO MAKE MARINATE.

Take a little gravy, vinegar, salt, whole black pepper, a few bay leaves, onions sliced, a clove of garlick, and a little thyme. Boil all together and strain it.

HARICOT MUTTON CUTLETS.

Cut a loin or best end of a neck of mutton into steaks, trim them neat, and fry them till three parts done, and of a nice colour. Put them into a stewpan, add a little liquor to preserve them from burning, and simmer till tender. Lay the steaks round in a dish, and serve them up with haricot sauce over.

N. B. The essence that the steaks were stewed in to be strained, skimmed clean from fat, and added to the sauce.

FILLET OF MUTTON WITH CUCUMBERS.

Take the best end of a neck of mutton, cut off the under bone, leaving the long ones on; then trim it neat, lard it, or let it remain plain; roast it gently, glaize it, and serve it up with cucumber sauce under.

N. B. The mutton may be put into marinate for one night, made with a gill of red port, a little vinegar, and beef broth boiled together.

STEWED CUCUMBERS.

Take fresh gathered cucumbers, pare them, cut them into shapes if seedy, or slices if young. Put them into a stewpan, and add a little salt, vinegar, and an onion. Simmer them over a fire, till nearly done and the liquor reduced, or fry them with a bit of fresh butter, and add a good strong cullis. Let the cucumbers stew till done, and serve them up with the mutton, which may be roasted with larding (or plain).

N. B. The cucumbers may be served as an entrée of itself, and fried bread put round them.

MUTTON CUTLETS WITH POTATOES.

Cut a loin of mutton into steaks, beat them with a chopper, and trim them neat. Pass them in sweet herbs, eschalots, pepper, salt, and lemon juice. When nearly done, lay them on a dish till almost cool, and then egg, breadcrumb, and fry them in boiling lard till of a light brown colour.

Place the steaks round in a dish, leaving a cavity in the center, which is to be filled up with potatoes, and the sauce under the steaks.

N. B. The potatoes to be peeled, scooped, or cut into shapes. Then fry them of a light colour, and put them before the fire till wanted; and add to the sauce the steaks were passed in a little cullis and ketchup; then strain and reduce it almost to a glaize.

MUTTON CUTLETS A LA MAINTENON.

Get the best end of a loin of mutton, take off the under bone, and cut it into chops, beat them, and trim them neat; then add to them a bit of fresh butter, chopped parsley, thyme, eschalots, pepper, salt, a little pounded mace, and lemon juice. Pass them till nearly done; then lay them on a dish, pour the liquor over the chops, and, when nearly cool, breadcrumb, and put them separately in oiled white paper; fold them up, broil them over a slow fire, and serve them up with hot poivrade sauce in a boat.

N. B. See Poivrade Sauce receipt.

ENTREE OF RUMPS OF MUTTON.

When the rumps are well cleaned, braize them till nearly done, then fry slips of bread the same breadth and length; put upon each slip a rump, and over it grated parmezan cheese, and upon the whole, a little mustard, butter and cullis, mixed together; strew fine breadcrumbs at the top. Bake the rumps till tender, and serve them up with a little consommé round them.

N. B. If approved a leason of two yolks of eggs, and a gill of cream, may be added to the consommé five minutes before it is put round the rumps.

MUTTON CHOPS WITH MASHED POTATOES.

Bone a piece of loin of mutton, cut it into steaks of good thickness, season with pepper and salt, broil them over a clear coal fire, be careful not to let them be done too much. Then have ready a shape of mashed potatoes very hot, which has been formed in a tin mould for that purpose, Put the chops round, serve them up immediately, and likewise some chopt eschalots, and scraped horseradish on separate plates.

TO MASH POTATOES.

Peel best floury potatoes, and boil them till nearly done; drain them, and steam them till quite dry, then break and add to them fresh butter, a little cream or milk, and some salt. Mash them well over a fire five minutes before they are to be used, and preserve them as white as possible. They may be served plain, instead of putting them into a shape, if approved.

N. B. The same mash may be put into scollop shells and coloured with a salamander; or the mash may be mixed with yolk of egg, then moulded with the hand into round balls, and fried in boiling lard.

CUTLETS A LA IRISH STEW.

Get the best end of a neck of mutton, take off the under bone, and cut it into chops; season them with pepper, salt, a little mushroom powder, and beaten mace. Put them into a stewpan, add a large onion sliced, some parsley and thyme tied in a bunch, and a point of veal broth. Simmer the chops till three parts done, then add some whole potatoes peeled, and let them stew till done. Serve it up in a deep dish.

N. B. Let the parsley and thyme be taken out when the stew is to be served up.

PORK CUTLETS WITH RED OR WHITE CABBAGE.

Take a piece of back pork, cut it into chops, beat and trim them, season with pepper and salt, broil them gently till done and of a light brown colour. Serve them up with stewed red or white cabbage under.

TO STEW CABBAGE.

Cut the cabbage into slips, and blanch and drain them dry. Put them into a stewpan, with a bit of fresh butter, pepper, salt, an onion, some vinegar, half a pint of veal broth, and a little allspice tied in a cloth. Stew the cabbage gently till done and the liquor nearly reduced, and then take the spice and onion out.

PORK CUTLETS WITH ROBERT SAUCE.

Get a piece of back pork, or the best end of a loin, and take off the under bone; then cut the chops neat, season with pepper and salt, broil them gently, and serve them up with the sauce underneath.

TO MAKE ROBERT SAUCE.

Take some cullis, a bay leaf, an onion sliced, a blade of mace, a little mustard, and a gill of rhenish wine. Boil all together a quarter of an hour, strain it, and reduce it nearly to a glaize.

PORK CUTLETS ANOTHER WAY.

Trim the chops neat as above, pass them with a bit of fresh butter, chopped eschalots, pepper, salt, and a litte lemon juice. When nearly done, breadcrumb and broil them till of a light brown colour. Serve them up with the following sauce underneath; that is to say, cullis, mushroom, ketchup, lemon pickle, and mustard, a little of each, and reduce nearly to a glaize.

FILLET OF PORK ROASTED.

Take a piece of back pork, cut the chine bone from the under part, and lay it in a marinate all night. When it is to be roasted run a lark spit through, tie it on another spit, cover it with paper, and roast it gently; and when to be served up, if not coloured enough, glaize it lightly, and put some Robert sauce underneath.

PIGS FEET AND EARS.

Take prepared feet and pass them, with chopped parsley, thyme, eschalots, pepper, salt, and lemon juice. When done, breadcrumb and broil them gently. Let the ears be cut in sliccs, and cullis well-seasoned; then stew them for ten minutes, and serve them up with the feet over.

TO PREPARE LARGE PIGS FEET AND EARS.

Scald and clean them; then spilt the feet and tie them round with packthread; put them in a pot covered with water; make it boil, skim it clean, and add a little garlick, thyme, eschalots, onions, bay leaves, whole black pepper, allspice, mace, salt, and udder of veal. Braise them till tender, and put them in an earthen pan for use.

SUCKING PIGS FEET.

Blanch two or three sets of feet and the plucks, then put the feet into half a pint water, two eschalots; parsley and sage a small quantity of each chopt fine, some pounded nutmeg, and mace, a very little of each; when the feet are three parts done and the liquor nearly reduced, mince the pluck and put it to the feet with some cullis, half a table spoonful lemon pickle, and a table spoonful white wine, season to the palate with cayenne, pepper, and salt. Stew the feet till tender, and serve them up with sippets of bread round them, either plain or fried.

COMPOTTE OF PIGEONS.

Cut off the pinions, draw the legs in close, colour the breast in boiling hot lard, and then blanch and wash them; which done, put them in a stew-pan, add a little veal broth, and simmer them gently till nearly done, and then make a ragout of blanched sweetbreads, button mushrooms, truffles, morells, artichoke bottoms, egg balls, cullis, and the liquor of the pigeons strained, and season well to the palate. Let the ingredients stew for ten minutes, then add them to the pigeons, and serve up all together in a deep dish.

PIGEONS A LA CRAUPIDINE.

Cut off the pinions, draw in the legs, cut the breast so as to lay back, then pass them with sweet herbs, mushrooms, eschalots chopped fine, a little fresh butter, grated nutmeg, lemon juice, pepper, and salt. Let them simmer till nearly done; then lay them on a dish, and when nearly cool, egg with yolk of eggs, and strew them with crumbs of bread rubbed through a fine hair sieve. Fry them of a light colour in boiling hot lard (or broil them). Serve them up with a good cullis and sharp sauce underneath.

PARTRIDGES EN CREPINE.

Bone and stew the birds till half done, with a gill of veal broth, half a gill of white wine, an onion, two leaves of basil, a little thyme, a clove of garlick, pepper, salt, lemon juice, two cloves, and half a bay leaf. When the partridges are half done, take them out of the liquor and strain it to some good cullis. When the birds are cool, put each into some light forcemeat, afterwards wash over with whites of eggs beaten to a solid froth, and garnish lightly with leaves of puff paste in what form you please. Bake them of a nice colour, and serve them up with the sauce under them, reduced to a good consistency.

N. B. Woodcocks may be done in the same manner, with the addition of their trail pounded in the forcemeat.

ENTREE OF PIGEONS WITH TRUFFLES.

Bone three pigeons, stuff them with good seasoned forcemeat, blanch and lard them; cover the larding with paper and roast them: when they are to be served up, glaize the larding, put them into the center of a dish, likewise six lamb sweet-breads, larded, braized, and glaized, to be put round the pigeons, and some truffle sauce under.

PIGEONS GLAIZED.

Put some good-seasoned forcemeat in the pigeons, cut off the pinions, lay back the legs, blanch them, and roast them gently with vine leaves and bards of fat bacon over them. When they are to be served up glaize the top part, and serve them with cullis sauce, or celery heads, or asparagus tops, &c. under them.

PIGEONS A LA SCUSELL.

Bone the legs and wings of four pigeons and draw them in; then fill them with a high-seasoned forcemeat, and braise them in half pint of veal stock. When done enough, take the pigeons out, wipe them dry, glaize the top, and serve them up with stewed sorrel underneath.

N. B. The liquor they were braised in to be strained, skimmed free from fat, and reduced almost to a glaize, and added to the sorrel. (Or they may, when three parts done, be wiped dry, egged and breadcrumbed over, then fried in boiling lard, and served up with sorrel sauce underneath as above.)

HASHED CALF'S HEAD.

Take a head, without the scalp, chopped in half; wash and blanch it, peel the tongue, cut it in slices, and likewise the meat from the head. Add blanched morells and truffles, egg and forcemeat balls, stewed mushrooms, artichoke bottoms, and well-seasoned cullis. Let the meat stew gently till nearly done, and then add slices of throat sweetbreads. When it is to be served up, put round the hash the brains and rashers of bacon; and, if approved, half the head to be put on the top, which is to be prepared thus:—One half of the head when blanched to be done over with yolk of raw egg; then season with pepper and salt, strew with fine breadcrumbs, bake till very tender, and colour with a salamander if requisite. The brains to be egged and rolled in breadcrumbs, and fried in boiling lard. The rashers of bacon to be broiled.

BREAST OF VEAL EN GALLETINE.

Bone the veal and lay a light forcemeat over it, and upon that some slips of lean ham, pickle cucumbers, fat bacon, and omlets of eggs white and yellow. Roll it up tight in a cloth, tie each end, and braise it till tender. When it is to be served up, take it out of the cloth, wipe it dry, and glaize the top; then put under it stewed sorrel or stewed celery heads, or ragout.

BREAST OF VEAL RAGOUT.

Take off the under bone and cut the breast in half, lengthways; then cut them in middling-sized pieces, fry them in a little lard till of a light brown colour, wipe them dry, put them into a stewpan with half a pint of veal stock, simmer them till nearly done and the liquor almost reduced; then add blanched morrells, truffles, slices of throat sweetbread, egg balls, artichoke bottoms, a little ketchup, and some cullis; season to the palate with cayenne pepper and salt, and little lemon juice. Let all stew together till done.

CALVES HEAD BENSAMELLE.

Let the head be cut into halves, preserving the tongue whole, then bone one cheek, make an incision in the under part, fill the cavity with forcemeat, sew it up and blanch it, then put it into a veal cowl and braize it till tender. In the mean time boil the other cheek till half done, and cut the meat from it into middling-size pieces, and the tongue in the same manner; put them into a stewpan with some benshamelle, stew till nearly done, then add slices throat sweetbreads, stewed mushrooms and egg balls: five minutes before it is to be served to table, add a leason of three yolks of eggs and a jill of cream, season to the palate. Put it into a deep dish, and the braized cheek well glaized over the stew.

NECK OF VEAL EN ERISON.

Cut off the scrag and the under chine bone, then lay a light forcemeat on the top of the veal about half way, and wash it with whites of eggs with a paste brush, and work a sprig or any other device as fancy directs, with pickle cucumber, ham, breast of fowl, omlets of eggs white and yellow, boiled carrots, and some capers. Put the veal into stewpan, add a little stock, and stew it gently till tender, taking care the ornament is not disturbed. When it is to be served up glaize the plain part, and put under a cullis sauce with asparagus or peas.

N. B. In the same manner may be done heart sweetbreads.

NECK OF VEAL LARDED.

Take off the under bone of a neck of veal, leave only a part of the long bones on; trim it neat, lard it, and roast it gently with a veal caul over. Ten minutes before it is done take off the caul, and let the veal be of a very light colour. When it is to be served up glaize it, and put under some sorrel sauce, celery heads, or asparagus tops.

VEAL CUTLETS LARDED.

Cut the best end of a neck of veal into chops, leaving only a part of the long bone; then lard, blanch, and braise them: and when they are to be served up, drain dry, glaize, and place them round each other in a dish, and put green truffle sauce, or white mushroom sauce, in the center.

LOIN OF VEAL A LA CREAM.

Take the best end of a loin of veal, joint it, and cut a little of the suet from the kidney; cause it to lay flat, and then make an incision in the center of the top part about three inches deep and six inches long. Take the piece out, chop it, add to it the suet or beef marrow, parsley, thyme, green truffles, mushrooms, eschalots, lemon peel, chopped very fine, and season it with pepper and salt, and a little beaten spice. Put all together into a marble mortar, add the yolks of two eggs, and a little French bread soaked in cream; then pound the ingredients well, and fill the cavity with the forcemeat, and cover it with a piece of veal caul;

after which tie it down close, and cover the whole with a large piece of caul, roast it gently, and when it is to be served up, take off the large piece of caul; let it colour a little, glaize it lightly, and put under it a benshamelle or a ragout of sweet-breads, &c.

N. B. In the same manner may be done a fillet of veal instead of plain stuffing.

VEAL TENDRONS (brown or white).

Take a breast of white veal, cut off the under bone and top skin; then cut it into three long slips, and the slips again into pieces of two inches thick; blanch and put them into a stewpan, then add a little water, bards of bacon, and slices of lemon. Braise them till tender, drain them dry, and serve them up with green truffle sauce, or celery, asparagus, or peas. The sauce to be served over the veal; or, they may be glaized, then put round each other, and the sauce served in the center.

CELERY SAUCE, (white) FOR VEAL, CHICKENS, TURKEYS, &c.

Cut celery heads three inches long, trim them, wash and blanch them, drain them dry, add a little stock, boil them till nearly done, and the liquor almost reduced; then put to them some benshamelle, and, if approved, five minutes before the sauce is put over the meat or poultry, add a leason of two yolks of eggs and cream.

CELERY SAUCE, (brown) FOR PULLETS, &c.

Dress celery heads as above, but instead of benshamelle add a good cullis only.

N. B. The above sauces may be served up in dishes with fried bread round the celery heads, as an entrée of itself.

VEAL CUTLETS NATURAL.

Cut the best end of neck of veal into chops, trim off the bone, pass the steaks with a bit of fresh butter, chopped parsley, thyme, and eschalots, and season with pepper, salt, and lemon juice. When nearly done, lay them on a dish with the liquor; and when cool, egg, breadcrumb, and broil them gently. Serve them up placed round each other, with a sauce in the center made with cullis, a little ketchup, lemon pickle, and artichoke bottoms cut into pieces.

SCORCHED COLLOPS.

Cut veal cutlets (taken from the fillet) into small thin pieces, and fry them in a little boiling lard till of a light brown colour. Drain them dry, put them into a stewpan, add cullis, stewed mushrooms, some blanched truffles, morells, pieces of artichoke bottoms, some slices of throat sweetbreads, and egg balls. Let them simmer over a slow fire till tender, season to the palate, and serve them up with rashers of broiled bacon round them.

VEAL COLLOPS (white).

Cut the collops as for brown, but instead of frying, put them into a stewpan with a bit of fresh butter, a little lemon juice, and a blade of mace. Simmer them till nearly done, then strain the liquor to some benshamelle, and add the collops with some slices of throat sweetbreads, some cocks-combs blanched, egg balls, pieces of artichoke bottoms, and stewed white mushrooms. Let them stew gently, season to the palate with salt, and make the sauce of a sufficient thickness to adhere to the ingredients.

N. B. Five minutes before the collops are to be served up a leason may be added of eggs and cream.

CALVES BRAINS A-LA-CREAM.

Blanch and wash them free from skin, put them into a stewpan with a gill of veal broth, half a gill of white wine, a blade of mace, two-peeled eschalots, and a small fagot of parsley and thyme, simmer them till done. Put them into a deep dish with sippets of fried bread round, then strain the liquor, add to it the yolks of two eggs, and a gill of cream; season to the palate with cayenne pepper, salt and lemon juice. Let it simmer five minutes, and pour it over the brains.

CALVES EARS GLAIZED.

Let six ears be cleaned and blanched, then braize them with a little veal broth, bards of bacon, and slices of lemon to preserve them white, when they are tender wipe them dry, glaize and serve them up with a sauce underneath them made with a pint green peas, stewed and rubbed through a tamis cloth, afterwards add to the pulp half a pint good seasoned cullis. Let them simmer together for ten minutes.

CALVES BRAINS WITH OYSTERS.

Blanch and clean the brains, then wipe them dry, dip them into yolk of egg and roll them in fine breadcrumbs; afterwards fry them in boiling lard till of a good colour, drain them very dry. Serve them up with some stewed oysters under (either white or brown); and pieces of ham cut the size of a crown piece, to be broiled and put in the dish.

CALVES EARS WITH PARMEZAN CHEESE.

Take six ears cleaned and blanched, put them into a stewpan with half a gill of white wine, a gill of veal broth, salt, cayenne pepper, a small bundle of parsley, thyme, and three leaves of basil, an ounce of fresh butter, four peeled eschalots, and one clove of garlick. Let all stew together; when the ears are tender, take them out of the liquor, strain it and add the crumb of two penny French rolls, and pound it in a marble mortar with the yolks of four eggs, half a gill of cream, and two ounces of grated parmezan cheese. When the ears are cool, fill them with the forcemeat, put them into a dish with a gill of cullis. Then take grated parmezan cheese and fine breadcrumbs an equal quantity of each, mix them together, and put them over the ears; bake them in a moderate heated oven for three quarters of an hour, and if not of a sufficient colour when they are to be served up, brown the top with a salamander.

CALVES FEET A-LA-SAUCE.

Let the feet be well cleaned, afterwards boil them in milk and water till the bones can be taken away, then put them into a stewpan with a little cullis, some capers, scalded parsley, and lean of dressed ham chopped fine, stew all together a quarter of an hour. Serve up with sippets of plain bread round the dish.

CALVES FEET (another way).

Boil three feet in milk and water till tender, then drain them, take the long bones away, put the feet into a dish, and serve over them a sauce made with two ounces of fresh butter, a gill of cream, a little salt, mustard, and some scalded parsley chopped very fine, thicken with flour and water, afterwards add vinegar to the palate, or instead of being thickened with flour and water, may be added the yolks of two eggs and a little cream mixed together.

N. B. Tripe may be done in the same manner.

FRICANDO VEAL.

Cut off a long or round piece of veal from the leg, beat it flat with a chopper, and make an incision in the under part. Put into it a little light forcemeat, sew it up, lard the top part with pieces of fat bacon very neat, blanch it, put it into a stewpan with a little stock, and cover it close; then let it stew till very tender, and the liquor nearly reduced. When it is to be served up glaize the larding, and put stewed sorrel under. (Mutton may be done in the same manner.)

N. B. The forcemeat, if not approved, may be omitted; and instead of only one piece of veal, three or four small pieces may be served on a dish. Likewise fricandoes or other larded things should be put before a fire, or into a slow oven, for five minutes before they are glaized.

SORREL SAUCE.

Wash clean, squeeze, and chop fine, plenty of sorrel, and put it into a stewpan with a bit of fresh butter; stew it till the liquor is almost reduced, and then add a little strong cullis. Let the sauce be of a good thickness.

VEAL OLIVES.

Cut thin bards of fat bacon of six inches long and four broad, lay upon them very thin slices of veal of the same dimensions, wash the veal with yolk of egg, and put upon it some light forcemeat. Then roll them up, run a lark spit through sideway of each olive, tie a string over them to prevent their falling off, trim each end with a sharp knife, roast them gently, and froth and serve them up with a cullis sauce under.

N. B. Instead of bards of bacon being put under the veal, thin slices of raw ham may be put over; likewise some forcemeat thin rolled up.

BREAST OF VEAL WITH OYSTERS.

Cut off the under bone of a breast of white veal, and the skin from the top, then blanch and braise it, or roast it gently till very tender with a veal caul over. When it is to be served up take off the caul, glaize the top of the breast, and put round it white oyster sauce. (See receipt for Oyster Sauce.)

LAMB'S HEAD MINCED.

Chop the head in halves, and blanch it with the liver, heart, and lights. Then chop the heart, &c. and add to them a little parsley chopped very fine, a small quantity of shredded lemon peel, and some cullis; then stew it gently till done, and season to the palate. Wash the head over with yolk of egg, season it with pepper and salt, strew fine breadcrumbs over, and bake it gently till very tender. When it is to be served up, colour it with a salamander, put the mince under, and the brains fried round it, with rashers of broiled bacon.

N. B. To prepare the brains, clean them in warm water, wipe them dry, dip them in yolk of egg, breadcrumb, and fry them in boiling lard.

BREAST OF LAMB WITH BENSAMELLE.

Take off the under bone, then blanch and put it into a stewpan, with parsley, thyme, and eschallots, chopped very fine, a bit of fresh butter, pepper, salt, a little essence of anchovie, and lemon juice. Let it simmer over a slow fire till nearly done; then lay it on a dish, and, when almost cool, egg and breadcrumb it, broil it over a slow clear fire till tender, and let it be of a nice brown colour. Serve it up with a benshamelle sauce under.

BREAST OR TENDRONS OF LAMB EN MATELOTE.

Cut the breast into two long slips, trim off the bone and skin, cut them into small pieces, blanch and boil them in a little stock and lemon juice. When nearly done, add peeled and half-boiled button onions, pieces of pickle cucumber cut of the same size, a few button mushrooms stewed, some slices of throat sweetbreads, blanched omlet of egg (the same kind as for garnishing) cut into pieces the form of dice, and lean ham cut in the same manner; then add a cullis or ben-shamelle. When it is to be served up, put sippets of fried bread round.

BREAST OF LAMB WITH PEAS.

Cut off the under bone, and then blanch and braise it. When it is to be served up, glaize the top and put the stewed peas under.

TO STEW PEAS FOR SAUCE: FOR LAMB, VEAL, CHICKENS, &c.

To a quart of shelled young green peas add two ounces of fresh butter, a very little sifted sugar, and some salt. Put them into a stewpan, cover it close, simmer the peas till nearly done, then add some good-seasoned cullis, and stew them till tender.

LAMB CUTLETS WITH CUCUMBERS.

Take the bone from a loin of lamb, cut it into chops, beat them flat with a chopper, and trim off some of the fat. Pass them with a piece of fresh butter, chopped parsley, thyme, eschalots, lemon juice, and pepper and salt. When three parts done, put them on a dish, and, when nearly cool, egg, breadcrumb, and fry them in boiling lard till of a light brown colour. Drain them dry, place them round each other in the dish, and serve them up with the cucumber sauce in the center.

N. B. In the same manner may be done mutton and veal cutlets.

NECK OF LAMB GLAIZED.

Cut the scrag and the chine bone from a neck of house lamb ; then take off the skin, trim part of the fat away to lard the neck lengthways, blanch it, and braise or roast it gently with a veal caul over. When it is to be served up, glaize the larding, and put round it white onion sauce made thus :—

ONION SAUCE.

Take boiled onions, rub them through a hair sieve ; then add to them fresh butter, cream, flour, and salt, a very little of each, and let it stew five minutes.

LAMB CUTLETS WITH TENDRONS.

Cut a neck of house lamb into chops, leaving only the long bone ; then beat them flat, and pass them with parsley, thyme, eschalots, chopped very fine, and add a little lemon juice, mushroom powder, pepper, and salt. When they are three parts done lay them on a dish, and when half cold breadcrumb them and broil them on a stewpan cover over a slow fire with a bit of fresh butter. When they are to be served up, put in the center of the dish some braised tendrons of the breast of lamb, and round them the cutlets, and turnip sauce over the center.

TURNIP SAUCE.

Pare four turnips, sweat them with a little water till they are done and the liquor reduced, then rub them through a tamis sieve. Add to them a small quantity of benshamelle, and then cut some more turnips in shapes as for a haricot. Sweat them in the like manner, and add the benshamelle to them.

LAMB CUTLETS WITH TENDRONS (another way).

The tendrons may be served in the center of the dish, with the cutlets larded, braised, and glaized, to go round them ; and the sauce made in the same manner, but instead of benshamelle add cullis.

SHOULDER OF LAMB GLAIZED.

Bone a shoulder of house lamb, then season it with pepper, salt, mushroom powder, and beaten spice ; fill the cavity with some light forcemeat ; sew it up, and make it in the form of a leg of lamb ; after which blanch it, and braise in a little stock and bards of fat bacon. When it is done wipe it dry, glaize it, and serve it up with sorrel sauce under ; or a strong cullis sauce with a little tarragon vinegar in it.

SHOULDER OF LAMB EN EPIGRAMME.

Roast a shoulder of lamb till three parts done, and let it stand till cold ; then take the blade-bone out with the meat, leaving only the skin whole in the form of a fan. Cut the meat into slips, add to it parsley, thyme, eschalots, and mushrooms, chopped fine, some good-seasoned cullis, and a little lemon pickle. Let it stew gently for a quarter of an hour ; and let the fan of the shoulder and the blade-bone be broiled, and served up over the stew.

SHOULDER OF LAMB GRILLED.

Roast it till three parts done, then score it with chequers, season with pepper and salt, and grill it gently till done. Let it be of a light brown colour, and serve it up with a sauce over it made with cullis, ketchup, lemon juice, and a bit of fresh butter.

NECK OF LAMB AND TURNIPS.

Cut the scrag, chine bone, and skin, off from a neck of house lamb, and lay it in cold water for an hour; then boil it, and serve it up with mashed turnips round it, and the dish ornamented with boiled carrots cut into shapes; likewise some caper sauce in a butter-boat.

HIND QUARTER OF LAMB MARINATED.

Bone the leg, fill the cavity with a light forcemeat well seasoned, sew it up, and lard the top part of the quarter with slips of fat bacon. When done, take a quart of veal stock, half a gill of vinegar, whole black pepper, some salt, two bay leaves, three onions cut in pieces, a little garlick, and half a pint of rhenish wine. Boil all the ingredients together a quarter of an hour, put the lamb into a deep dish, and strain the liquor to it. Let it lay five or six hours, turn it several times, then roast the lamb gently with a veal caul over it. When it is nearly done, let it colour a little, and glaize the top. Serve it up with a sauce under it, made with the above liquid boiled down almost to a glaize, with some cullis added.

N. B. In the same manner may be done a shoulder or leg of lamb.

HIND QUARTER OF LAMB WITH SPINACH.

Boil the leg, preserve it as white as possible, serve it up with spinach under, and the steaks round it very hot. The loin to be cut into chops.

and seasoned with pepper and salt; then fried or broiled. Pick and boil the spinach till nearly done; then strain and squeeze it dry, chop it, and add a little piece of fresh butter, pepper, and salt, a little cullis or cream, and let it stew for five minutes.

N. B. The spinach may be served up as a dish with fried bread round it.

LEG OF LAMB WITH OYSTERS.

Bone the leg, fill the cavity with light forcemeat, and some blanched and bearded oysters pounded with it. Sew it up, put over it slices of lemon, salt, bards of fat bacon, and paper. Roast it gently, and when it is to be served up, glaize it, and put a sauce round it made with oysters blanched and bearded, stewed mushrooms, boiled button onions, some cullis, and the oyster liquor they were blanched in. Season to the palate with cayenne and lemon juice.

CURRIE.

Cut two young chickens into pieces, and blanch and drain them dry; then put them into a stewpan with two table spoonfuls of currie powder and a gill of veal stock, and stew them gently till half done. Then cut into slices three middling-sized onions, and put them into a stewpan with a table spoonful of currie powder, a quart of veal stock, two ounces of jordan almonds blanched and pounded fine, and boil till the onions are tender; then rub it through a tamis sieve to the chicken, and season to the palate with cayenne pepper, salt, and lemon or tamarind juice. Let the chickens stew till three parts done, then pour the liquor into another stewpan, and add three ounces of fresh butter, a very little flour and water, and reduce it to three gills. Strain it through a tannis sieve to the chickens, and let them simmer till tender.

N. B. Rabbits may be done in the same manner.

PLAIN RICE TO BE EATEN WITH CURRIE.

Pick one pound of rice, and wash it very clean; then have ready some boiling water and put the rice in. Let it simmer till three parts done, and strain and wash it in several waters till free from slime. Drain it in a large hair sieve, and when dry put it into a stewpan with some paper and the cover over it. Set it in a moderate oven for one hour and a half, or longer, if there be a greater quantity.

CURRIE OF LOESTER.

Boil lobsters till three parts done, and pick and cut the claws and tails into good-sized pieces; then add currie powder, and proceed with the same directions as with the chickens, only pound the body of the lobsters and spawn, if any, and add them to the almonds and other ingredients.

CURRIE OF VEAL.

Cut a piece of breast of veal into tendrons, and fry them in a little lard till of a light colour; then drain them dry, add currie powder, and proceed with the same directions as for chicken currie.

CURRIE OF MUTTON.

Take three pounds of the best end of a loin of mutton, cut off the bone and some of the fat; then cut the meat into small square pieces, fry them, and proceed with the same directions as for veal.

PIG'S HEAD CURRIE.

Take a young porker's head, cleave it in half, blanch and wash it, then cut it into small thick pieces, fry them, and dress in the same manner as veal and mutton; only omit the fresh butter as there will be a sufficient quantity of fat.

RICE IN SHAPES WITH CURRIE.

Wash and boil a quarter of a pound of rice till half done; drain it, and add a sufficient quantity of currie powder to colour it, a quarter of a pound fresh butter, a bay leaf, a gill of veal broth, salt and lemon juice to the palate; then put it over a slow fire, and when it is nearly tender, let it get cool, then add the yolks of three eggs; have ready a tin mould lined with bards of fat bacon. Put the rice round the inside and at the bottom, and upon it a dressed currie of two chickens or meat, with only a little of the liquor; cover with the remainder of the rice; bake it in a moderate heated oven for one hour. When it is to be served to table, turn it gently out of the mould into a dish, take the bacon from it, make a small opening at the top, and add the remaining part of the currie liquor boiling hot. Likewise serve plain boiled rice round the baked, and some button onions boiled till tender.

DIRECTIONS FOR ROASTING.

Observe that in roasting it requires a good quick fire, but not too strong, and the meats should be well-jointed, trimmed neat, and covered with paper, to preserve it from being too high a colour. Beef and mutton should not be done too much; veal, pork, and lamb, should be done well; and some little time before it is to be served up, take the paper off, sprinkle the meat with salt, and when of a proper colour, froth it with butter and flour. Large poultry to be papered and done in the same manner; but small poultry, such as chickens, woodcocks, rabbits, wild fowls, &c. will not require papering. The time the several articles will take roasting depends upon a little practice, as the weather and the different strengths of fires make a material alteration. I have given directions for some particular roasts which require a preparation; as for others which are served with sauces, they may be found under respective heads; and for the trimmings of meat, &c. I have wrote a receipt to make into soup, or they may be put into the beef stock pot.

SOUP FOR A FAMILY.

Cut the particles of meat from the trimmings of different joints, as beef, mutton, veal, pork, &c. and when done put the bones into a pot, cover with water, and boil them till the goodness is extracted. Then strain the liquor, wash the trimmings of the vegetables, such as turnips, carrots, onions, leeks, celery, and a little cabbage. Cut all small, put them into a pot with the above liquor and some split peas; boil till the peas are tender, add a little dry mint, and rub it through a tamis cloth or sieve. Then season the meat with pepper and salt, sweated down till three parts tender, and add the pulp. Boil all together till the meat is done, skim it and serve it up with fried bread in the form of dice,

TO PREPARE A HAUNCH OF VENISON, OR MUTTON FOR ROASTING.

Take great care the vension is well hung and good. Wipe it, take the skin from the top part, and put butter and plenty of salt over it; then put paste confined on with four or five sheets of paper braced with packthread. Roast it gently, and ten minutes before it is done, take off the paper, let it colour gradually, and froth it with flour and butter. Serve up with the venison warm currant jelly in a boat, and some good gravy with a little red port in it in another sauce boat.

TO ROAST WOODCOCKS OR SNIPES.

Take out the trail, then roast the birds, and ten minutes before they are done bake a toast, put the trail into a stew-pan, with a little cullis and fresh butter, and boil them together. When the woodcocks are to be served up put the sauce over the toast, and the woodcocks upon it.

N. B. If the woodcocks are thin, roast them with a bard of bacon over.

TO ROAST LARKS.

Take the entrails out of the birds, wash and wipe them dry, put them upon a lark spit, with small thin slices of fat bacon and a piece of a vine or green sage leaf between each, if approved; and while roasting, put over them crumbs of bread or roast them plain. When they are done, serve them up with fried breadcrumbs round them, and melted butter in a sauce boat.

TO FRY BREADCRUMBS

Rub crumbs of bread through a hair sieve, have ready a clean frying pan, put them into it with a piece of fresh butter, set them over a moderate fire, keep stirring with a wooden spoon till they are of a light brown colour, and put them upon a plate.

TURKEYS.

To be roasted with a stuffing in the breast, and served with bread sauce in a boat.

RABBITS.

To be roasted either plain, or a stuffing, with the liver chopped in it, put into the belly, and served up with parsley and butter in a boat.

HARES.

To be dressed in the same manner as rabbits, with stuffing; but served up with cullis and fresh butter put over, and warm currant jelly in a sauce boat.

HARE ROASTED ANOTHER WAY.

Stuff as above, and while roasting dredge it with flour, baste it with milk, and so alternately till a quarter of an hour before the hare is done; then baste it with a quarter of a pound of fresh butter put into the dripping pan. Serve it up with a cullis sauce and butter put over, and currant jelly in a sauce boat,

N. B. Baste it repeatedly, as there must be a good crust over. It will require three pints of warm milk for that purpose.

PIGEONS.

To be roasted with a little stuffing in them, or plain; and served up with parsley and butter.

QUAILS, OR RUFFS AND REES.

To be roasted with bards of bacon and vine leaves over them, with sauce in a boat made with cullis and red port in it.

GUINEA FOWLS, PEA FOWLS, PULLETS, CHICKENS, AND TURKEY POULETS.

To be roasted either larded or plain, and served up with gravy under, and bread and egg sauces in separate boats.

WILD FOWL.

To be roasted plain, not done too much, and served up with onion sauce in a boat; as also a small quantity of gravy and red port boiled together.

PATRIDGES AND PHEASANTS.

To be roasted plain, and served up with poi-vrade sauce hot, and bread sauce in boats.

GREEN GEESE AND DUCKLINGS.

To be roasted with pepper and salt put in the bellies, and served with green sauce in a boat.

OTHER GEESE AND TAME DUCKS.

To be roasted with onion and sage chopped fine, seasoned with pepper and salt put into the inside, and served up with apple sauce in a boat.

TO ROAST A PIG

Make a stuffing with chopped sage, two eschalots, two eggs, breadcrumbs, and fresh butter, and season with pepper and salt; put it into the belly, sew it up, spit it, and rub it over with a paste brush dipped in sweet oil. Roast it gently, and when done cut off the head; then cut the body and the head in halves, lay them on a dish, put the stuffing with the brains into a stewpan, add to them some good gravy, make it boil, and serve up the pig with the sauce under it.

TO ROAST SWEETBREADS.

Blanch heart sweetbreads till half done, then wash and wipe them dry, cut off some of the pipe, put yolk of eggs on the tops with a paste brush, and strew fine breadcrumbs over. Roast them gently till done and of a nice colour, serve them up with a toast under and melted butter poured over, together with some cullis sauce round.

FILLET OF VEAL.

To be done in the same manner as the above, with white oyster or cullis sauce round.

STUFFING FOR TURKIES, HARES, VEAL, &c.

Chop very fine beef suet, parsley, thyme, eschalots, a very small quantity of marjoram, savory, basil, and lemon peel, with grated nutmeg, two eggs (or milk), pepper, salt, and an anchovie chopped (if approved). Mix all well together with some bread crumbs.

OBSERVATIONS ON MEAT AND POULTRY.

Meats to be preferred when of a good fatness and the lean appears juicy, but not particularly streaked with fat, as it then frequently happens to eat hard. When the season will permit let it hang for a week and not more, as I have found that period bring it to its best state. Poultry, likewise, should be chosen tolerably fat and of a soft grain. Let them hang three or four days, which will add to their better eating: except woodcocks, snipes, larks, or pigs, which should be dressed fresh. Be particular that the poultry are trussed very neat.

GRAVY FOR ROAST MEAT, STEAKS, AND POULTRY.

Cut slices of chuck beef, veal, and lean ham; pare onions, turnips, a carrot, and cut them with celery; then add a bunch of parsley and thyme, a few whole pepper, and a little mace. Put all the ingredients into a stewpan, set them over a moderate fire, sweat down till the liquor becomes of a light brown colour, and be careful not to let it burn. Discharge it with water or beef stock, season to the palate with salt, and, if required, add a little liquid of colour. Let it simmer till the meat is perfectly done, skim it free from fat, and strain it through a tamis cloth.

PELOE OF RICE

Wash, pick, and dress, in the same manner as the directions for plain rice, observing only, that, before it is to be set in the oven, add a little pounded mace with the rice; and put into a stewpan, a chicken half boiled and a piece of pickle pork three parts boiled, and cover with the rice. When it is to be served up, put the fowl and pork at the bottom of the dish, the rice over, and garnish with boiled or fried button onions and halves of hard eggs, which should be hot.

PELÉE OF RICE ANOTHER WAY.

Wash and pick one pound of rice, boil it in plenty of water till half done, with a dozen of whole cardamum seeds; then drain it, pick out the seeds, put the rice into a stewpan, with three quarters of a pound of fresh butter and some pounded mace, and salt to the palate. Take a loin of house lamb or some fresh pork cut into small pieces; put them into a frying-pan, add cinnamon, cloves, cummin and cardamum seeds, a small quantity of each pounded and sifted, with a bit of butter and some cayenne pepper, and fry the meat till half done. Then take two bay leaves, four good-sized onions sliced, and add to them a pint and a half of veal stock. Boil them till tender and rub them through a tamis cloth or sieve; then boil the liquor over a fire till it is reduced to half a pint, add it to the fried meat and spices, together with some peeled button onions boiled. Then put some of the rice at the bottom of another stewpan, then a layer of meat and onions on the rice, and so on alternately till the whole is put in. Cover the pan close, set it in a moderately heated oven for two hours and a half, and when it is to be served up turn the rice out carefully on a dish.

TIMBOL OF RICE.

Pick, wash, and parboil a quarter of a pound of rice; then strain it, put it into a stewpan with a little oiled butter and yolk of egg. Simmer it gently till tender; then fill an oval tin mould with the rice, press it down close, take the shape out of the mould, wash it lightly with a paste brush with yolk of egg, and set it in a quick oven. When it is a good colour cut a square piece out of the top, scoop out the inside, and fill the cavity with fricassee of chickens, or any thing else you please.

PETIT PATTIES OF CHICKEN AND HAM.

Sheet the pans with puff paste, and put a bit of crumb of bread the bigness of a dice in each; then cover them with more paste, trim round the pan, wash the tops of the paste with egg, and bake the patties of a light colour. When they are to be served up take out the bread, have ready the white meat of dressed fowl, lean ham, an eschalot chopped fine, a spoonful of consommé of veal, a little cream, flour, salt, cayenne, and lemon juice, a small quantity of each. Mix all the ingredients together over a fire, boil them for five minutes, fill the patties with it, and serve them up very hot.

PATTIES OF LOBSTERS OR OYSTERS.

Bake patties as before directed, fill them with lobsters or oysters chopped, add to them a little strong consommé of veal, a small quantity of flour, lemon juice, cayenne pepper, a bit of lemon peel, an eschalot chopped fine, an anchovie rubbed through a sieve, and mixed over a fire for five minutes.

N. B. The lobsters or oysters are to be half boiled before they are chopped.

FORCEMEAT PATTIES.

Sheet the pans as for chicken patties, but instead of bits of bread fill them with a light forcemeat, well-seasoned. Cover and bake them, and serve them up with a little cullis added to the forcemeat.

PULPTON OF CHICKEN, RABBITS, &c.

Take veal suet or beef marrow, chop it, put it into a stewpan over a fire till melted, and when lukewarm mix it to some flour with a little water into a paste. Knead it well, and rub fresh butter round the inside of a mould of any shape and strew vermicelli upon the butter. Then sheet the mould over the vermicelli with the paste rolled of the thickness of half an inch, and within the paste put a layer of chicken, slices of sweetbread, mushrooms, artichoke bottoms, truffles, and morels; after which put a little light forcemeat round with a paste over, close it well, egg, and bake it gently. When to be served up, turn it out of the mould, make a little hole in the top, and put into it a good cullis.

N. B. Cut the chicken in pieces and blanch them: the sweetbreads, truffles, and morels to be blanched, and afterwards season with pepper and salt.

FISHMEAT GRE PIE.

Bone and cut into pieces a male carp; make it into a forcemeat with some of the roe, parsley, thyme, eschalots chopped very fine, a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, pepper, salt, a little beaten spice, half a pint of cream, four eggs, and crumb of french bread. Afterwards take pieces of cel, salmon, and skate, pass them with sweet herbs, pepper, salt, lemon juice, and a bit of butter. When they are cold, put some of the forcemeat at the bottom of a deep dish, and mix with the fish some stewed mushrooms, button onions, truffles and morells blanched, and the roe cut into pieces, and put them into the dish with more forcemeat round the top; then cover with puff paste, ornament with leaves of paste, egg it, and bake it. When it is to be served up cut a small hole in the center of the top, and add a good cullis.

RAISED HAM PIE, WITH DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING A RAISED CRUST.

Take water boiling hot, put a piece of fresh butter into it, and mix it with flour into a paste, and as it gets cold knead it several times, taking care it is of a good consistence but not too stiff, and then raise it into any shape you please. Have ready part of a ham boiled till half done, trim it to the shape of the crust, which must be big enough to put some light forcemeat at the bottom and round the ham when in the pie. Cover it with the same kind of paste, pinch round the top, and egg and ornament it. Just before it is set in the oven add half a pint of Maderia wine, bake it gently for four hours, and when it is to be served up add some good cullis, but be careful it is not too salt.

N. B. the following crust instead of the above may be used for chicken pies, as it will be more agreeable for eating. Rub with a sufficient quantity of flour for a middling sized pie, the yolks of two raw eggs; then add boiling water with plenty of chopt suet in it and knead it well.

RAISED CHICKEN PIE.

Cut chicken into pieces, and put them into a stew-pan, either blanched or not, with a bit of fresh butter, lemon juice, pepper and salt, parsley, thyme, eschalots chopped very fine, and a little pounded mace. When the chicken are half done put them on a dish, and when cold raise the crust, put light forcemeat at the botom, the chicken upon it, and more forcemeat round the top. Cover, bake gently, and when served up, cut off the lid, and add a ragout of sweet breads, cocks' combs, &c. &c.

N. B. Rabbits and veal may be done in the same manner; as also pigeons, but they are to be put into the crust whole.

FLAT CHICKEN PIE (or Tourte).

Cut chicken into pieces, blanch them, and season with pepper and salt: then put a light forcemeat at the bottom of a deep dish, and upon it some of the chicken, some slices of throat sweetbreads seasoned, some stewed mushrooms, truffles and morels, and upon them the remainder of the chicken. Cover it with a puff paste, then egg and ornament the top with leaves of paste of the same kind, bake it of a nice colour, and when it is to be served up put into it a good cullis.

N. B. The chicken may be passed with sweet herbs, &c. and when cold put into the dish as above. Rabbits also may be done in the same manner.

PIGEON PIE.

Wash the pigeons in cold water and wipe them dry; then put into a deep dish a rump steak cut into pieces, beat with a chopper, and seasoned with pepper and salt, and upon it the pigeons with the liver, &c. seasoned. Add also some yolk of hard eggs, cover it with puff paste, egg and ornament it with small leaves, bake it, and add some cullis.

N. B. The pigeons may be stuffed with forcemeat, and instead of beef-steaks, slices of veal and ham will make a good substitute. Larks, partridges, or pheasants may be done the same way.

RAISED TURKEY PIE WITH A TONGUE.

Bone a turkey, and have ready a boiled-pickled tongue; pare the principal part, put it into the center of the turkey with some light forcemeat well-seasoned, and some slices of throat sweet-breads. Sew it up, and put it into boiling water for ten minutes. Then make a crust with raised paste big enough to receive the turkey; which, when cold, put in with bards of fat bacon upon it and forcemeat at the bottom of the crust; then cover and ornament it as a raised chicken pie, and bake it. When it is to be served up, take off the lid and the bards of bacon, glaze the breast lightly, and add a cullis or green truffle sauce.

N. B. Pullets, chickens, partridges, and pheasants, may be done in the same manner; but instead of the tongue put in whole green truffles pared, and some truffles pounded with the forcemeat, and when served up, add a good cullis. Or, instead of a raised crust, they may be put in a dish and covered with puff paste, &c.

RAISED MACARONI PIE.

Raise a crut and ornament and bake it, and when it is to be served up have ready some hot macaroni stewed and a white fricassee of chicken in separate stewpans. Put them alternately into the pie, strew a little grated parmezau cheese over it, put a slip of paper round the edge of the pie to prevent from burning, and colour the cheese with a salamander.

RAISED BEEF STEAK PIE.

Take prime steaks of a rump of beef, cut the skin from the fat, beat the steaks with a chopper, cut them into middling-sized pieces, then pass them with a bit of fresh butter, pepper, salt, lemon juice, and eschalots chopped, and when they are half done put them into a dish till cold. Blanch oysters, strain them, and preserve the liquor; then raise a crust, put a layer of steak at the bottom some oysters upon it, and so alternately; cover the pie, ornament and bake it. When it is to be served up put into it a good cullis, with the oyster liquor and some ketchup mixed with it.

N. B. In the same manner put steaks and oysters into a deep dish, and cover them with puff paste

VEAL PIE.

Cut the best end of a loin of veal into thin chops, take off part of the bone and some of the fat from the kidney, season with pepper and salt, put them into a deep dish with yolks of boiled eggs, cover with puff paste, egg and ornament with leaves, bake it, and when it is to be served up, put into it some good consommé.

FISH PIË.

Clean and cut fresh salmon, cod, turbot, soles, sturgeon, or haddocks, into middling-sized pieces; then roll them into a mixture of parsley, thyme, and eschalots chopped fine, some beaten spices, powder of mushrooms or truffles, pepper, and salt; put them into a deep dish with some light force-meat round; cover with puff paste; egg, and ornament the top with leaves of paste, bake it till the fish is thoroughly done: a quarter of an hour before it is to be sent to table, put into it some good strong cullis with a little Madeira wine added to it.

PORK PIE.

Take a piece of loin of pork with the rind and part of the under bone cut off; then cut into chops, season them with pepper and salt, cover them with puff paste, bake the pie, and when it is to be served up put into it cullis, with the essence of two onions and a little mustard mixed with it.

N. B. I have directed puff paste to be used for meat pies, it having the best appearance when baked; but there is another mode which may be thought preferable; and which is, to mix together half a pound of sifted flour, six ounces of fresh butter, the yolks and whites of two eggs well beaten, and a little milk and salt; then knead it well.

WOODCOCK PIE.

Bone three birds, fill them with light forcemeat, with the entrails and some green truffles pounded in it; put them into a deep dish with a little forcemeat round; cover with puff paste; egg and ornament the top, and when three parts baked, add to the birds a sauce made with the liquor of the bones of the woodcocks reduced almost to a glaize; then add it to a gill of cullis, half a gill of Madeira wine; season to the palate with cayenne pepper and lemon juice.

N. B. Snipes may be done the same way.

HARE PIE.

Case a young hare, wash it clean, cut it into pieces, daub it with slips of fat bacon rolled in sweet herbs and eschalots chopped very fine, and a small quantity of beaten spices, pepper and salt; put them into a stewpan with a gill of red port, and a pint of veal broth. Let the hare stew till three parts done, then put it into a deep dish with a quarter of the liquor and some forcemeat round; when cool cover it with puff paste, bake it till tender; in the mean time strain the remainder of the liquor, season to the palate, thicken it with a little flour and water, reduce it to a moderate quantity and put it into the pie.

PUFF FOR A JOURNEY.

Roll out a length of paste, the same quality as for a venison pasty; put a layer of forcemeat upon it, then slices of veal, ham, and a fowl boned, cut into pieces, and well seasoned; fold the paste together, wash it with yolk of egg, garnish it with the remainder of the paste and bake it ; when it is done make a small opening in the top, and put into it some good cullis.

N. B. Or it may be rolled up instead of folding the paste together, and the ends well closed ; and when baked to be set upright on one end, and the cullis put in the center.

RAISED PIE WITH RUMP OF BEEF AND TRUFFLES.

Bone a small fat rump of beef, daub it with slips of fat bacon, put it into a raised crust with light forcemeat and plenty of whole peeled green truffles round it ; cover it with the paste, garnish and bake it two hours ; then add a sauce made with a pint of veal broth, a gill of red port, half a gill of brandy, half a gill of lemon pickle, a bay leaf, a few chopped eschalots, and cayenne pepper, make it of a proper thickness and strain it. Two hours afterwards cut the top off the pie, skim it free from fat, glaize the rump and serve it to table.

VENISON PASTY.

Bone a neck of venison, cut the meat into good sized pieces ; then put them with the bones into a stewpan, add a quart of veal broth, half a pint of red port, some chopped onions or eschalots, pepper, salt, a little quantity of beaten spices, and lemon juice ; let all stew gently ; when the meat is three parts done, put it into a deep dish with one half of the liquor, and, when nearly cool, cover and garnish it with a paste made with flour, plenty of butter or beef marrow, two eggs beat up with water, and salt, to be mixed well together, bake the venison till tender : and three quarters of an hour before it is to be sent to table, let the other half of the liquor be strained and thickened, and then put into the pasty.

EEL PIE.

Skin and clean the eels, cut them into pieces of two inches long, pass them with chopped parsley and eschalots, a little grated nutmeg, pepper, salt, and lemon juice, for five minutes; then put a little light forcemeat at the bottom of a deep dish, put the eels over it, cover with puff paste, bake it, and put into it some benshamelle or cullis.

MUTTON PIE.

Take off the bone from part of a loin of mutton, cut it into chops, and upon them some slices of peeled potatoes (and if approved, some slices of onions); put the remaining chops over, cover with puff paste, bake it, and add some cullis. Or the chops may be passed with sweet herbs, &c. and when cold put into small or large raised crusts with the above vegetables, and when baked add some cullis.

SEA PIE.

Take small pieces of salt beef and pickle pork, veal and mutton chops, a goose or a duck cut into pieces, onions and potatoes cut into thick slices, and season with a little salt and plenty of pepper. Make a paste with beef suet chopped fine, some flour and water; knead them well together, then roll out the paste, sheet a large bowl with it, put in the above ingredients alternately, cover it with paste, put a cloth over, and boil four hours. When it is to be served up take off the cloth, make a little hole in the top, and add a good consommé.

RISSOLES.

Cut into small slips breast of fowl, lean ham, pickle cucumbers, and anchovies; add to them consommé, cayenne pepper, breadcrumbs, and raw yolks of egg. Simmer them over a fire for five minutes, and be careful not to let the mixture burn. Then put the mixture on a plate, and when cold, cut into pieces, and dip them in yolk of raw egg, afterwards in fine breadcrumbs, and mould them with the hands into what form you please. Have ready boiling lard, fry them of a nice colour, drain them dry, and serve them up with fried parsley under.

TO FRY PARSLEY.

Take fresh gathered parsley, pick, wash, and drain it very dry with a cloth. Have ready clean boiling lard, put the parsley into it, keep stirring with a skimmer, and when a little crisp, take it out, put it on a drainer, and strew salt over.

PUFFS WITH CHICKEN, &c.

Chop breast of fowl, lean ham, and half an anchovie; then add a small quantity of parsley, lemon peel, and eschalots, cut very fine, with a little cayenne and pounded mace. Put them into a stewpan with a ragout spoonful of benshamelle, set them over a fire for five minutes; then put the mixture on a plate, and when cold roll out puff paste thin, cut it into square pieces, put some of the mixture on them, fold the paste, run a jagger iron round to make them in form of a puff, fry them in boiling lard, and serve them up with fried parsley under.

WINGS AND LEGS OF FOWLS WITH COLOURS.

Cut the legs from a good-sized fowl and the wings as large as possible, leaving no breast bone; then fill the cavities with light forcemeat, sew them up neat, blanch them, drain them dry, wash the tops with raw white of egg, and lay a small quantity of forcemeat on it, and work a sprig with slips of lean ham and white and yellow omlets of eggs. Then put them into a stewpan with a little stock, cover the pan close, and stew them gently till done and the liquor nearly reduced. When they are to be served up, put under a cullis boiled almost to a glaize.

N. B. They may be done in the same manner and served up cold; or put round them savory jelly, instead of cullis, for an ornamental supper.

WINGS AND LEGS LARDED AND GLAIZED.

Cut the wings and legs and force them as before directed, then lard very neat and blanch them, and stew them with a little stock. When they are to be served up, glaize the larding, and put under a strong cullis, or sorrel sauce, or benshamelle.

N. B. They may be done likewise in the above manner, and served up cold for a ball supper.

FOWL A LA MENEHOUT.

Take the bones out of the legs and wings, and draw them in; then split the fowl from the top to the bottom of the back, skewer it down close, pass it with chopped parsley, thyme, and eschalots, pepper, salt, and lemon juice. When three parts done put it on a dish, and when cold wash it with yolk of egg with a paste brush, strew breadcrumbs over, and broil gently till done, and of a light brown colour. Serve it up with a cullis sauce under, with ketchup and lemon pickle mixed in it.

PULLED CHICKEN (or Turkey).

Boil a fowl till three parts done, and let it stand till cold; then take off the skin, cut the white meat into slips, put them into a stewpan, add a little cream, a very small quantity of grated lemon peel, and pounded mace, cayenne, salt, one eschalot chopped, a little lemon juice, and a spoonful of consommé; thicken with a little flour and water, simmer it over a fire ten minutes, during which time score the legs and rump, season them with pepper and salt, broil them of a good colour, and serve them up over the pulled chicken.

ANOTHER WAY.

Cut the fowl as above, and add to it some ben-shamelle; or, instead of thickening with flour and water as the above, add, five minutes before it is to be served up, a leason of two eggs.

PULLET A LA MEMORANCY.

Bone it, leaving the legs and wings on; then season the inside with pepper, salt, and beaten spice. Put a light forcemeat into it, sew it up, truss it as for roasting, set it with hot water, lard it neat; and roast it gently with a veal caul over. When it is done, take off the caul, glaize the larding and serve it up with white ragooed sweetbreads round it, or with strong cullis or plain benshamelle.

CHICKENS WITH LEMON SAUCE.

Boil two chickens as white as possible, or braise them with bards of bacon over them; and when they are done wipe them dry and pour the sauce over. Or the sauce may be put round the chickens, and upon the breast of them put leaves of scalded tarragon as fancy directs.

TO MAKE LEMON SAUCE.

Pare two lemons and cut them into very small pieces in the form of dice; then take the liver and scalded parsley chopped, put them into a stewpan, add some boiling benshamelle and a little melted butter, and simmer over a fire for two minutes.

LEGS AND WINGS OF FOWLS WITH PARSLEY.

Cut the legs full, and the wings, with the meat of each side of the breast, to be cut off with them; then bone and stuff the legs with light forcemeat coloured with boiled parsley rubbed through a tamis cloth; sew them up, dip them in white of egg, roll them in breadcrumbs, put them in two paper cases—a leg and wing in each; bake them; when they are to be served up, put round them a sauce made with mushrooms and lean of ham chopped very fine, added to some cullis and a spoonful of white wine; let the liquor be reduced almost to a glaize. Fried parsley to be served upon a plate.

FRICASSEE OF CHICKENS OR RABBITS (white).

Cut them into pieces and blanch and drain them dry; then put them into a stewpan, with a little veal stock, a blade of mace, and a middling-sized whole onion. Stew them gently till three parts done; then add slices of blanched throat sweetbreads, stewed white button mushrooms, egg balls, and pieces of artichoke bottoms. When they are all nearly stewed, season with salt and a little lemon juice, add a leason of three eggs, simmer it over a fire for five minutes, taking care not to let it curdle, and serve it up very hot, with the mace and onion taken out.

N. B. Instead of a leason, the stock it is stewed in may be almost reduced, and a benschamelle added with the sweetbreads, mushrooms, &c.

CHICKENS OR TURKIES WITH CELERY.

Boil or braise them, and when they are to be served up wipe them dry, and pour over them white celery sauce. Or they may be served with brown celery sauce under them, and the breast of the poultry glaized. (See Celery Sauce, white and brown.)

TURKIES, PULLETS, OR CHICKENS, WITH OYSTER SAUCE.

Boil them, wipe them dry, and when they are to be served up pour over them white oyster sauce.

TO MAKE WHITE OYSTER SAUCE.

Blanch large oysters till half done, and strain and preserve the liquor; then beard and wash them, and put the liquor, free from sediment, into a stewpan. Add to it two ounces of fresh butter, half a pint of good cream, a piece of lemon peel, and a blade of mace ; put it over a fire, and when it nearly boils add mixed flour and water to thicken it properly. Season to the palate with lemon juice, salt, and a little cayenne pepper if approved ; then strain it through a fine hair sieve to the oysters, and boil them gently five minutes.

N. B. In the same manner may be done stewed oysters for dishes, only serve them up with sippets of bread round.

QUEEN SAUCE FOR CHICKENS, &c.

To the crumb of a penny French roll add half a pint of boiling veal broth, two ounces of jordan almonds blanched and pounded very fine, the yolks of two boiled eggs, and the white meat of a cut fowl pounded, rub these ingredients through a tamis, add a little cream, and season to the palate, make it boiling hot when to be put over the chickens, &c.

CHICKENS WITH PEAS.

Truss them as for boiling, blanch them five minutes, and wash them clean, then braise them till tender with a little veal stock and bards of fat bacon or with white paper over them. When they are to be served up wipe them dry, glaize the tops lightly, and put pea sauce under.

ANOTHER WAY TO STEW CHICKENS WITH PEAS.

Cut the chickens into pieces, blanch and drain them dry, and put them into a stewpan with a little veal stock ; then stew them till tender and the liquor almost reduced. When they are to be served up, put them on a dish, and the peas sauce over.

FRICASSEE OF CHICKENS OR RABBITS (brown).

Cut the chickens into pieces, and fry them in a little lard till of a light brown colour; then drain them with a cloth very dry; after which put them into a stewpan, add button mushrooms stewed, pieces of artichoke bottoms, blanched truffles, morells, egg balls, and some good-seasoned cullis. Set them over a moderate fire, stew them gently till done, and serve up with fried oysters round them.

TO FRY OYSTERS FOR A DISH.

Open twenty-four large oysters, blanch them with their own liquor; and when three parts done strain them, and preserve the liquor; then wash and let them drain. In the mean while make a batter with four table spoonfuls of flour, two eggs, a little pepper and salt, and their liquor. Beat it well with a wooden spoon or a whisk for five minutes. Put the oysters into the batter, mix them lightly, and have ready boiling lard. Take the oysters out singly with a fork, put them into the lard, and fry them of a nice brown colour. Then put them on a drainer, strew over a small quantity of salt, and serve them up. If they are for a dish put fried parsley under them, or stewed spinach.

DIRECTIONS FOR POULTRY, &c. PLAIN BOILED.

Let it be observed that turkies, chickens, and meats, intended to be plain boiled, should be soaked in cold water, and put afterwards into plenty of boiling pump water, kept skimmed, and preserved as white as possible. The time they will take dressing depends on a little practice, as in roasting.

Be particular in trimming the meats neat, and in trussing the poultry. The carving likewise should be carefully attended to, which is frequently expressed by the phrase of cutting into picces.

JUGGED HARE.

Case the hare, cut off the shoulders and legs, and the back into three pieces. Daub them well with fat bacon, and put them into a stewpot with the trimmings. Add to them allspice, mace, whole pepper, a little of each; a small clove of garlick, three onions, two bayleaves, parsley, thyme, and savory, tied together in a small bunch; a quart of veal stock, three gills of red port; and simmer them over a fire till three parts done. Then take out the shoulders, legs, and back: put them into another stewpan, strain the liquor to them, add some passed flour and butter to thicken it a little. Let it stew till tender, skim it free from fat, season with cayenne, salt and lemon juice, and serve it up in a deep dish.

GLAIZED HARE.

Case the hare, bone it as whole as possible, wash it, and fill the inside with light forcemeat: then sew it up, and truss it as for roasting. Lard the back with bacon, the same as a fricando veal: cover it with a veal caul, and roast it very gently. When it is to be served up, take off the caul, glaize the larding, and put strong cullis, with a gill of red port boiled with it, under the hare.

DUCK AUX NAVES.

Bone a tame duck as whole as possible, and season the inside with beaten spices, pepper, and salt; then draw in the legs and wings, and fill the inside with light forcemeat. Stew it up, braise it in a pint of veal stock, cover it with white paper and the cover of the stewpan. Let it stew gently till tender, and the liquor almost reduced. When it is to be served up glaize the breast, and pour the sauce round it, which is to be made with turnips cut into shapes as for haricot; afterwards to be put into a stewpan and sweated with a bit of fresh butter till three parts done; then add a good culis and the essence in which the duck was braised. When it boils, skim free from fat, season to the palate, and stew the turnips till done.

A DUCK WITH CUCUMBERS.

The duck to be boned, braised, and served up in the same manner as the above, but instead of turnips put cucumber sauce, or peas, as for veal tendrons.

A DUCK A LA BENSAMELLE.

Bone, braise, and glaize the duck as mentioned in the preceding article, and when it is to be served up put a sauce round it made with heads of spruce grass boiled in a little veal stock, and when tender rub them through a tamis. Add the pulp to a small quantity of benshamelle, boil them together for five minutes, and let the sauce be very white and strong.

HASHED MUTTON FOR A DISH.

Take mutton ready dressed, cut it into thin slices, put them into a stewpan with slices of pickle cucumbers, or walnuts, or onions; then make a sauce with chopped eschalots or onions passed with a bit of fresh butter over a slow fire till three parts done: after which add a pint of veal stock, or gravy, and a little ketchup. Boil it ten minutes, season to the palate with cayenne pepper and salt; then strain it to the mutton, let it stew gently till thoroughly hot, and add a small quantity of liquid of colour.

N. B. In the same manner may be done beef; and when it is to be served up put the bones (which are to be seasoned with pepper and salt, and grilled) over the hash.

HASHED VENISON.

Take the part least done of ready dressed venison, cut it in slices, and put them into a stewpan; then pass a bit of fresh butter and flour and chopped eschalots over a slow fire for ten minutes, and add to them half a pint of red port, a pint and a half of veal stock, its own gravy if any, a little piece of lemon peel, cayenne pepper, salt, and lemon juice. Season to the palate, boil all together a quarter of an hour, and strain it to the venison.

Let it simmer gently till thoroughly hot.

N. B. The venison should not be put into the liquor above ten minutes before it is to be served up, by reason of the fat dissolving too much.

HASHED FOWLS.

Cut into pieces (very neat) ready dressed fowls, turkeys, or rabbits, and put them into a stewpan; then make a thickening with a bit of fresh butter, flour, and chopped eschalots or onions mixed over a slow fire. Discharge it with veal stock, add a little lemon pickle and ketchup, season to the palate, put a small quantity of liquid of colour, boil for ten minutes, strain to the poultry, and let it stew gently. When served up, there may be put a few pieces of the fowl grilled round it.

N. B. Instead of the thickening and veal stock, may be added cullis with lemon pickle and ketchup.

FOWL STEWED WITH RICE.

Truss a pullet as for boiling and stew it with a pint of veal broth till tender, and the liquor nearly reduced, with two blades of mace and some slices of onions. In the mean time wash, pick, and boil till half done, a quarter of a pound of rice; then strain it and add three ounces fresh butter, cayenne pepper, and salt to the palate, simmer it over a fire till done; then put the fowl into the center of a dish, the rice over it, and serve it up with benshamelle sauce over the rice, and likewise some leaves of baked puff paste to be put round.

SCOLLOPED POTATOES WITH MUTTON, &c.

Mould scollop shells with mashed potatoes, put them into a quick oven to bake of a good colour; then have ready some stewed mutton or beef collops well-seasoned; put them into the shapes, and serve them up very hot, or the collops may be put into the shapes of the potatoes, and covered with the same. Then bake and serve up with some cullis under.

ARTICHOAK BOTTOMS WITH FORCEMEAT.

Take six bottoms of artichoaks boiled and cleaned, wipe them dry, wash them afterwards with yolk of egg, put some light forcemeat over the egg, and upon that another bottom : then dip each double into yolk of egg, and strew fine bread crumbs over, fry them in boiling lard : when of a brown colour, drain dry, and serve them up with fried parsley round, or some good cullis under.

HASHED HARE, WILD FOWL, PHEASANTS, OR PARTRIDGES.

Cut the poultry into neat pieces, put them into a stewpan, and add a liquor made in the same manner as for venison ; or put cullis and red port with their own gravy.

BROILED BEEF STEAKS.

Take a small fat rump of beef, and cut off the fillet and the first two or three steaks ; then cut the remainder into steaks also, and cut the skin from the fat. Beat them with a chopper, and season with pepper and salt just before they are to be put on the gridiron, which should be well cleaned, and the steaks frequently turned. When they are done according to desire, serve them up on a hot dish with a little gravy under some scraped horseradish, chopped eschalots, and pickles, on small plates, and oyster sauce in a sauce boat, or with slices of onions dipped in batter and fried.

N. B. The fillet and outside steaks of the rump may be made into a pudding, in order to have prime steaks for broiling.

BEEF STEAK PUDDING.

Take flour, chopped suet, some milk, a little salt, and one egg, and mix them well together. Roll out the paste of half an inch thick, and sheet a bason or a bowl with it. Then trim the skin from the meat, beat the steaks well with a chopper, cut them into middling-sized pieces, season with pepper and salt, put them into the bason with blanched oysters and slices of potatoes alternately (or slices of onions, if approved). Cover the top with paste, and tie a cloth over the bason. Boil the pudding (if of a middling size) two hours; and when it is to be served up put into it a little cullis and ketchup.

RIBS OF BEEF WITH OYSTERS.

Take a piece of beef, two ribs, bone it, afterwards roll it round like a fillet of veal, and put forcemeat or stuffing in the middle, bind it round with tape; then cover it with veal cowl and paper, roast it, and ten minutes before it is to be served to table, take the cowl off: let the beef become a nice brown colour, and serve it up with oyster sauce round it, made in the same manner as for beef steaks.

OYSTER SAUCE FOR BEEF STEAKS.

Blanch a pint of oysters, and preserve their liquor; then wash and beard them, and put their liquor into a stewpan with India soy and ketchup, a small quantity of each, a gill of cullis, a quarter of a pound of fresh butter. Set them over a fire, and when nearly boiling thicken with flour and water; season to the palate with a little cayenne pepper, salt, and lemon juice; strain it to the oysters, and stew them gently five minutes.

TO DRESS MUTTON, LAMB, OR PORK CHOPS IN A PLAIN MANNER.

Cut a loin of mutton, or lamb, into chops of a middling thickness: beat them with a chopper; trim off a sufficient quantity of the bone and fat; then season with pepper and salt, broil them over a clear moderate fire, and serve them up very hot with gravy.

N. B. Lamb chops may have stewed spinach or fried parsley underneath.

TO DRESS VEAL CUTLETS.

Beat the cutlets with a chopper, and cut them into middling-sized pieces; then strew on each side of them a mixture of breadcrumbs, chopped parsley and thyme, grated nutmeg, pepper and salt, and broil them over a clear fire till done and of a nice colour. Serve them up with cullis sauce and ketchup in it, or stewed mushrooms and cullis. Rashers of broiled bacon and fried oysters (a few of each if approved) may be put round the cutlets or chops, which may be done in the same manner.

MINCED VEAL FOR A DISH.

Cut into small pieces ready dressed veal, put it into a stewpan, add to it a very small quantity of grated lemon peel and a little benshamelle: season to the palate with cayenne pepper, lemon juice, and salt: stew the veal gently ten minutes, and serve it up with sippets of bread round it either fried or plain.

MINCED VEAL ANOTHER WAY.

Add to the veal a little stock, one eschalot chopped fine, some grated nutmeg and grated lemon peel, a very small quantity of each. Season with cayenne pepper, lemon juice, and salt. Let it stew ten minutes, and just before it is to be served up add a leason of two eggs and cream, simmer them together five minutes, and be careful it does not burn nor curdle. Put it in a deep dish, and serve upon the mince two pickled sheeps' tongues which are boiled, pealed, and glaized. Sippets of bread, likewise, to be placed round.

PARTRIDGES OR PHEASANTS AU CHOUX.

Bone the birds, put into them some light forcemeat well-seasoned; sew them up, blanch and wipe them dry, and braise them in a pint of stock till tender; after which cut two savoy's into quarters and boil them till a fourth part done; then squeeze them and tie round with twine, put them into a stewpan, add a pint of stock, and boil them gently till done. Then take the savoy's out, cut off the strings, put the birds into the center of a dish, the savoy's round them, and set the dish in an oven or in a warm place covered over. Then mix the two liquors together, season to the palate with pepper, salt, and lemon juice. Make it of a proper thickness with flour and water, boil it till three parts reduced; add a little colour and strain it. When the birds are to be served up glaize their breasts lightly, and put the sauce over the savoy's.

PARTRIDGES OR PHEASANTS AUX OLIVES.

Bone the birds, and force and braise them in a small quantity of stock. When they are to be served up glaize the breasts lightly, and put stewed french olives; sauce round them, with the essence of the birds mixed in it, and a small quantity of garlick.

TURKEY WITH TRUFFLES.

Truss the turkey as for boiling, put some light forcemeat with truffles pounded with it into the cavity near the breast, and secure it from falling out. Then put slices of lemon, some salt, and bards of fat bacon on the breast, and white paper over it bound on with packthread, and roast gently (if a good-sized turkey) one hour and a half. When it is to be served up, take off the paper, glaize the breast, and put the truffle sauce round the turkey.

N. B. In the same manner may be done pullets, chickens, pheasants, or partridges.

TRUFFLE SAUCE FOR TURKIES, &c.

Put green truffles into water, clean them well with a hard brush, and cut the outside paring thinly off, trim them into shapes or round, put the trimmings into a marble mortar, pound them, and add to the forcemeat which is to be put into the cavity near the breast of the turkey. Then put the truffles into a stewpan with a pint of beef stock, stew them gently, and when the liquor is almost reduced add some cullis well-seasoned.

TURKEY WITH CHESNUTS.

Truss the turkey as for boiling, stuff it with light forcemeat and spanish chesnuts whole, and paper and roast it as a turkey with truffles. When it is to be served up, glaize the breast and put chesnut sauce to it, made with good cullis, and chesnuts, which should be boiled till half done, and then roasted in a frying pan till wholly done; after which let them be peeled and put into the cullis five minutes before the turkey is served up.

TURKEY WITH RAGOUT.

Stuff it in the plain way, boil it, and when it is to be served up put over the following sauce:—take slices of throat sweetbread, white button mushrooms stewed, artichoke bottoms boiled till half done and cut in halves, cocks combs boiled till done, a few egg balls scalded; add a good beshamelle, and stew them gently for ten minutes. Or, instead of beshamelle, there may be put to the above ingredients half a pint of veal stock, and let them all be boiled ten minutes; then add a leason of three eggs and cream, simmer them together five minutes more, and season with salt, lemon juice, and cayenne pepper.

RABBITS WITH ONIONS.

Boil them as white as possible, and when they are to be served up, wipe them dry and put over onion sauce, made thus:—take mild onions peeled and boiled till nearly done; then squeeze and chop them but not too small; add a bit of fresh butter, a little salt and flour, a sufficient quantity of cream to mix them, and a little white ground pepper, if approved. Let the sauce be of a good thickness, and simmered over a slow fire for ten minutes.

GLAIZED SWEETBREADS.

Lard very neat two heart sweetbreads, then blanch and braise or roast them; and when they are to be served up, glaize the top part, and put stewed endive under them, or truffle sauce.

MATELOTE OF RABBITS.

Cut them into pieces and blanch and wash them; then put them into a stewpan with a gill of water, cover close and preserve them as white as possible. When they are nearly done and the liquor almost reduced, which should not be of any colour, add half a pint of good benschamelle, a few whole boiled cocks combs, pickled cucumbers, ham, tongue, omlets of eggs (the same as for garnishing) cut into small squares, and a few stewed button mushrooms. Stew them together for ten minutes, and serve the matelote up directly.

SWEETBREADS EN ERISON.

To be done in the same manner as neck of veal, which see.

STEWED GIBLETS PLAIN.

Cut two pair of scalded goose giblets into pieces of two inches long; then blanch them, trim the bones from the ends, and wash the giblets; after which drain them dry, put them into a stewpan with half a pint of stock, cover the pan close, simmer over a slow fire till three parts done and the liquor nearly reduced, then add good seasoned cullis, and stew them till tender.

STEWED GIBLETS WITH PEAS.

Proceed as with the above, except, instead of plain cullis, take a pint of shelled young green peas, and sweat them till three parts done with a bit of fresh butter and a little salt; then add some cullis, put them to the giblets, and stew them till tender. If requisite put a little liquid of colour.

GREEN TRUFFLES FOR A DISH.

Well clean two pounds of green truffles; then put them into a stewpan with half a pint of stock, a gill of red port, and a little salt, and boil them gently half an hour. When they are to be served up, drain them dry and put them into a folded napkin. They are to be eaten with cold fresh butter, or with oil, vinegar, and cayenne pepper.

N. B. The liquor they were boiled in may be made into a cullis, and put into different sauces, such as haricot, ragout, or celery, &c.

RABBITS EN GALLETINE FOR A DISH.

Bone two rabbits, lay them flat, put a little light forcemeat upon them, and slips of lean ham, breast of fowl, and omlets of eggs white and yellow, the same as for garnishing. Roll the rabbits up tight and sew them, lard the top part with slips of fat bacon very neat, and blanch and braise them. When they are to be served up glaize the larding, and put good cullis under them.

HAM BRAISED.

Take a mellow smoked ham perfectly clean ; then well trim and put it into a braising pan ; after which, add to it four quarts of water, a bottle of madeira wine, and a few bay leaves. Cover the pan close, and simmer the ham over a moderate fire till very tender. Then wipe it quite dry, take off the rind, glaize the top part, and serve it up on a large dish with stewed spinach on one side and mashed turnips on the other. Or, a ham may be ornamented with paste made in the same manner as for a raised pie cut into leaves ; then dip them into white of egg and put them upon the glaizing in the form of a flower : afterwards put it into a moderate heated oven for half an hour.

N. B. Hams may be plain boiled and served up in the same manner.

Pickled tongues may be stuffed with marrow and boiled, then peeled, and served up with the above vegetables and in the same manner.

JERUSALEM ARTICHOKE STEWED.

Pare and cut them into halves, boil them in a little consommé till nearly done and the liquor almost reduced ; then add a bit of fresh butter, salt, flour, and cream, a small quantity of each. Set them over a fire for five minutes, and serve them up with fried bread round.

JERUSALEM ARTICHOKE ANOTHER WAY.

Pare and cut them into shapes as for haricot, and fry them in boiling-hot lard till of a light brown colour ; then drain them dry, put them into a stewpan, and add a little strong cullis with a small quantity of vinegar and mustard mixed in it. Serve them up with fried bread round.

CAULIFLOWER WITH PARMEZAN CHEESE.

Cut off the leaves and stalk, boil it in salt and water till nearly done, and drain till dry. Have ready a dish with fried bread dipped in white of raw egg, and put round the rim. Set the flower in the center of the dish, and pour over it a sauce made with boiling-hot benshamelle, and, three minutes before it is to be put over the cauliflower, add grated parmezan cheese.

CAULIFLOWER A LA SAUCE.

Boil the flower, and either serve it up whole or in pieces, placed round each other in a dish. The sauce over it to be boiling-hot and of a good thickness, made with strong cullis, a little vinegar, and fresh butter mixed together.

N. B. Broccoli may be done in the same manner.

CAULIFLOWER A LA CREAM.

Boil the flower and pour over it the following sauce: Take a gill of consomé and a table spoonful of vinegar, which put into a stewpan and set over a fire till hot, and five minutes before it is to be sent to table add a leason of two eggs and a gill of cream.

STEWED ARTICHOKE BOTTOMS.

Boil six artichokes till half done; then take the leaves and choke away, trim the bottoms neat with a knife, or cut them with a shape; after which put them into a stewpan, add half a pint of stock, a little salt and lemon juice, and boil them gently till done. When they are to be served up wipe them dry, put them into the center of a dish with fried bread round the rim, and a strong bright cullis over them, or benshamelle.

FRENCH BEANS A LA CREAM FOR A DISH.

Cut young beans in slips, boil them in plenty of water and salt to preserve them green, and when they are done drain them dry. Then put into a stewpan two ounces of fresh butter, the yolks of three eggs beat up in a gill of cream, and set over a slow fire. When it is hot add a table spoonful of vinegar and the beans, simmer all together for five minutes, and keep stirring the beans with a wooden spoon to prevent the mixture from burning or curdling.

STEWED CARDOONS.

Cut the heads in pieces, take off the outside skin, wash, and scald them; then put them into a stewpan, and add a little stock to cover them, boil till three parts done and the liquor almost reduced, then add a small quantity of benshamelle and stew them gently till done. Serve them up with sippets of fried bread and stewed watercresses alternately round the rim of the dish, and the cardoons in the center. Or they may be done in the same manner with cullis instead of benshamelle.

VEGETABLES IN A MOULD.

Sheet the inside of an oval jelly or cake mould with bards of fat bacon; then put upright alternately round the inside of the bacon slips of cleaned turnips, carrots, pickled cucumbers, and celery and asparagus heads. Lay a forcemeat at the bottom and round the inside of the vegetables, filling the center with stewed beef tails with the bones taken out, or with small pieces of veal or mutton passed with sweet herbs, pepper, salt, and lemon juice. Cover it with forcemeat, wash it with yolk of egg, and bake it. When it is to be served up turn it gently out of the mould into a deep dish, take off the bacon, make a little hole at the top, and add a small quantity of good cullis.

BROILED MUSHROOMS.

Clean with a knife fresh forced mushrooms, and wash and drain them dry. Then make a case with a sheet of writing paper, rub the inside well with fresh butter, and fill it with the mushrooms. Season them with pepper and salt, put them upon a baking plate over a slow fire, cover them with a stewpot cover with some fire upon it, and when the mushrooms are nearly dry, serve them up very hot.

STEWED MUSHROOMS (brown.)

Clean with a knife a pottle of fresh forced mushrooms, put them into water, and when they are to be stewed take them out with the hands to avoid the sediment. Then put them into a stewpan with an ounce and an half of fresh butter, a little salt, and the juice of half a lemon. Cover the stewpan close, put it over a fire, and let the mushrooms boil for five minutes. Then thicken them with a little flour and water mixed, add a small quantity of liquid of colour (some cayenne if approved), and stew them gently for five minutes more.

STEWED MUSHROOMS (white).

Let the same process be followed as above : but instead of adding liquid of colour put to them a gill of good cream.

MASHED TURNIPS.

Pare and boil them till three parts done ; then squeeze them between two plates, put them into a stewpan, add flour, fresh butter, cream, and salt, a little of each. Mix them well over a fire, stew them gently for five minutes, and preserve them as white as possible ; if approved, a little powder sugar may be added.

POTATOES CREAMED.

Pare good potatoes, cut them into quarters, trim them round, and put them into a stewpan. Boil them gently till half done, drain them dry, add to them cream, salt, and fresh butter, a small quantity of each, or some benshamelle. Stew them very gently till they are done, and be careful they do not break.

STEWED WATERCRESSES.

Pick and wash twelve bunches of water-cresses, boil them till half done, and drain and squeeze them dry ; then chop and put them into a stewpan, add to them cullis, cream, salt, pepper, and flour, a little of each. Stew them gently ten minutes and serve them up with fried bread round.

A NEAT DISH OF VEGETABLES.

Wash a dish with white of raw egg, then make four divisions in it with fried bread, and put alternately in each the following vegetables:—in the first stewed spinach; in the second, mashed turnips; in the third, mashed potatoes; and in the fourth, slices of carrots and some button onions blanched; afterwards stew them in a little cullis, and when they are put into the dish let the essence adhere to them: or in the fourth partition put pieces of cauliflower or heads of broccoli.

N. B. Instead of fried bread to make the divisions, may be used mashed potatoes and yolks of eggs mixed together, and put on a dish in as many partitions as approved; afterwards baked till of a nice colour, and served up with any kind of stewed vegetable alternately.

VEGETABLE PIE.

Cut celery heads two inches long, turnips and carrots into shapes, some peeled button onions or two Spanish onions, artichoke bottoms cut into quarters, pieces of cauliflowers or heads of broccoli, and heads of large asparagus. Let all the vegetables be washed clean; then boil each separately in a sufficient quantity of water to cover them, and as they get tender strain the liquor into one stewpan and put the vegetables into another. Then add to their essence half a pint of strong consommé, thicken it with flour and water, season to the palate with cayenne pepper, salt, and lemon juice; add also a little colour. Let it boil ten minutes and strain it to the vegetables; then simmer them together, and serve them up in a raised pie crust, or in a deep dish with a raised crust baked round it, two inches high.

FRIED POTATOES.

Pare and slice potatoes half an inch thick; then wipe them dry, flour, and put them into boiling hot lard or dripping, and fry them of a light brown colour. Then drain them dry, sprinkle a little salt over, and serve them up directly with melted butter in a sauce boat.

FRIED ONIONS WITH PARMEZAN CHEESE.

Pare six large mild onions, and cut them into round slices of half an inch thick. Then make a batter with flour, half a gill of cream, a little pepper, salt, and three eggs, beat up for ten minutes; after which add a quarter of a pound of parmezan cheese grated fine and mixed well together, to which add the onions. Have ready boiling lard; then take the slices of onions out of the batter with a fork singly, and fry them gently till done and of a nice brown colour. Drain them dry, and serve them up placed round each other. Melted butter with a little mustard in it to be served in a sauce boat.

PICKLE TONGUE FORCED.

Boil it till half done, then peel it, and cut a piece out of the under part from the center, and put it into a marble mortar. Then add three ounces of beef marrow, half a gill of cream, the yolks of two eggs, a few breadcrumbs, a little pepper, and a spoonful of madeira wine. Pound them well together, fill the cavity in the tongue with it, sew it up, cover it with veal caul, and roast till tender, or boil it.

STEWED ENDIVE.

Trim off the green part of endive heads, wash and cut them into pieces, and scald them till half done; then squeeze, chop, and put them into a stewpan; add a small quantity of strong cullis, stew it till tender, and serve it up in a sauce boat, or it may be put under roast mutton.

FORCED CUCUMBERS.

Pare fresh gathered cucumbers of a middling size; then cut them into halves, take out the seeds with a knife, fill the cavity with forcemeat, and bind the two halves together with strong thread. Put them into a stewpan with vinegar, salt, and veal stock, a small quantity of each. Set them over a fire, simmer them till three parts done, and reduce the liquor; then add with it a strong cullis, put it to the cucumbers, and stew them gently till done.

TO STEW PEAS FOR A DISH.

Put a quart of fresh shelled young peas into a stewpan, add to them a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, middling sized onion sliced very fine, a cos or cabbage lettuce washed and cut into pieces, and a very little salt. Cover the pan close, put it over a moderate fire, and sweat the peas till half done. Make them of a proper thickness with flour and water, add a spoonful of essence of ham, season to the palate with cayenne pepper, and add a small lump of sugar if approved. Let the peas stew gently till tender, being careful not to let them burn.

SALAD OF ASPARAGUS.

Scale and cut off the heads of large asparagus, boil them till nearly done, strain, and put them into cold water for five minutes, and drain them dry; afterwards lay them in rows on a dish, put slices of lemon round the rim, and mix well together a little mustard, oil, vinegar, cayenne pepper, and salt, and put it over the asparagus just before they are to be eaten.

ASPARAGUS PEAS.

Scale sprue grass, cut it into pieces the bigness of peas as far as the green part extends from the heads, and wash and put them into a stewpan. To a quart of grass peas add half a pint of hot water lightly salted, and boil them till three parts done; after which strain and preserve the liquor, which boil down till nearly reduced, and put to it three ounces of fresh butter, half a gill of cream, a little sifted sugar, flour, and water sufficient to make it of a proper thickness; add the peas, serve them up with the top of a French roll toasted and buttered put under them in a dish.

ANOTHER WAY.

Boil the peas in salt and water till nearly done, strain and put them into a stewpan, add to them a little sifted sugar, two ounces of fresh butter, a table spoonful of essence of ham, half a gill of cream, with two yolks of raw eggs beat up in it; stew them gently five minutes, and be careful they do not burn. Serve them up in the same manner as the above.

N. B. Large heads of asparagus may be done in the same manner whole.

STEWED ASPARAGUS FOR SAUCE.

Scale sprue or large asparagus, then cut off the heads as far as they are eatable, boil them till nearly done, strain them, and pour cold water over to preserve them green. Then make (boiling) a good strong cullis, and put in the heads five minutes before the sauce is served up, which may be put over tendrons of veal, lamb, &c.

N. B. Some tops of sprue grass may be boiled in a little stock till tender, and rubbed through a tamis. The pulp to be put to the cullis before the heads are added.

DIRECTIONS FOR VEGETABLES.

It is necessary to remember, that in dressing vegetables of every kind, they should be gathered fresh, picked clean, trimmed or pared neatly, and washed in several waters. Those that are to be plain boiled should be put into plenty of boiling water and salt. If they are not to be used directly, when they are three parts done put them into cold water for five minutes, such as spinach, greens, cauliflowers, and brocoli, as it preserves their colour; and when they are to be served up put them again into boiling water till done, then drain them dry.

N. B. Potatoes and carrots are best steamed.

PICKLED OYSTERS.

Put two dozen of large oysters into a stewpan, over a fire with their liquor only, and boil them five minutes; then strain the liquor into another stewpan, and add to it a bay leaf, a little cayenne pepper, salt, a gill and a half of vinegar, half a gill of ketchup, a blade of mace, a few allspice, and a bit of lemon peel. Boil it till three parts reduced, then beard and wash the oysters, put them to the pickle and boil them together two minutes. When they are to be served up place the oysters in rows, and strain the liquor over them. Garnish the dish with slices of lemon or barberries.

OYSTER ATLETS.

Blanch throat sweetbreads, and cut them into slices; then take rashers of bacon the bigness of the slices of the sweetbreads, and as many large oysters blanched as there are pieces of sweetbread and bacon. Put the whole into a stewpan with a bit of fresh butter, parsley, thyme, and eschalots, chopped very fine, pepper, salt, and lemon juice, a small quantity of each. Put them over a slow fire, and simmer them five minutes; then lay them on a dish, and when a little cool, put upon a small wooden or silver skewer a slice of sweetbread, a slice of bacon, and an oyster, and so alternately till the skewers are full; then put breadcrumbs over them, which should be rubbed through a hair sieve, and broil the atlets gently till done and of a light brown colour. Serve them up with a little cullis under them, together with the liquor from the blanched oysters reduced and added to it.

SCOLLOP OYSTERS.

Blanch the oysters and strain them; then add to their liquor, which must be free from sediment, a good piece of fresh butter, a little pepper and salt, some lemon peel and grated nutmeg, a small quantity of each. Then beard and wash the oysters, add them to the ingredients, simmer them over a fire five minutes, and put the oysters into scollop shells with the liquor. If there be more than sufficient, boil it till nearly reduced and add it; then put fine breadcrumbs over, smooth them with a knife, and shake over the breadcrumbs with a paste brush, a little sweet oil, bake or set them over a fire upon a gridiron for half an hour, and colour the top part with a salamander.

SCOLLOP OYSTERS ANOTHER WAY.

Put some fine breadcrumbs and sweet oil together; then mould the shells with the mixture, bake of a nice colour. Ten minutes before to be served up, fill the shells with stewed oysters, done in the same manner as above, and when they are to be sent to table, pour over the oysters a little hot cream which has been boiled down.

OYSTER LOAVES.

Take small French rasped rolls, and cut a little piece off the top part; then take the crumb entirely out, and afterwards fry the case and tops in boiling lard only till they are crisp and of a light colour. Drain them dry, keep them warm, and just before they are to be served up put oysters into them, done in the same manner as for scollops, with the top of the rolls over.

RAGOUT OF SWEETBREADS (brown).

Take throat sweetbreads blanched and cut into slices; morells blanched, cut into halves, and washed free from grit; some stewed mushrooms, egg balls, artichoke bottoms, or jerusalem artichokes, boiled till half done and cut into pieces; green truffles pared, cut into slices half an inch thick, and stewed in a little stock till it is nearly reduced; and cocks-combs boiled till three parts done. Then mix all the ingredients together, add some cullis, stew them gently a quarter of an hour, and season to the palate.

RAGOUT OF SWEETBREADS (white).

Put into a stewpan some stewed mushrooms, egg balls, slices of blanched throat sweetbreads, cocks-combs boiled till nearly done, and half a pint of consommé. Stew them ten minutes, then pour the liquor into another stewpan, and reduce it over a fire to one half the quantity. Beat up the yolk of two eggs, a gill of cream, a little salt, and strain them through a hair sieve to the sweetbreads, &c. then put them over a slow fire and let them simmer five minutes; or the above four articles may be put into a stewpan with some beshamelle only, and stewed till done.

POACHED EGGS WITH SORREL OR ENDIVE.

Take a slice of bread round a loaf, and cut it to cover three parts of the inside of a dish; then fry it in boiling lard till of a light colour, drain it dry, and lay it in a warm place. Then wash and chop sorrel, squeeze and put it into a stewpan with a bit of fresh butter, cayenne pepper, and a table spoonful of essence of ham; simmer it till done, thicken it with flour and water, boil it five minutes, butter the toast, poach the eggs, and drain them; then lay them over the bread, put the sorrel sauce round, and serve them up very hot.

BUTTERED EGGS.

Break twelve eggs into a stewpan, add a little parsley chopped fine, one anchovie picked and rubbed through a hair sieve, two table spoonfuls of consommé or essence of ham, a quarter of a pound of fresh butter made just warm, and a small quantity of cayenne pepper. Beat all together, set them over a fire, and keep stirring with a wooden spoon till they are of a good thickness, and to prevent their burning. Serve them up in a deep dish with a fresh toast under them.

FRIED EGGS, &c.

Take slices of ham or rashers of bacon and broil, drain, and put them into a deep plate. Have ready a little boiling lard in a stewpan, break the eggs into it, and when they are set, turn and fry them not more than two minutes. Then take them out with a skimmer, drain them and serve them up very hot over the bacon or ham. Put a strong cullis, with a little mustard and vinegar (but no salt) in it, under them.

EGGS A LA TRIP.

Boil the eggs gently five minutes, then peel, wash, and cut them into halves ; put them into a stewpan, add a little warm strong benshamelle, and a small quantity of parsley chopped very fine. Simmer them over a fire a few minutes, and serve them up plain, or with fried oysters round them.

OMLET OF EGGS.

Break ten eggs, add to them a little parsley and one eschalot chopped fine, one anchovie picked and rubbed through a hair sieve, a small quantity of grated ham, a little pepper, and if approved may be added two ounces grated parmezan cheese, mix them well together. Have ready an iron fryingpan, which has been prepared over a fire with a bit of fresh butter burnt in it for some time, in order that the eggs might not adhere to the pan when turned out. Wipe the pan very clean and dry ; put into it two ounces of fresh butter, and when hot put in the mixture of eggs : then stir it with a wooden spoon till it begins to thicken, mould it to one side of the pan, let it remain one minute to brown, put a stewpan cover over it, and turn it over into a dish, and if approved (which will be a good addition) pour round it a little strong cullis, and serve it up very hot.

There may be added also, a small quantity of boiled tops of asparagus or celery, some fowl, or oysters, or other ingredients, pounded and rubbed through a sieve, with a table spoonful of cream and one of ketchup. Then add the pulp to the eggs, beat them well together, and fry them as above. Or the mixture, instead of being fried, may be put over a fire and stirred till it begins to thicken; then put it on a toast, colour it with a hot salamander, and serve it up with a little cullis or benshamelle, or green truffle sauce underneath.

FRICASSEE OF TRIPE (white).

Cut the tripe into small slips, and boil in a little consommé till the liquor is nearly reduced; then add to it a leason, of two yolks of eggs and cream, a small quantity of salt, cayenne pepper, and chopped pasley. Simmer all together over a slow fire for five minutes, and serve it up immediately. Or instead of the leason, &c. a little benshamelle and chopped parsley may be added.

FRICASSEE OF TRIPE (brown).

Cut the tripe into shapes with cutters; then add mushrooms chopt fine, a little scalded parsley chopt, an anchovic rubed through a hair sieve, a spoonful white wine, a spoonful ketchup, and a gill cullis, seasoned to the palate; stew the tripe gently till done, and serve it up with leaves of puff paste baked and put round.

LAMBS' TAILS AND EARS.

Scald four tails and five ears very clean, and braise them in a pint veal stock. When the tails are half done, take them out, egg and breadcrumb them over, and broil them gently. Let the ears be stewed till three parts done, and nearly reduce the liquor; then add cullis, stew them till tender, and serve them up with the sauce in the center of the dish, the tails round them, and a bunch of pickled barberries over each ear. Or the tails and ears may be stewed in a little stock till tender ; then add a leason of eggs and cream, and serve them up with twelve heads of large asparagus cut three inches long, boiled till done, and put over plain. Let the heads be preserved as green as possible.

CURRIED ATLETS.

Take slices of throat sweetbreads, and slices of veal or mutton of the same size ; put them into a stewpan with a bit of fresh butter, a table spoonful of currie powder, the juice of half a lemon, and a little salt. Set them over a slow fire, and when they are half done add to them blanched and beard-ed oysters with their liquor free from sediment. Simmer all together five minutes, lay them on a dish, and when cold put them alternately on small wooden or silver skewers. Then dip them in the liquor, strew fine breadcrumbs on each side, broil them over a clear fire till of a brown colour, and serve them up with some currie sauce under them.

N. B. The slices of sweetbread, oysters, veal, and mutton, to be of an equal number.

TO STEW MACCARONI.

Boil a quarter of a pound of riband maccaroni in beef stock till nearly done ; then strain it and add a gill of cream, two ounces of fresh butter, a table spoonful of the essence of ham, three ounces of grated parmezan cheese, and a little cayenne pepper and salt. Mix them over a fire for five minutes, then put it on a dish, strew grated parmezan cheese over it, smooth it with a knife, and colour with a very hot salamander.

STEWED CHEESE.

Cut small into a stewpan Cheshire and Gloucester cheese, a quarter of a pound of each; then add a gill of Lisbon wine, a table spoonful of water, and (if approved) a tea spoonful of mustard. Mix them over a fire till the cheese is dissolved; then have ready a cheese plate with a lighted lamp beneath, put the mixture in, and serve it up directly. Send with it some fresh toasted bread in a toast rack.

To prepare a Batter for frying the following different articles, being a sufficient quantity for one Dish.

Take four ounces of best flour sifted, a little salt and pepper, three eggs, and a gill of beer; beat them together with a wooden spoon or a whisk for ten minutes. Let it be of a good thickness to adhere to the different articles.

FRIED CELERY.

Cut celery heads three inches long, boil them till half done, wipe them dry, and add to the batter. Have ready boiling lard, take out the heads singly with a fork, fry them of a light colour, drain them dry, and serve them up with fried parsley under.

FRIED PETHS.

To be done, and served up, in the same manner as the above.

FRIED SWEETBREADS.

Let some throat sweetbreads be blanched, then cut into slices, and served up in the like way.

FRIED ARTICHOKE BOTTOMS.

Let the chokes be boiled till the leaves can be taken away, then cut the bottoms into halves and fry them in batter as the before mentioned articles ; then serve them up with melted butter in a sauce boat with a little ground white pepper in it.

FRIED TRIPE AND ONIONS.

Cut the tripe into slips of four inches long and three inches wide, dip them in the batter and fry them in boiling lard. When it is to be served up put under it slices of onions cut one inch thick, and fry them in the same manner. Or instead of slips of tripe, pieces of cowheel may be used ; and let melted butter be sent in a sauce boat with a little mustard in it, and (if approved) a table spoonful of vinegar.

HARD EGGS FRIED.

Let the eggs be boiled five minutes ; then peel, wipe them dry, cut them in halves, dip them in batter, and fry them of a light brown colour. Serve them up with stewed spinach under, with a little strong cullis and essence of ham mixed in it.

TO DRESS A LAMB'S FRY.

Scald the fry till half done ; then strain, wash, and wipe it dry : dip the pieces in yolks of eggs, and breadcrumb them ; fry them in plenty of boiling lard, and serve them up with fried parsley underneath.

ANOTHER WAY.

Scald the fry as above, and instead of dipping them in egg, fry them in a plain way with a piece of butter till they are of a light brown colour; then drain and sprinkle a little pepper and salt over, and serve them up with fried parsley underneath.

PUFFS WITH FORCEMEAT OF VEGETABLES.

Put into a stewpan a little fat bacon cut small, the same quantity of lean veal, some parsley and eschalots chopped together, and season with pepper, salt, and beaten spice. Then add six French beans, twelve heads of asparagus, six mushrooms chopped, and a little lemon juice. Stew the ingredients gently for ten minutes, then put them into a marble mortar, add a little cream, breadcrumbs, and yolk of egg, pounded well together. Then roll out puff paste half an inch thick, cut it into square pieces, fill them with the forcemeat, fold them, run a jagger iron round to form them like a puff, and fry them in boiling lard. Let them be of a brown colour, and drain them dry; then serve them up with sauce under them, made with a little cullis, lemon pickle, and ketchup.

RAMMEQUINS.

Put into a pan four ounces of grated parmezan cheese, two ounces of fresh butter just warm, two yolks of eggs, a little parsley and an eschalot chopped fine, one anchovie picked and rubbed through a hair sieve, some cream, pepper, and salt, a small quantity of each, and beat them well together with a wooden spoon. Then make paper cases of three inches long, two inches wide, and two inches deep, and fill them with the mixture. Then whisk the whites of two eggs to a solid froth, put a little over the mixture in each case, and bake them either in an oven, or on a baking plate over a fire with a stewpot cover over them. Serve them up as soon as they are done.

TO DRESS PART OF A WILD BOAR.

Put into a braising pan fourteen pounds weight of the boar ; add to it a bottle of red port, eight onions sliced, six bay leaves, cayenne pepper, salt, a few cloves, mace, allspice, and two quarts of veal stock. Stew it gently, and when tender take it out of the liquor, put it into a deep dish, and set it in an oven. Then strain the liquor, reduce it to one quart, thicken it a little with passed flour and butter, and season it to the palate with lemon pickle. Let it boil ten minutes, skim it clean, pour it over the meat, and serve it up.

PLOVER'S EGGS, TO BE SERVED UP IN DIFFERENT WAYS.

Boil them twenty minutes, and when they are cool peel and wipe them dry ; then lay them in a dish, and put chopped savory jelly round and between them, and slices of lemon and bunches of pickled barberries round the rim of the dish. Or they may be served up in ornamental paper or wax baskets, with pickled parsley under them, and either peeled or not. Or they may be sent to the table hot in a napkin.

BUTTERED LOBSTERS.

Boil two lobsters till half done ; then take off the tails, cut the bodies in halves, pick out the meat, and leave the shells whole. Then break the tails and claws, cut the meat very small, put it into a stewpan with a table spoonful of the essence of ham, two ounces of fresh butter, consommé and cream half a gill of each, a little beaten mace, one eschalot and parsley chopped very fine, and a few breadcrumbs. Then mix all together over a fire for five minutes, season to the palate with cayenne pepper, salt, lemon juice ; fill the reserved shells with the mixture, strew fine breadcrumbs over, and bake them gently twenty minutes. When they are to be served up colour the crumbs with a salamander.

N. B. In the same manner may be done a picked crab.

MEAT CAKE.

Cut the fillet from the inside of the rump of beef into small pieces, also lean veal, and pound them very fine in a marble mortar. Then add a little lemon juice, pepper, salt, chopped parsley, basil, thyme, mushrooms, savory, and eschalots, a small quantity of each ; some beaten spices, and yolks of eggs a sufficient quantity to bind it. Then add and mix with your hands some fat bacon and lean of ham cut into the form of small dice. Have ready a stewpan or a mould lined with bards of fat bacon, fill it with the mixture, press it down, put on the top bay leaves and a little rhenish wine, cover it with the bards of bacon, put it into a moderate oven, and bake it thoroughly. When it is cold turn it out of the mould, trim it clean, set it on a dish, put chopped savory jelly round it, and a small modelled figure on the top; or the whole of the cake may be modelled.

COLLARED PIG.

Bone the pig; then have ready some light force-meat, slips of lean ham, pickled cucumbers, fat bacon, white meat of fowl, and omlet of eggs white and yellow. Season the inside of the pig with beaten spices; then lay on them the force-meat, and on that the slips of the above different articles alternately; after which roll it up, put it into a cloth, tie each end, sew the middle part, put it into a stewpan with a sufficient quantity of stock to cover it, and stew it two hours and a half. Then take it out of the liquor, tie each end tighter, lay it between two boards, and put a weight upon it to press it. When cold take it out of the cloth, trim and serve it up whole, either modelled or plain, or cut into slices, and put chopped savory jelly round.

N. B. In the same manner may be done a breast of veal, or a large fowl.

RED BEEF FOR SLICES.

Take a piece of thin flank of beef, and cut off the skin; then rub it well with a mixture made with two pounds of common salt, two ounces of baysalt, two ounces of saltpetre, and a pound of moist sugar, pounded in a marble mortar. Put it into an earthen pan, and turn and rub it every day for a week ; then take it out of the brine, wipe it, and strew over pounded mace, cloves, pepper, a little allspice, and plenty of chopped parsley and a few eschalots. Then roll it up, bind it round with tape, braise it till tender, press it in like manner as collared pig, and when it is cold, cut into slices, and garnish with pickled barberries.

SAVORY JELLY.

Take the liquor, when cold, that either poultry or meat was braised in, or some veal stock, taking care it be very free from fat. Make it warm, and strain it through a tamis sieve into a clean stewpan ; then season it to the palate with salt, lemon pickle, cayenne pepper, and tarragon or plain vinegar. Add a sufficient quantity of dissolved isinglass to make it of a proper stiffness, and whisk into it plenty of whites of eggs, a small quantity of the yolks and shells, and add a little liquid of colour. Then set it over a fire, and when it boils let it simmer a quarter of an hour, and run it through a jelly bag several times till perfectly bright.

ASPECT OF FISH.

Put into a plain tin or copper mould warm savory jelly about an inch and a half deep ; then take fresh smelts turned round, boil them gently in strong salt and water till done, and lay them on a drainer. When the savory jelly in the mould is quite cold, put the smelts upon it with the best side downwards ; then put a little more jelly just lukewarm over the fish, and when that is cold fill the mould with more of the same kind. When it is to be served up dip the mould in warm water, put the dish upon the jelly, and turn it over.

N. B. Pieces of lobsters, fillets of soles, &c. may be done in the same manner.

ASPECT OF MEAT OR FOWL.

Bone either a shoulder of lamb or a fowl, and season the inside with pepper, salt, and a little beaten spice; then put into it some light forcemeat, sew it up, blanch, and then braise it in stock. When it is done lay it on a dish with the breast downward to preserve it as white as possible; and when the jelly which is in the mould is quite stiff, work on it a sprig or star with small slips of ham, pickle cucumber, breast of fowl, and omlets of egg white and yellow; then set it with a little jelly, and when cold put the meat or poultry upon it, and fill the mould with lukewarm jelly. When it is to be served up turn it out as the aspect of fish.

N. B. In the same manner may be done pieces of meat or poultry without forcing.

CANOPIES.

Cut some pieces of the crumb of bread about four inches long, three inches wide, and one inch thick, and fry them in boiling lard till of a light brown colour; then put them on a drainer, and cut into slips some breast of fowl, anchovies pickled from the bone, pickle cucumbers, and ham or tongue. Then butter the pieces of bread on one side, and lay upon them alternately the different articles till filled. Trim the edges, and put the pieces (cut into what form you please) upon a dish with slices of lemon round the rim, and serve in a sauce boat a little mixture of oil, vinegar, cayenne pepper, and salt.

SALMAGUNDY.

Chop small and separately lean of boiled ham, breast of dressed fowl, pickled anchovie, parsley, omlets of eggs white and yellow (the same kind as for garnishing), eschalots, a small quantity of pickled cucumbers, capers, and beet root. Then rub a saucer over with fresh butter, put it in the center of a dish, and make it secure from moving. Place round it in partitions the different articles separately till the saucer is covered, and put on the rim of the dish some slices of lemon.

LOBSTER CAKE.

Pound the meat of two boiled lobsters with lean of raw ham, beef marrow, the yolks of four eggs, a bit of bread soaked in cream, a little beaten mace, cayenne pepper, and salt. Colour the whole with lobster spawn which has been taken out of the lobster when boiled; then line a mould with thin slices of fat bacon, press down the mixture into it, cover with bards of bacon, and the mould cover: bake it an hour and half, and let it stand till cold; turn it out of the mould, take the fat away, and serve the cake up, either modelled or plain with some savory jelly round it. In the same manner may be made cakes of fowl, &c.

SALAD OF LOBSTER.

Take boiled hen lobsters, break the shells, and preserve the meat as white as possible. Then cut the tails into halves, put them into the center of a dish with the red side upwards, and the meat of the claws whole. Then place round the lobster a row of parsley chopped fine, and a row of the spawn from the inside chopped, and afterwards mix a little of each and strew over the top of the lobster. Then put slices of lemon round the rim of the dish, and send in a sauce boat a mixture of oil, vinegar, mustard, cayenne pepper, and salt, a little of each.

LOBSTER SALAD ANOTHER WAY.

Boil two lobsters till half done, then take the meat out as whole as possible, put it into a stew-pan with half a pint good veal broth, a blade mace, an onion, half a bay leaf, a table spoonful lemon pickle, and half a gill of vinegar; simmer all together till the lobster is done. Take it out of the liquor, put it into the center of a dish, strain the liquor, season it to the palate, mix with it a sufficient quantity of live spawn, pounded to colour it, and two eggs well beaten, set it over a fire, after boiling ten minutes, strain it through a tamis, and reduce it to half a gill; put it over the lobster when cold, and garnish the dish with slices of cucumbers and beet root.

FRENCH SALAD

Consists of the different herbs in season, as tarragon, chervil, sorrel, chives, endive, Silician lettuces, watercresses, dandelion, beet root, celery, &c. all of which should be very young, fresh gathered, trimmed neat, washed clean, drained dry, and served up in a bowl. The sauce to be served up in a sauceboat, and to be made with oil, lemon pickle, vinegar, ketchup, cayenne pepper, a boiled yolk of an egg, and salt.

N. B. Some persons eat with this salad cold boiled turbot or other fish.

BLANCMANGE.

To a quart of new milk add an ounce of pickled isinglass, a small stick of cinnamon, a piece of lemon peel, a few coriander seeds washed, six bitter almonds blanched and pounded, or a laurel leaf. Put it over a fire, and when it boils simmer it till the isinglass is dissolved, and strain it through a tamis sieve into a bason. Let it stand ten minutes, skim it, pour it gently into another bason free from sediment, and when it begins to congeal stir it well and fill the shapes.

BLANCMANGE WITH FRUIT.

Boil in three pints of new milk, an ounce and half isinglass, when quite dissolved strain it. Let it cool for half an hour, take the skim off, pour it free from sediment into another pan; then whisk with it a table spoonful of cederat and half a pound of currant jelly, or raspberry or strawberry jam, and when it begins to jelly fill the moulds.

DUTCH BLANCMANGE.

Put a pint of warm cleared calves' feet jelly into a stewpan; mix with it the yolks of six eggs, set it over a fire, and whisk it till it begins to boil. Then set the pan in cold water and stir the mixture till nearly cold, to prevent it from curdling, and when it begins to thicken fill the shapes. When it is ready to be served up dip the shapes in warm water.

RIBAND BLANCMANGE.

Put into a shape some white blancmange two two inches deep, and when it is quite cold put alternately, in the same manner, cleared calves' feet jelly, white blancmange coloured with cochineal, or Dutch blancmange.

LEMON BUTTER WITH SWEETMEATS.

To a quart of boiling cream add an ounce of jordan almonds blanched, and pounded very fine ; the whites of three eggs well beaten, a little orange flour water ; sweeten to the palate. Then take a lemon, rasp the rind into some lemon juice, add it to the cream and make it boil ; then put it into a hair sieve, and when well drained, beat it together and lay it high in a dish, with sweetmeats or ratafia cakes round.

N. B. In the same manner may be done orange or chocolate butter, adding yolks instead of whites of eggs.

CLEARED CALVES' FEET JELLY.

Take scalded calves' feet, chop them into pieces, put them into a pot with plenty of water to cover them, boil gently four or five hours, strain the liquor, and preserve it till the next day in order that it may be quite stiff. Then take off the fat, and afterwards wash it with warm water to make it perfectly clean ; after which put it into a stewpan set fire over a fire, and when it is dissolved season it well to the palate with lemon and seville orange juice, white wine and sugar, a piece of lemon peel, cinnamon, and coriander seeds whole, (or add a few drops of liquid of colour if thought requisite.) Then whisk into it plenty of whites of eggs, a few yolks, and some shells. Let it boil gently a quarter of an hour, run it through a fine flannel bag several times till quite bright, and when it is nearly cold fill the shapes which should be very clean and wiped dry.

N. B. When seville oranges are not in season, orange flower water may be added, or (if approved) syrup of roses or quinces. Old hock or madeira wine will make it of the best quality.

MARBRE JELLY.

Put into a mould cleared calves' feet jelly one inch deep, and when it is cold put on the center, with the ornamented side downwards, a medallion of wafer paper; or ripe fruits, such as halves of peaches or nectarines of a fine colour, or black grapes; or small shapes of cold blancmange; or dried fruits, such as, cherries, barberries, green-gages, &c. Then set them with a little lukewarm jelly, and when that is quite cold fill the mould with some nearly cold.

RAGNETS A L'EAU.

Take half a pint of water, a stick of cinnamon, a bit of lemon peel, a gill of rhenish wine, and a few coriander seeds; sweeten to the palate with sugar, boil the ingredients ten minutes, add an ounce of fresh butter, and when it is melted strain the liquor to a sufficient quantity of flour to make it into a batter. Then put it over the fire again to simmer gently, and add six yolks of eggs. Have ready boiling lard, put into it pieces of the mixture of the bigness of a damson; fry them of a light brown colour, drain, and serve them up with sifted sugar over.

N. B. The butter should be well beaten.

APPLE FRITTERS FOR A DISH.

Mix together three ounces of sifted flour, a little salt, a gill of cream or milk, and three eggs; beat them for ten minutes with a spoon or whisk. Then pare twelve Holland pippins, cut them into halves, core and put them into the batter. Have ready boiling lard, take the halves out singly with a fork, fry them till done and of a light colour, drain them dry, serve them up with sifted sugar over, some pounded cinnamon on one plate, and seville oranges on another.

N. B. Peaches or pears may be done in the same manner; or oranges, which are to be peeled, divided into quarters, and then put into the batter. Some jam likewise may be mixed with the batter instead of the apples, and fried in small pieces.

GOLDEN PIPPINS A LA CREAM.

Take three gills of Lisbon wine, a gill of water, a stick of cinnamon, a bit of lemon peel, a small quantity of the juice, and a few coriander seeds; sweeten well with lump sugar, and boil all together for ten minutes. Then have ready twelve large ripe golden pippins pared, and cored with a small iron apple scoop. Put them into a stewpan, strain the above liquor to them, and stew them gently till done: then take them out, put them into a trifle dish, and reduce the liquor to a strong syrup. After which mix with it a pint of cream, the yolks of ten eggs, and a dessert spoonful of syrup of cloves; then strain it, set it over a slow fire, and whisk till it is of a good thickness. Put the pan in cold water, stir the mixture some time, let it cool, and when the pippins are to be served up pour the cream over them, and put round the edge of the dish leaves of puff paste baked of a pale colour.

N. B. The same kind of cream may be put over codlins, gooseberries, or cranberries, when made into pies, only omitting the pippins.

GOLDEN PIPPINS ANOTHER WAY.

Take half a pint of white wine, a gill of water, a stick of cinnamon, a few cloves and corianderseeds, a bit of lemon peel, a little juice, plenty of loaf sugar; boil them a quarter of an hour. Then strain the liquor to twelve large pippins pared and cored, stew them gently till done, and the liquor reduced to a strong syrup of a consistence sufficient to adhere to the apples, and put them into a dish. When cold serve them up with chopped cleared calves' feet jelly round them.

STEWED PIPPINS ANOTHER WAY.

Proceed with the same ingredients as the preceding, but when the apples are half done lay them on a dish to cool, and add to the syrup the yolks of eight eggs and three gills of cream; then strain and set it over a fire, whisk it till of a good thickness, and let it stand till cold. Have ready boiling lard, dip the apples in batter of the same kind as for fritters, and fry them of a light colour ; then drain them, and when cold serve them up with the cream under and sifted sugar over them.

CANALS OF PASTE WITH SWEETBREADS.

Roll some cards like a cane in puff paste ; then bake them, and when done, take the card out of the center, and when cool fill the cavity with marmalade or jam, &c.

CREAM FOR PIES.

Take a pint of new milk ; then add a few coriander seeds washed, a bit of lemon peel, a laurel leaf, a stick of cinnamon, four cloves, a blade of mace, some sugar, and boil all together ten minutes. Then have ready in another stewpan the yolks of six eggs and half a table spoonful of flour mixed, and strain the milk to them. Then set it over a slow fire, whisk it till it is of a good consistence, and be careful it does not curdle. When it is cold it may be put over green codlings, gooseberries, or curants, &c. in pies.

N. B. The cream may be perfumed, by adding, when nearly cold, a dessert spoonful of orange flower water, a table spoonful of syrup of roses, and a little ambergrise. Fruit pies, likewise, should be sweetened with sifted loaf sugar, covered with puff or tart paste, and when served up the top to be cut off, the fruit covered with either of the above creams, and small leaves of baked puff paste put round.

MINCE MEAT.

Roast, with a paper over it, a fillet of beef cut from the inside of a rump, and when cold chop it small. To two pounds of meat add two pounds of beef suet chopped fine, two pounds of chopped apples, one pound of raisins stoned and chopped, one pound of currants washed and picked, half a pound of citron, a quarter of a pound of candied orange and a quarter of a pound of candied lemon peels cut into small slices; add some beaten cinnamon, mace cloves, allspice, a small quantity of each, a pint of brandy, and a very little salt. Then mix all the ingredients well together, put them into a pan, and keep it close covered in a cool place.

N. B. It is advised that the meat be omitted, and instead of it add one pound of the yolks of hard eggs chopped.

COMPOTE OF ORANGES.

Peel and divide into quarters China oranges; then put them into a clear syrup, boil them gently five minutes, and take them out. Put into a gill of water a small quantity of cinnamon, cloves, and mace, the juice of two oranges, and a bit of the peel; boil ten minutes, strain the liquor to the syrup, and reduce it to a strong consistence. Then put in the quarters of the oranges, and when they are cold set them in a trifle dish, and put some cleared calves' feet jelly chopped round them.

TEA CREAM.

Take a pint of cream, a few coriander seeds washed, a stick of cinnamon, a bit of lemon peel, and sugar; boil them together for ten minutes; then add a gill of very strong green tea. Have Ready the whites of six eggs beat up, and strain to them the cream; whisk it over a fire till it begins to thicken, then fill cups or a deep dish, and when cold garnish with whole ratifias.

VIRGIN CREAM.

To be done in the same manner, only omitting the tea, and adding slices of citron when put into a dish.

COFFEE CREAM.

To be done in the same way, but instead of the liquid boil an ounce of whole coffee in the cream.

BURNT CREAM.

To be done in the same manner as virgin cream, and when it is quite cold and to be served up put sifted sugar over and burn it with a clear red-hot salamander. Put round the edge of the dish some ratifias.

PASTRY CREAM.

To a pint of cream add half a table spoonful of pounded cinnamon, a little grated lemon peel, three table spoonfuls of flour, two ounces of oiled fresh butter, eight yolks and the whites of three eggs well beaten, half a pound of sifted sugar, and a table spoonful of orange flower water. Put the ingredients over a fire, and when it begins to thicken add four ounces of ratifias and two ounces of pounded citron, mixing all well together. Let it stand till quite cold, then cut it into what shapes you please, and dip them single into yolk of raw egg; then breadcrumb and fry them in boiling lard till of a light colour, drain them dry, and serve them up hot.

ALMOND PASTE.

Blanch and pound very fine half a pound of jordan almonds, add six yolks of eggs, a sufficient quantity of flour to bind it well, an ounce of oiled fresh butter, and sweeten to the palate with sifted sugar. Mix the ingredients thoroughly in a marble mortar, and when it becomes a stiff paste roll it out, and cut into what shapes you please: bake them, and when cold fill them with creams or jellies. Or it may be made into puffs and baked, omitting the flour and oiled butter, and as a substitute a little powder of dried orange flowers.

CHEESE CAKES.

To three quarts of new milk add three parts of a gill of rennet; let it stand in a warm place, and when it is thoroughly turned drain it well, and mix into it with your hand half a pound of fresh butter, and sweeten to the palate with pounded sugar. Then add a few currants washed and picked, a little citron, candied orange and lemon peels cut into small slices, and an ounce of jordan almonds pounded fine. Then beat up three eggs, put them with the mixture, sheet the pans with puff paste, fill them with the curd, and bake them in a brisk oven. Or the paste may be made with half a pound of sifted flour, a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, and cold pump water, mixed lightly and rolled out.

ALMOND NUTS.

Take three eggs, their weight of sifted sugar, flour of the weight of two eggs, and two ounces of almonds blanched and pounded fine; then beat the whites to a solid froth, and mix the ingredients well with it. Have ready wafer or writing paper rubbed over with fresh butter, and with a tea-spoon drop the mixture upon the paper in rows and bake them.

TO MAKE SYLLABUB.

To a pint and a half of cream add a pint of sweet wine, a gill of brandy, sifted sugar, and a little lemon juice; whisk it well, take off the froth with a spoon, lay it upon a large sieve, fill the glasses three parts full with the liquor, add a little grated nutmeg, and put the froth over. If the above does not froth well add three drops of rennet or the whites of two eggs.

TRIFLE.

Put into a deep china or glass dish half a pound of sponge biscuits, two ounces of ratifias, two ounces of jordan almonds blanched and pounded, citron and candied orange peel an ounce of each cut into small slices, some currant jelly and raspberry jam, a small quantity of grated nutmeg and lemon peel, half a pint of sweet wine, and a little of the liquor of the syllabub. Then make the same kind of cream as for pies, and when cold put it over the ingredients. When it is to be served up put plenty of the stiff froth of a syllabub raised high on the cream, and garnish with coloured comfits or rose leaves, which are recommended for elegance.

SOUFFLE OF EGGS.

Mix over a slow fire for five minutes, three ounces fresh butter, and three ounces sifted flour ; then whisk into it one egg at a time to the amount of eight eggs, a glass of brandy, a quart of milk strained, which has been boiled with lemon peel and cinnamon : whisk all well together till it becomes of a light batter. Then butter the inside of a plain tin mould, and stick dried cherries round it, add the souffle when cold, and set the mould in boiling water over a fire till the mixture is done. Then turn it gently out of the mould ; and serve over it sauce made with butter, sugar, and white wine mixed together : preserved apricots may be put round.

TARTS OR TARTLETS.

Sheet tart or tartlet pans with puff paste a quarter of an inch thick, trim round the edge with a sharp knife ; then fill with raspberry or apricot jam, or orange marmalade or stewed apple, and put fine strings of paste across in what form you please. Bake them in a brisk oven, and be careful not to let the top colour too much.

PASTE FOR STRINGING TARTLETS.

Cut a bit of puff paste into pieces, mix with it half a handful of flour, a little cold water, and let it be of a moderate stiffness, and mould it with the hands till it draws into fine thread. Roll a piece out three inches long and two inches broad ; then cut it into slips, draw them out singly, and put them across the tarts in any form, which may be repeated two or three times over each other, as it will add much to their appearance when baked.

TO STEW APPLES FOR TARTS.

Pare, cut into quarters, and core, some apples; put them into a stewpan, add to them a piece of lemon peel, a little water, and a stick of cinnamon. Cover the pan close, put it over a fire till the apples are dissolved, sweeten to the palate with sifted sugar and a table spoonful of syrup of cloves, and rub them through a hair sieve. Let it stand till cold before it is put into the paste.

N. B. To make a very fine flavoured tart, stew golden pippins in the same manner, and when they are rubbed through the sieve add only half a table spoonful of syrup of cloves, and mix well with it a quarter of a pound of pine-apple jam. This mixture will keep a month if close covered.

FRIED PUFFS WITH SWEETMEATS.

Roll out puff paste half an inch thick, cut it into slips of three inches wide, the slips into square pieces, and put on each some sweetmeat of any kind. Fold the paste, and run a jagger iron round to form it, or cut it with a sharp knife. Have ready boiling lard, fry them of a light colour, drain them dry, and serve them up with sifted sugar over, and some orange marmalade round.

PYRAMID PASTE.

Take a sheet of puff paste rolled of half an inch thick ; cut or stamp it into oval forms, the first to be the size of the bottom of the dish in which it is to be served up, the second smaller, and so on till it becomes a pyramid ; then put each piece separately on paper laid in a baking plate, and when the oven is ready, egg the top part of the pieces and bake them of a light colour. When they are done take them off the paper, lay them on a large dish till quite cold, and when to be served up set the largest piece in the dish for which it was formed, and put on it raspberry or apricot jams or currant jelly, the next size on that and more sweetmeats, proceeding in the same manner till all the pieces are placed on each other. Put dried fruits round the pyramid, such as greengages, barberries, or cherries.

N. B. Instead of stamping the pieces it is thought better to cut them with a sharp knife ; then to cut out small pieces round the edges to make them appear like spires, as, being done in this manner, it causes the paste to appear lighter. If approved a silver-coloured caramel of sugar may be spun over the pyramid, which will have a good effect.

CURD PUFFS.

Take the curd of two quarts of new milk, drain it dry, add the yolks of seven eggs and two whites, sugar rose water, nutmeg, and breadcrumbs ; make into a paste, cut in what shapes you please, fry them in boiling lard, and serve them up with a sauce made with butter, sugar and white wine.

ICEING FOR A CAKE.

Whisk the whites of four eggs to a solid froth, and put to it as much treble refined sifted sugar as you can ; then add the juice of a lemon, mix all well together with a spoon, and spread it over the cake when warm.

CHERRIES IN BRANDY FOR DESSERTS.

On a dry day gather the largest ripe morella cherries, and be careful they are not bruised; then cut off the stalk half way, prick each cherry with a needle four times, put them into glasses, add strong best brandy enough to cover them, and sweeten with clarified sugar. Tie over them a bladder washed and wiped dry, some white leather over that bound tight, and turn the glasses bottom upwards.

N. B. Grapes or apricots may be done in the same manner.

TO MAKE BUNS.

Put five pounds of best flour into a wooden bowl, set a sponge of it with a gill of yeast and a pint of warm milk; then mix with it one pound of sifted sugar, one pound of oiled fresh butter; coriander seeds, cinnamon, and mace, a small quantity of each pounded fine. Roll the paste into buns, set them on a baking plate rubbed over with a little butter, put them in a moderate oven to prove, then wash them with a paste brush dipped in warm milk, and bake them of a good colour.

ORGEAT.

Blanch a pound of jordan and an ounce of bitter almonds, pound them in a marble mortar till very fine; then put to them a pint of pump water, rub them through a tamis cloth till the almonds are quite dry, and add to the liquor more water to make it of a proper consistence for drinking; after which sweeten with clarified sugar, or sugar-candy, or capillaire; then put it into a decanter, and when it is to be used shake it together.

ORANGE MARMALADE.

Take seville oranges when in season, which is generally at the beginning of March; cut them into halves, and the halves again into thin slices, which put with the juice, but not too much of the core, and take away the pips. To every pound weight of orange add two pounds of sifted sugar and a gill of water; then put them into a preserving pan, set the pan over a quick fire, and when the mixture boils keep stirring and skimming till it becomes of a proper stiffness, which may be known by putting a little into a saucer and setting it in cold water. Then fill the pots with the marmalade, and when cold put over white paper dipped in brandy; after which cover the pots with paper and white leather, and preserve them in a dry place for use.

N. B. In the same way try the proper stiffness of other jellies or jams, and cover them in like manner.

RASPBERRY JAM.

To every pound weight of ripe picked raspberries, add fourteen ounces of sifted sugar and half a gill of currant juice; put them into a preserving pan, set them over a brisk fire, and when it boils skim it well and let it simmer till it becomes of a good consistence.

N. B. The raspberries may be mashed with a spoon previous to adding the sugar, or rubbed through a wicker sieve.

QUINCE JAM.

Pare ripe quinces, cut them into thin slices, put them into a stewpan with a sufficient quantity of water to cover them, let them boil gently till tender close covered, and rub them through a large hair sieve; add to a pound of the pulp a pound and a half of sifted sugar and half a gill of syrup of cloves; then put them into a preserving pan, and let them simmer together till of a good strength.

N. B. A little of this jam mixed with apples in a pie will make it very good.

GREENGAGE JAM.

Rub ripe gages through a large hair sieve, and put them into a preserving pan; then, to a pound of pulp add a pound of sifted sugar; after which boil to a proper thickness, skim it clean, and put it into small pots.

APRICOT JAM.

Take apricots when nearly ripe, pare and cut them into halves, break the stones, blanch the kernels, and add them to the halves. To a pound of fruit put a pound of sifted sugar and a gill of the water in which the parings have been boiled. Then set it over a brisk fire, stir the mixture well together till it becomes of a good strength, but let it not be very stiff.

PRESERVED APRICOTS FOR TARTS OR DESSERTS.

Cut ripe apricots in halves, blanch the kernels and add them to the fruit. Have ready clarified sugar boiling hot, put the apricots into it, and let them stand till cold. Then boil the syrup again, add the apricots as before, and when they are cold put the halves into small pots or glasses, and if the syrup is too thin boil it again, and when it is cold put it to the fruit, and cover it with paper dipped in brandy.

N. B. Greengages may be done whole in the same manner, or green gooseberries with the seeds taken out. These fruits may be served up with the syrup; or they may be dried on tin plates, in a moderately heated oven, and when almost cold put sifted sugar over.

CURRANT JELLY.

Take two thirds of ripe red currants and one third of white, pick them, put them into a preserving pan over a good fire, and when they are dissolved run their liquor through a flannel bag. To a pint of juice add fourteen ounces of sifted sugar. Set it over a brisk fire, let it boil quick, skim it clean, and reduce it to a good stiffness, which may be known as before directed in orange marmalade.

N. B. In the same manner may be made black currant jelly, but allowing sixteen ounces of sugar to a pint of juice.

CRISP TART PASTE.

Take half a pound of sifted flour, a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, two ounces of sifted sugar, and two eggs beaten ; mix them with pump water, and knead the paste well.

TOURTE OF RIPE FRUITS.

Stew till half done in a good syrup with a little brandy mixed with it, either cherries, currants, apples, &c. When they are cold, sheet a tourte pan with crisp tart paste ; put the fruit into it, and round the edge a rim of puff paste, two inches broad, and in the center upon the fruit a small ornament cut out of puff paste. Bake it in a moderate heated oven.

N. B. The above fruit when stewed may be put into a pie dish and covered with puff paste, and baked of a light colour.

EGGS AND BACON ANOTHER WAY.

Boil six eggs for five minutes, then peel and cut them into halves ; after which take out the yolks, put them into a marble mortar with a small quantity of the white meat of dressed fowl, lean ham, a little chopped parsley, one eschalot, a table spoonful of cream, a dessert spoonful of ketchup, a little cayenne, some breadcrumbs, and sifted mace, a very small quantity of each. Pound all well together, fill the halves of the whites with the mixture, bake them gently ten minutes, and serve them up on rashers of bacon or ham broiled, and put some cullis over them.

POACHED EGGS WITH HAM AND VEGETABLES.

Fry a slice of bread from round a loaf in boiling lard, drain it dry, put it into a dish, and upon it slices of ham which have been stewed till tender in a little Madeira wine; then poach the eggs, put them upon the ham, and round the bread put some asparagus, peas or truffle sauce.

TO MAKE PUFF PASTE.

Mould with the hands a pound of fresh or good salt butter and lay it in cold water; then sift a pound of best white flour, rub lightly into it half the butter, mix it with cold spring water, roll it out, put on it (in pieces) half the remaining butter, fold the paste, roll it again, and add the remainder of the butter. Strew lightly upon it a little flour, fold it together, set it in a cold place, and when it is wanted for use, roll it out twice more.

N. B. In summer time the white of an egg beat up may be added with the water that mixes it.

TO MAKE AN ALMOND CAKE.

Take eight ounces of jordan and one ounce of bitter almonds, blanch and pound them very fine; then beat in with the almonds the yolks of eight eggs, and let the whites be whisked up to a solid froth. Then take eight table spoonfuls of sifted sugar, five spoonfuls of fine flour, a small quantity of grated lemon peel and pounded cinnamon, and mix all the ingredients. Rub the inside of a mould with fresh butter, fill it with the mixture, and bake it of a light colour.

ALMOND CUSTARDS.

Add to a pint and a half of cream a small stick of cinnamon, a blade of mace, a bit of lemon peel, some nutmeg, and sugar to the palate. Boil the ingredients together ten minutes, and strain it; then blanch and pound (quite fine) three ounces of jordan and eight single bitter almonds; after which rub through a hair sieve, add the fine pulp to the cream, likewise a little syrup of roses, and the yolks of six eggs beat up, and put the mixture into small cups; or it may be baked in a dish with a rim of puff paste round it.

N. B. Plain custards may be made in the same manner, but instead of almonds add a little orange flower water, or add to the plain custard a sufficient quantity of the essence of coffee as will make it grateful to the palate.

RHUBARB TART.

Take slips of green rhubarb, wash it, and cut it into small pieces the bigness of young gooseberries; put them into a dish, sweeten with sifted sugar, add the juice of a lemon, cover it with puff paste, and bake it. Serve it up either plain or with cream, the same as for an apple pie.

ORANGE PUDDING.

Peel four Seville oranges thin, boil them till tender, rub them through a hair sieve, and preserve the fine pulp. Take a pound of Naples biscuits, a little grated nutmeg, two ounces of fresh butter, and pour over them a quart of boiling milk or cream in which a stick of cinnamon has been boiled. When the ingredients are cold mix with them the pulp and eight eggs well beaten, sweeten to the palate, and (if approved) add half a gill of brandy. Edge a dish with puff paste, put in the mixture, garnish the top with strings of paste as for tartlets, and bake it in a moderately heated oven.

N. B. A lemon pudding may be made in the same manner.

RICE PUDDING.

To a pint and a half of cream or new milk add a few coriander seeds, a bit of lemon peel, a stick of cinnamon, and sugar to the palate. Boil them together ten minutes, and strain it to two ounces of ground rice, which boil for ten minutes more. Let it stand till cold, and then put to it two ounces of oiled fresh butter, a little brandy, grated nutmeg, six eggs well beaten, and a gill of syrup of pippins. Mix all together, put it into a dish with puff paste round it, and bake it, taking care it is not done too much. Should the pudding be made with whole rice it should be boiled till nearly done before the cream is strained to it, and if approved a few currants may be added.

N. B. Millet or sago (whole or ground) may be done in the same manner.

TANSEY PUDDING.

Blanch and pound very fine a quarter of a pound of jordan almonds; then put them into a stewpan, add a gill of the syrup of roses, the crumb of a French roll, a little grated nutmeg, half a gill of brandy, two table spoonfuls of tansey juice, three ounces of fresh butter, and some slices of citron. Pour over it a pint and a half of boiling cream or milk, sweeten to the palate, and when it is cold mix it well, add the juice of a lemon and eight eggs beaten. It may be either boiled or baked.

ALMOND PUDDING.

To be made as a tansy pudding, only omitting the French bread and tansy juice, and adding as substitutes a quarter of a pound of Naples biscuits and a spoonful of orange flower water.

MARROW PUDDING.

Boil with a quart of new milk cinnamon and lemon peel, and strain it to half a pound of beef marrow finely chopped, a few currants washed and picked, some slices of citron and orange peel candied, a little grated nutmeg, brandy, syrup of cloves, a table spoonful of each, and half a pound of Naples biscuits. When the mixture is cold add eight eggs beat up, omitting five of the whites, and bake it in a dish with puff paste round it.

GAME PUDDING.

Boil either a hare or other game, then add to the flesh a pound of fat bacon or beef suet, chopt parsley, thyme, basil, eschalots, garlick, beaten spices, pepper and salt, a little of each, a gill of red port, and a spoonful of lemon juice. Put all together over a fire for ten minutes, afterwards pound it in a marble mortar; then add the crumb of two penny French rolls, a gill of cream, and the yolks of four eggs: mix all the ingredients well together, put the mixture into a pudding mould or cloth, boil it two hours and a half.

When it is to be served up, pour over it a cullis made with the bones taken out of the game.

N. B. The above mixture may be made into sausages, by putting it into clean calves' chitterlings; then fried fresh, or smoked for a week.

BREAD PUDDING.

To be made as a marrow pudding, only omitting the Naples biscuits and a quarter of a pound of beef marrow, adding as a substitute the crumb of French bread.

A RICH PLUM PUDDING.

Take one pound of raisins stoned, one pound of currants washed and picked, one pound of beef suet chopped, two ounces of jordan almonds blanched and pounded, citron, candied orange and lemon peel pounded, two ounces of each, a little salt, some grated nutmeg and sugar, one pound of sifted flour, a gill of brandy, and eight eggs well beaten. Mix all together with cream or milk, and let it be of a good thickness; then tie it in a cloth, boil it five hours, and serve it up with melted butter over: or the above mixture may be put into a mould and baked.

BATTER PUDDING.

To half a pound of flour sifted add a little salt and a gill of milk, mix them till smooth, beat well six eggs, and add them together with more milk till the batter is of a proper thickness; then put the mixture into a bason rubbed with fresh butter, tie a cloth over, boil it an hour and a quarter, turn it out of the bason, and serve it up with melted butter, sugar, and grated nutmeg, in a sauce boat ; to which may be added also (if approved) a table spoonful of white wine, or a dessert spoonful of vinegar.

N. B. When puddings are put into the pot, the water in general should boil.

BOILED APPLE PUDDING.

Make a paste with flour, chopped beef suet, or marrow, a little salt and water ; then knead it well, roll it out thin, sheet a bowl or bason with it, fill it with good baking apples pared, cut into quarters and cored ; add lemon peel grated, cloves, nutmeg, and cinnamon pounded fine, a small quantity of each. Lay a thin paste on the top, tie the bason in a cloth, and let the pudding boil till well done. When it is to be served up cut a piece out of the top and mix with the apples, sugar to the palate, and add a bit of fresh butter and a little syrup of quinces.

APPLE DUMPLINGS.

Pare large baking apples, core them with a scoop, fill the cavities with quince marmalade, roll out (a quarter of an inch thick) the same kind of paste as for an apple pudding, mould over each apple a piece of paste, and boil them separately in a cloth, or wash then with whites of eggs with a paste brush, and bake them. Serve them up with grated nutmeg, sifted sugar, and fresh butter, in different saucers.

BAKED APPLE PUDDING.

Stew the apples as for a tourte or tartlets, and when they are cold, add to them six eggs well beaten; put the mixture into a dish with puff paste round the rim, and bake it.

DAMSON PUDDING.

Make paste and sheet a bason in the same manner as for an apple pudding; then fill it with ripe or bottled damsons, cover it with paste, boil it, and when it is to be served up cut a piece out of the top, mix with the fruit, sifted sugar to the palate, and a small quantity of pounded cinnamon or grated nutmeg.

N. B. Puddings made with gooseberries, currants, or bullies, may be done in the same manner.

DAMSON PUDDING ANOTHER WAY.

To a pint of cream or milk add six eggs, four table spoonfuls of sifted flour, a very little salt, a small quantity of pounded cinnamon, and whisk them well together. Have ready ripe or bottled damsons, rub them through a hair sieve, add to the mixture a sufficient quantity of the fine pulp to make it in substance a little thicker than batter, sweeten it to the palate, put it into a buttered bason, flour a cloth and tie over, boil it an hour and a quarter, and when it is to be served up turn it out of the bason and put melted butter over.

N. B. In the same manner may be done ripe peaches, nectarines, gooseberries, apricots, green-gages, or egg plums; or instead of boiling may be baked in a tart pan, sheeted with puff paste.

BAKED FRUIT PUDDING ANOTHER WAY.

Rub gooseberries or other fruit through a hair sieve; and to half a pint of the fine pulp add a quarter of a pound of Naples biscuits, three ounces of oiled fresh butter, half a pint of cream, grated nutmeg, sugar to the palate, and six eggs. Beat all the ingredients together for ten minutes; then add slices of citron, and bake the mixture in a dish with puff paste round the rim.

MUFFIN PUDDING WITH DRIED CHERRIES.

To a pint and a half of milk add a few coriander seeds, a bit of lemon peel, sugar to the palate, and boil them together ten minutes. Then put four muffins into a pan, strain the milk over them, and when they are cold, mash them with a wooden spoon; add half a gill of brandy, half a pound of dried cherries, a little grated nutmeg, two ounces of jordan almonds blanched and pounded very fine, and six eggs well beaten. Mix all together and boil in a bason, or bake it in a dish with paste round it.

POTATOE PUDDING.

Peel potatoes, steam, and rub them through a fine sieve. To half a pound of pulp add a quarter of a pound of fresh butter oiled, sifted sugar to the palate, half a gill of brandy, a little pounded cinnamon, half a pint of cream, a quarter of a pound of currants washed and picked, and eight eggs well beaten. Mix all together, bake (or boil) the pudding, and serve it up with melted butter in a sauceboat.

CARROT PUDDING.

Take red carrots, boil them, cut off the red part, and rub it through a sieve or tamis cloth. To a quarter of a pound of pulp add half a pound of crumb of French bread, sifted sugar, a spoonful of orange flower water, half a pint of cream, some slices of candied citron, some grated nutmeg, a quarter of a pound of oiled fresh butter, eight eggs well beaten, and bake it in a dish with a paste round the rim.

WATER ICES OF ORANGES OR LEMONS.

To a pint of juice put a pint of water, half a gill of brandy, sweeten it with clarified sugar, and freeze it well.

ICE CREAM.

Take a pint and a half of good cream, add to it half a pound of raspberry or other jams, or ripe fruits, and sifted sugar; mix them well together and rub through a fine sieve. Then put it into freezing mould, set it in ice and salt, and stir it till it begins to congeal. After which put at the bottom of a mould white paper, fill with the cream, put more paper over, cover close, set it in ice till well frozen, and when it is to be turned out for table dip the mould in cold water. Or it may be served up in glasses, taking the cream out of the freezing mould, or other ingredients, such as essence of coffee, ginger, &c. may be put into the cream instead of fruits, and sweetened to the palate, likewise add a little brandy.

PARTRIDGE SOUP.

Cut to pieces two or three picked and drawn partridges or pheasants, an old fowl, a knuckle of veal, some lean ham, celery, onion, turnips, a carrot, and a blade of mace. Put them into a stewpot with half a pint of water, set them over a fire close covered, and steam them till three parts done. Then add three quarts of beef stock, simmer till the ingredients are tender, strain the liquor through a fine sieve, and when cold take the fat clean off, add a little liquid of colour, a small quantity of salt and cayenne pepper, whisk with it two eggs and their shells, clear it over a good fire, then strain it through a tamis cloth: then cut half a middling-sized white cabbage into small slices, scald it, add to the soup, and boil it gently till tender; one of the birds to be served up in the soup.

OBSERVATION ON STORES.

As frequent mention is made of syrups, jams, pounded spices, sugar sifted, grated nutmeg, and orange flower water, to be used in puddings and pies; and as a very small quantity of each is wanted at a time; it is therefore recommended (as a saving of trouble and expence) that the syrups, &c. be made when the fruits are in season, and preserved in small bottles with the different stores. But should any of the receipts be thought too expensive or rich, it is recommended, likewise, that a curtailment be made in some of the articles, pursuing nearly the same process, they being written in that state only to shew their first and best manner. The same observation may be borne in remembrance with respect to made dishes, roasting, pastry, or sauces.

COLLARED EELS.

Skin and bone two large eels, lay them flat, and season with plenty of parsley, an eschalot chopped very fine, pepper, salt, beaten spices, and mushroom powder, a small quantity of each. Then roll and bind them tight with tape, put them into a stew-pan with a pint of veal stock, half a gill of lemon pickle and a gill of white wine; simmer them over a fire till done, put them on a dish, skim the liquor free from fat, season with salt to the palate, clear it with two eggs, strain it through a tamis cloth, boil it down gently till of a strong jelly, and put it into a bason. When the eels are cold, take off the tape, trim the ends, wipe them dry, serve them up with the chopped jelly round them, a few bunches of pickled barberries on their tops, and slices of lemon round the rim of the dish.

N. B. Should the liquor be pale at the time it is cleared, add a few drops of liquid of colour.

WHITE PUDDINGS.

To half a pound of beef marrow chopped fine, add six ounces of jordan almonds blanched and pounded quite fine, with a dessert spoonful of orange flower water, half a pound of the crumb of French bread, half a pound of currants washed and picked, a quarter of a pound of sifted sugar, a little mace, cloves, and cinnamon pounded, a gill of mountain wine, and the yolks of four eggs beaten. Mix all well together, fill the entrails of a pig three parts full, tie each end, and boil them half an hour.

SAUSAGE MEAT.

Take the lean meat of young pork chopped small, and to a pound of it add a pound of the flay and fat chopped, some breadcrumbs, nutmeg, allspice and mace pounded, a small quantity of each, a little grated lemon peel, sage, parsley, thyme, and two eschalots, chopped very fine, an egg beaten, and season with pepper and salt. Mix all well together with the hands, or pound it in a marble mortar, then make it into cakes and broil it, or put it into the entrails of a pig nicely cleaned.

CALF'S LIVER ROASTED.

Make an incision in the under part of a calf's liver, fill it with stuffing made with beef marrow, breadcrumbs, grated nutmeg, one eschalot, two mushrooms, parsley and thyme chopped fine, and one egg beaten. Then sew it up, lard it with smalls slips of fat bacon, put a piece of veal caul over, and roast it gently. When it is to be served up take off the caul, glaize the top, put under it some good cullis sauce, and plenty of fried parsley round.

TO DRY HERBS.

Gather marjoram, savory, thyme, basil, parsley, &c. on a dry day, when in season, and not blown. Divide them separately into small bunches, as in that state they will dry best. Then hang them on a line in a dry room or place where the air has free admission, but no direct rays of the sun.

When they are perfectly dry (which will require two or three weeks to accomplish) put them in rows in boxes close covered, and set them in a dry place.

TO MAKE ANCHOVIE LIQUOR TO BE USED IN FISH SAUCES.

Put into a stewpan one pound of best anchovies, two quarts of water, two bay leaves, some whole pepper, a little scraped horseradish, a sprig of thyme, two blades of mace, six eschalots chopped small, a gill of red port, half the rind of a lemon, a gill of ketchup; boil all together twenty minutes, and rub through a tamis cloth with a wooden spoon. When the essence is cold put into pint bottles, cork them close, and set them in a dry place.

POTTED LOBSTER.

Boil two live hen lobsters in strong salt and water till half done: then take the meat and spawn out of the shells, put it into a stewpan, add a little beaten and sifted mace, cloves, nutmeg, pepper, salt, a small quantity of lemon juice, a spoonful of essence of ham, a dessert spoonful of anchovie liquor, the same as for fish sauce, and simmer them over a fire for ten minutes. Then pound the meat in a marble mortar, reduce the liquor almost to a glaize, put it to the meat with a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, mix them well together, press the mixture down into small flat preserving pots, cover with clarified butter, and when cold put white paper over the pots, and set them in a dry place.

N. B. Prawns, shrimps, crayfish, and crabs, may be done in the same manner.

TO CLARIFY BUTTER FOR POTTING.

Put fresh butter into a stewpan with a spoonful of cold water, set it over a gentle fire till oiled, skim it, and let it stand till the sediment is settled; then pour off the oil, and when it begins to congeal put it over the different ingredients.

POTTED CHEESE.

To a pound of grated parmezan or Cheshire cheese add three ounces of cold fresh butter, a little sifted mace, and a tea spoonful of mustard. Mix all well in a marble mortar, put it into small pots, cover with clarified butter, and set the pots in a cool dry place.

POTTED VEAL.

Cut small a pound of lean white veal, put it into a stewpan, with two ounces of fresh butter, the juice of a lemon, pepper, salt, sifted mace, a bay leaf, allspice, cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon, and mushroom powder, a small quantity of each, a little parsley, thyme, savory, and two eschalots chopped fine. Put them over a fire and stew them ten minutes; then pound them, and add a pound of the mellow part of a boiled pickle tongue and half a pound of cold fresh butter. Mix them well together with two eggs beaten; then press the mixture down tight into small pots, cover them with paper, put them into a moderate oven, bake them twenty minutes, and when the meat is cold put clarified butter over.

POTTED LARKS OR SMALL BIRDS.

Pass them with the same ingredients as for veal, when they are half done take them out and put the lean veal in. When the forcemeat is made put the birds into the pots with it, bake them, and proceed in the same manner as with potted veal.

N. B. Pheasants, partridges, chickens, &c. may be done in the same way, but will take a longer time baking.

TO DRY MORELLS, MUSHROOMS, AND CHAM-PIGNONS.

Take morells and champignons of the largest size, forced mushrooms of the size of a shilling, and let them be gathered fresh; then take off the stalk, wash them free from grit, drain them dry with a cloth, run a fine twine through them with a large needle, hang them up in a warm dry place, and when they are perfectly dry put them into paper bags in boxes close covered. When they are wanted for use lay them in warm water for half an hour, and prepare them as if they were fresh.

MUSHROOM POWDER.

After the mushrooms or champignons are dried whole they may be set before a fire till crisp; then grind and sift them through a fine sieve, and preserve the powder in small bottles close corked.

POTTED BEEF.

Take two pounds of the fillet out of the inside of a rump of beef and two pounds of best fat bacon. Cut them small, put them into a marble mortar, add to them a small quantity of parsley, thyme, savory, four eschalots chopped fine, some pepper, salt, two spoonfuls of essence of ham, a spoonful of mushroom powder, sifted mace, cloves, and allspice, a little of each, two eggs beaten, and a gill of rhenish wine. Pound all well together till quite fine; then fill small pots with the mixture, cover with paper, bake it very gently for forty minutes, and when cold cover with clarified butter.

TARRAGON VINEGAR.

Put into a stone jar half a pound of fresh gathered tarragon leaves and two quarts of best common vinegar, and let them ferment a fortnight; then run it through a flannel bag, and add to it a quarter of an ounce of isinglass dissolved in cyder. Put it into a clean jar, let it stand till fine, pour it off, put it into small bottles, cork them close, and set them in a dry place.

N. B. In the same manner may be done elder flowers, &c. &c.

WALNUT KETCHUP FOR FISH SAUCES.

To a quart of walnut pickle add a quarter of a pound of anchovies and three gills of red port; boil them till reduced one third; strain it, and when cold preserve it in small bottles close corked.

TO PICKLE TONGUES, &c.

Take large tongues perfectly fresh, cut some of the root away, make an incision in the under part, rub them well with common salt, and lay them in a tub or pan close covered for four days. Then pound together two parts of saltpetre, one part of common salt, one part of bay salt, and one part of moist sugar. Rub the tongues well with the mixture, put all into the pan, and turn them every two days till pickled enough, which will be in ten days.

N. B. Pigs' faces and hams to be done in the same manner, but according to their size let them lay in the different pickles for long periods, and when well coloured smoke them. If it be wished to have the hams or tongues of a Westphalia flavour add some socco to the pickle.

INDIA PICKLE.

Take large fresh cauliflowers in the month of July, pick them into small pieces, wash them clean, put them into a pan with plenty of salt over them for three days; then drain and lay them separately to dry in the sun, repeatedly turning them till they are almost of a brown colour, which will require several days. Then put plenty of whole ginger, slices of horseradish, peeled garlick, whole long pepper, peeled eschalots and onions, into salt and water for one night; drain and dry them also; and when the ingredients are ready, boil more than a sufficient quantity of vinegar to cover them, and to two quarts of it add an ounce of the best pale turmeric, and put the flowers and other ingredients into stone jars, pour the vinegar boiling hot over, cover them till the next day, then boil the pickle again, and the same on the third day; after which fill the jars with liquor, cover them over close with bladder and white leather, and set them in a dry place.

N. B. In the same manner may be done white cabbages cut into half quarters, whole French beans, heads of celery, heads of asparagus, onions whole or sliced, or pickling melons peeled thin, cut into halves, and formed like an Indian mango.

TO DRY ARTICHOKE BOTTOMS.

Gather the largest firm artichokes when in season, cut off the stalks, and boil them till the leaves and choke can be taken away. Afterwards put them on a baking plate and set them in a very slow heated oven, or hang them up in a warm place to dry, and when perfectly so put them into paper bags. When they are wanted for use lay them in warm water and salt, and when pliable trim them neat, braise them in stock and lemon juice, which will perserve them white, and when done enough, if for ragout, cut them into pieces; if for dishes, serve them whole with good cullis sauce over them.

TO PICKLE CUCUMBERS, &c.

Gather jerkins not too large, lay them in a strong brine of salt and water for three days, then wipe them dry, and put them into stone jars. Then put a sufficient quantity of vinegar to cover them into a preserving pan, add plenty of whole ginger and black pepper, a middling quantity of mace, allspice and cloves, some slices of horse-radish, peeled onions, eschalets, and a small quantity of garlick. Let the ingredients boil for ten minutes, and pour them with the liquor over the cucumbers, cover the jars with cabbage leaves and a plate, set them in a warm place, the next day drain the liquor from them, boil it, and pour over them again, and if on the third day they are not green enough, boil the vinegar again, pour it over, and when cold tie bladder and white leather over the jars, and set them in a dry place.

N. B. In the same manner may be done walnuts, love-apples, barberries, capsicums, French beans, nasturtiums, and small pickling melons peeled very thin and cut into quarters, or walnuts may be scalded and put into salt and water for a week, changing the water three times.

RULES TO BE OBSERVED IN PICKLING.

It is recommended that the best common vinegar be in general used for pickling, and that it be put into a well-cleaned copper or brass preserving pan just before it is to be put over the fire, and when it boils not to remain in the pan.

There can be no occasion of the many arts that are used in order to preserve the ingredients green if the vegetables are gathered fresh, on a dry day, when in season, and the process followed that has been recommended.

Further directions could be given that might be attended with greater expence, but which would scarcely answer a better purpose, excepting only to those who are in the habit of extensive practice.

TO PICKLE ONIONS.

Peel small button onions into milk and water, in which put plenty of salt; set it over a fire, and when it boils strain the onions, wipe them dry, and put them into glasses. Have ready cold whitewine vinegar, in which whole white pepper, ginger, mace, and slices of horseradish have been boiled. Pour it over the onions and cover them with bladder and leather.

TO PICKLE MUSHROOMS.

Take a sufficient quantity of double distilled white wine vinegar to cover the mushrooms; add to it whole white pepper, ginger, mace, peeled eschalots, and a small quantity of garlick if approved; boil all together ten minutes and let it stand till cold. Then peel fresh forced button mushrooms into water, wash them clean, strain, and put them into a stewpan. To a quart of mushrooms add the juice of a lemon and table spoonful of salt. Cover the pan close, set it over a fire, and when the liquor is sufficiently drawn from the mushrooms put the whole into glasses and cover them with the pickle. Tie bladder and white leather over the glasses.

The general rule has been deviated from of making the pickle for onions and mushrooms with double distilled white wine vinegar, as in this instance it is requisite to preserve them white. It is likewise recommended that they be put into small jars or glasses for use; for this reason, that, if exposed to the air but for a short space of time, they will discolour.

TO PICKLE BEET ROOTS.

Boil the roots till three parts done, and cut them into slices of an inch thick. Then take a sufficient quantity of vinegar to cover them, and add to it allspice, a few cloves, mace, black pepper, slices of horseradish, some onions, eschalots, a little pounded ginger, some salt, and a few bay leaves. Boil the ingredients together twenty minutes and strain it, and when the pickle is cold add a little bruised cochineal. Put the slices of beet into jars, add the pickle, put a small quantity of sweet oil on the top, and tie the jars down close.

N. B. When the beet is wanted for use mix well together sweet oil, mustard, some of the liquor in which the roots were pickled, and a very little sifted sugar. Lay the slices in a deep plate and pour the mixture over.

TO PICKLE ARTICHOKE BOTTOMS.

Take large fresh and sound artichokes, boil them just enough to take the leaves and choke away, then trim and lay them in salt and water; after which boil (for five minutes) a sufficient quantity of vinegar to cover them, in which put whole allspice, black pepper, ginger, mace, cloves, eschalots, salt, a few bay leaves, and some slices of horseradish. Drain and wipe dry the bottoms, put them into jars, add the liquor and ingredients to them, and tie them down close. When they are fit for use serve them up in a deep plate with a little of the pickle, oil, and mustard mixed with it.

TO PICKLE LARGE CUCUMBERS.

Peel them very thin, cut them into halves, throw the seeds away, and lay the cucumbers in salt for a day. Then wipe them dry, fill them with mustard seed, peeled eschalots, garlick, small slips of horseradish, and mace. After which tie them round with twine, put them into jars, [pour over them some boiling liquor made as for India pickle or for jerkins, and cover them down close till fit for use.

TO PICKLE RED CABBAGE.

Cut a fresh light red cabbage into slips, wash it clean, and put it into a pan with plenty of salt for two days. Then boil together for half an hour a sufficient quantity of vinegar to cover the cabbage, together with bruised black pepper, mace, allspice, cloves, ginger, nutmeg, and mustard seed, a middling quantity of each. Strain the vinegar and ingredients, and let them stand till cold; then add a little bruised cochineal, drain the cabbage on a large sieve till dry, put it into the jars down close; or the liquor may be poured over the cabbage boiling hot; and when cold, before the jars are tied down, add a little bruised cochineal. This method will make the cabbage sooner fit for use.

N. B. Onions may be peeled and done whole in the same manner, and mixed with red cabbage.

TO PICKLE CURRANTS.

To a quart of double distilled white wine vinegar add half a pound of loaf sugar, whole ginger, one ounce of salt, and a pint of red currant juice; boil all together, skim it clean, and let it stand till cold. Then pick and put some best ripe red currants into glasses, fill them with the pickle, and cover them down close with bladder and leather.

TO PICKLE BARBERRIES.

Bruise and strain ripe barberries, and to a pint of juice add three pints of vinegar, a quarter of a pound of loaf sugar, an ounce of salt, and a quarter of an ounce of pounded and sifted ginger. Boil all together, skim it clean, and put bunches of the best ripe barberries into jars, pour the pickle boiling hot over, and let it stand till cold; then add a little bruised cochineal, and tie the jars over close.

N. B. Bunches of currants may be done in like manner.

SOUR CROUT.

Take large white cabbages when in season, cut them into halves, and then into slips; wash them clean and drain them dry. After which put into a tub a layer of cabbage, then a layer of salt, afterwards a small quantity of pounded and sifted coriander seeds, and so on alternately; when the tub is nearly full put a weight over to press it well, and set it in a cool dry place covered with a coarse cloth. When it is wanted for use put some of the cabbage into boiling water over a fire for five minutes, and strain it. Have ready some pieces of salted bouille beef (of a quarter of a pound each) nearly boiled enough; likewise some pieces of pickle pork of the same number and weight. Then put them into a stewpan, add the cabbage, fresh butter, a little vinegar, onions sliced very thin, some whole pepper, allspice, and mace, tied in a bit of cloth. Let all stew till tender; then take out the spices, season the cabbage to the palate with cayenne pepper, and serve it up with fried onions (done as per receipt), with fried sausages round the crout.

PEAS PUDDING, TO BE EATEN WITH BOILED PORK.

Lay a pint of best split peas into water for half an hour; strain, pick, and put them into a cloth, tie them tight, and boil them gently for three hours. Then put the peas out of the cloth into a stewpan, mash them well with a wooden spoon, add a bit of fresh butter, a little pepper and salt, the yolks of two eggs, and mix all well together. Put the mixture into a clean cloth, tie it up, and let it hang near a fire for half an hour: then turn it out on a dish, and pour melted butter over.

CURRIE, OR PEPPER WATER.

Cut a chicken into pieces, blanch and wash it, put it into a small stewpot, add a table spoonful of currie powder, half a pint of veal broth, and simmer them till half done. Then peel and cut into thin slices two good sized onions, fry them with two ounces of fresh butter till nearly done and of a brown colour; then add them to the chicken, together with a pint of veal broth, half a bay leaf, the juice of half a lemon, two table spoonfuls of the juice of tamarinds, which are to be dissolved in boiling water and strained. Boil all together till the chicken is nearly done; then take it out, put it into another stewpan, rub the ingredients through a tamis sieve, and add it to the fowl with a table spoonful of flour and water to thicken it. Make it boil, season it well to the palate with cayenne pepper and salt, skim it clean, and serve it up in a bowl.

SWEET SAUCE FOR ROAST MUTTON OR VENISON.

Add to a gill of red port two table spoonfuls of vinegar, half a gill of cullis, sugar, an onion boiled, and rubbed through a sieve, and a little pounded cinnamon; make it boiling when it is to be sent to table.

GRILLS AND SAUCE, WHICH ARE GENERALLY EATEN
AFTER DINNER.

Season some small pieces of ready-dressed fowl or turkey with pepper and salt, and grill them gently of a nice brown colour. In the mean time put into a stewpan a gill and a half of cullis, an ounce of fresh butter, a table spoonful of mushroom ketchup, the juice of a lemon, and a small bit of the rind, a little cayenne pepper, a tea spoonful of the essence of anchovies, and one eschalot chopped fine. Boil all the ingredients together five minutes, strain the liquor, and serve it up in a sauce-boat: the pieces of chicken, &c. on a dish.

VOL AU VENT.

Roll out a piece of tart paste two inches thick, and stamp a piece the size of the bottom of the dish, which is intended to be sent to table; then stamp another piece of puff paste, the same size and thickness, wash the first with egg, put the other upon it, and mark the center with a cutter two sizes smaller, egg the top with yolks and bake it. When done take the center part out to the mark, and fill it with fricasee of chicken, or fillets, soles, or lobsters, &c.

RICE PASTE FOR TARTS, &c.

Pound in a marble mortar a quarter of a pound of boiled rice, a quarter of a pound of beef marrow or some sweet oil; then add to the mixture a little flour, cream, sifted sugar, and four eggs, or it may be cut into small cakes and baked or boiled.

SALME OF WOODCOCKS.

Take two woodcocks half roasted, cut them up neatly, and let the trimmings with the entrails be pounded in a marble mortar; then put them into a stewpan, add half a pint of cullis, two eschalots chopped, half a gill of red port, and a bit of rind of lemon; season to the palate with pepper, salt, and lemon juice. Boil the ingredients ten minutes, and strain the liquor to the carved woodcocks, which stew gently till done. Serve them up in a deep dish with sippets of fried bread strewed over.

TO MAKE A HAGGESS.

Take the hearts and lights of a sheep, and blanch and chop them; then add a pound of beef suet chopped very fine, crumb of French roll soaked in cream, a little beaten cinnamon, mace, cloves, and nutmeg, half a pint of sweet wine, a pound of rasins stoned and chopped, a sufficient quantity of flour to make it of a proper consistence, a little salt, the yolk of three eggs, and some sheep chitterlings well cleaned and cut into slips. Mix all together, and have ready a sheep's bag nicely cleaned, in which put the mixture; then tie it tight and boil it three hours.

PUDDING WITH CHICKEN OR BIRDS.

Line a pudding mould with paste the same as for beef steak pudding, fill it with a boned chicken or birds with a little forcemeat, some truffles and slices of sweetbreads in each, cover with paste, tie a cloth over and boil it one hour and a half; when it is to be served up turn it gently out of the mould and pour some good cullis over it.

FRENCH BLACK PUDDINGS.

Pick, wash, and boil, till three parts done, two pounds of grits or rice; then drain it dry, put it into a stewpan with a quart of pig's blood preserved from curdling, with plenty of salt stirred into it when taking from the animal; add to them ground pepper, pounded and sifted mace, cloves, nutmeg, and allspice, a small quantity of each, a gill of cream with a bit of crumb of French bread soaked in it, together with chopped savory, thyme, parsley, and pennyroyal, a little of each. Mix the ingredients over a slow fire for twenty minutes, and when cold put with them plenty of the flay cut into small dice. Have ready the entrails cleaned very nice, fill them with the mixture three parts full, tie the ends, put the puddings into hot water, boil them gently a quarter of an hour; if they are to be eaten directly when done prick them with a fork and broil them upon a very clean grid-iron for ten minutes: if they are not to be eaten immediately when made, put them on clean straw, and when they are wanted for use put them into boiling water, let them simmer ten minutes, then take them out, and prick and broil them as above.

N. B. If large puddings, they will take longer periods in boiling and broiling.

MILK PUNCH.

To a gallon of milk add a little cinnamon, cloves, mace, lemon and orange peel, a pint of brandy, a pint of rum, plenty of orange and lemon juice, and sweeten to the palate. Then whisk with it the yolks and whites of eight eggs, put it over a brisk fire, and when it boils let it simmer ten minutes; run it through a jelly bag till quite clear, put it into bottles, and cork it close.

N. B. The rum and brandy should be added when the milk is cleared.

PLUM POTTAGE.

To veal and beef broths (a quart of each) add a pound of stoned prunes and the crumb of two penny French rolls, rubbing all through a tamis cloth; then mix to the pulp half a pound of stoned raisins, a quarter of a pound of currants, a little lemon juice, some pounded cinnamon, mace, and cloves, a pint of red port, a pint of claret, a small quantity of grated lemon peel, and season to the palate with lump sugar. Let all simmer together for one hour; then add a little cochineal to make it of a nice colour, and serve it up in a tureen. Let it be of the consistence of water gruel.

CANDIED ORANGE OR LEMON PEELS.

Take either lemon or orange peels well cleaned from the pulp, and lay them in salt and water for two days; then scald and drain them dry, put them into a thin syrup, and boil them till they look clear. After which take them out, and have ready a thick syrup made with fine loaf sugar; put them into it, and simmer till the sugar candies about the pan and peels. Then lay them separately on hair sieve to drain, strew sifted sugar over, and set them to dry in a slow oven; or the peels may be cut into chips, and done in the same manner.

LEMONADE OR ORANGEADE.

To a gallon of spring water add some cinnamon and cloves, plenty of orange and lemon juices, with a bit of each peel; sweeten well with loaf sugar, and whisk with it the whites of six eggs and one yolk. Put it over a brisk fire, and when it boils let it simmer ten minutes; then run it through a jelly bag, and let it stand till cold before it is drunk. This mode is recommended, the liquor having been boiled.

POIVRADE SAUCE FOR GAME, MAINTENON CUTLETS.

Peel and chop small twelve eschalots; add to them a gill and a half of vinegar, a table spoonful of veal consommé, half an anchovie rubbed through a fine sieve, a little cayenne pepper, and salt. Serve it up in a sauceboat cold, if to be eaten with cold game; but if to be eaten with hot, roast or grills, make it boiling.

LOBSTER SAUCE FOR FISH.

Take the spawn out of live lobsters before they are boiled, bruise it well in a marble mortar, add a little cold water, strain it through a sieve and preserve it till wanted; then boil the lobsters, and when three parts done pick and cut the meat into small pieces, and put it into a stewpan. To the meat of a large lobster add a pound of fresh butter and a pint of water, including a sufficient quantity of the spawn liquor to colour it. Put it over a fire, thicken it with flour and water, keep stirring till it boils, and then season to the palate with anchovie liquor, lemon juice, and cayenne pepper. Let it simmer five minutes and skim it.

N. B. In place of the above, the following method may be adopted;—Instead of cutting the meat of the lobster into pieces, it may be pounded in a marble mortar, then rubbed through a tamis cloth, and the pulp put with the other ingredients when the sauce is to be made. [See Anchovie Essence for Fish Sauce.]

OYSTER SAUCE FOR FISH.

Blanch the oysters, strain them, and preserve their liquor; then wash and beard them, drain, and put them into a stewpan; then add fresh butter and the oyster liquor free from sediment, some flour and water to thicken it, season to the palate with lemon juice, anchovie liquor, a little cayenne pepper, a spoonful of ketchup if approved, and a bit of lemon peel. When it boils skim it, and let it simmer five minutes.

N. B. Muscles and cockles may be done in like manner.

SHRIMP SAUCE FOR FISH.

Boil live shrimps in salt and water for three minutes, then pick, wash, and drain them dry; after which add fresh butter, water, anchovie liquor, lemon juice, cayenne pepper, and flour and water to make it of a sufficient thickness. Put the in-redients over a fire, and when it boils skim it, and let the shrimps simmer for five minutes. Or it may be made thus :—When the shrimps are picked, wash the shells, drain them dry, put them into a stewpan, add a little water, and boil them ten minutes ; then strain the liquor to the butter (as above) instead of the water, which will make it of a better flavour. The bodies of lobsters, also, when picked, may be done in like manner for lobster sauce.

DUTCH SAUCE FOR FISH.

Boil for five minutes, with a gill and a half of vinegar, a little scraped horseradish : then strain it, and when it is cold add to it the yolks of two new eggs, a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, a dessert spoonful of flour and water, and a little salt. Whisk the ingredients over a fire till the mixture almost boils, and serve it up directly to prevent it from curdling.

ANCHOVIE SAUCE FOR FISH.

Put half a pound of fresh butter into a stewpan, add to it three spoonfuls of anchovie liquor, walnut and mushroom ketchups a spoonful of each, the juice of half a lemon, a little cayenne pepper, a tea spoonful of India soy if approved, a sufficient quantity of flour and water to make it of a proper thickness. Make the mixture boil, and skim it clean.

APPLE SAUCE FOR PORK, GEESE, &c.

Pare, quarter, and core, baking apples ; put them into a stewpan, add a bit of lemon rind, a small stick of cinnamon, a few cloves, and a small quantity of water. Cover the pan close, set it over a moderate fire, and when the apples are tender take the peel and spices out; then add a bit of fresh butter, and sugar to the palate.

OBSERVATIONS IN RESPECT OF FISH SAUCES, &c.

Let it be particularly observed that fish sauces should be of the thickness of light batter, so that it might adhere to the fish when dressed, it being a frequent error that they are either too thick or too thin. The thickening should be made with the best white flour sifted, and some water, mixed smooth with a wooden spoon or a whisk, and to be of the consistence of light batter also. A little of it is recommended to be always ready where there is much cooking, as it is frequently wanted both in fish and other sauces.

There are, likewise, other articles repeatedly wanted for the use of stove-work; and as their possession has been found to obviate much inconvenience and trouble, they are here enumerated: that is to say, liquid of colour preserved in a bottle, strained lemon juice preserved in the same manner, cayenne pepper, groundspices, ground pepper and salt mixed, which should be preserved separately in small jars; and every day, when wanted, fresh breadcrumbs rubbed through a hair sieve; parsley, thymes, eschalots, savory, marjoram, and lemon peel, chopped very fine, and put on a dish in separate partitions.

Directions are not given for serving the fish sauces with any particular kind of fish,—such as turbot or salmon with lobster sauce, &c. but the receipts have been written only for the making them: therefore it is recommended that every person make a choice, and not be biassed altogether by custom.

GREEN SAUCE FOR DUCKLINGS OR GREEN GEESE.

Pick green spinach or sorrel, wash it, and bruise it in a marble mortar, and strain the liquor through a tamis cloth. To a gill of the juice add a little loaf sugar, the yolk of a raw egg, and a spoonful of vinegar; if spinach juice, then put one ounce of fresh butter, and whisk all together over a fire till it begins to boil.

N. B. Should the sauce be made of spinach juice instead of vinegar, there may be put two table spoonfuls of the pulp of gooseberries rubbed through a hair sieve.

FENNEL SAUCE FOR MACKAREL, EITHER BOILED, OR BROILED.

Pick green fennel, mint, and parsley, a little of each; wash, boil them till tender, drain and press them, chop them fine, add melted butter, and serve up the sauce immediately, for should the herbs be mixed with the butter any length of time before it is to be served up, they will be discoloured. The same observation should be noticed in making parsley and butter sauce.

N. B. If approved there may be added some pulp of green gooseberries rubbed through a hair sieve, and a little sifted sugar.

BREAD SAUCE, FOR TURKIES, GAME, &c.

Soak a piece of crumb of bread with half a pint of milk or cream, add a peeled middling-sized onion, and put them over a fire; when the milk is absorbed bruise the bread, mix with it two ounces of fresh butter, a little white pepper, and salt; and when it is to be served up take out the onion.

MELTED BUTTER.

In order to prevent butter from oiling, the flour and water that may be sufficient for the quantity of butter should be made boiling, skimmed clean, and the butter added to dissolve, being careful it is of a proper thickness.

In the same manner may be made fish sauces, adding the liquor of the lobsters or oysters, &c. with flour and water, and when boiling add the butter with the other ingredients.

TO MAKE MELON CITRON.

Take middling-sized melons when half ripe, cut them into quarters, take away the seed, and lay the melons in salt and water for three days. Have ready a thin syrup; then drain and wipe dry the quarters, put them into the sugar, and let them simmer a quarter of an hour: the next day boil them up again, and so on for three days; then take them out, and to the syrup put some mountain wine, a little brandy, and more sugar; clarify it, and boil it nearly to a candied height, put the melons into it and boil them; then put them in glasses, and cover them close with bladder and leather.

RUSKS, OR TOPS AND BOTTOMS.

Take two eggs beat up, add them to a pint of good mild yeast and a little milk. Sift four pounds of best white flour, and set a sponge with the above ingredients; then make boiling half a pound of fresh butter and some milk, a sufficient quantity to make the sponge the stiffness of common dough. Let it lay in the kneading trough till well risen; then mould and make it into the form of loaves of the bigness of small teacups; after which batch them flat, bake them in a moderate oven, and when nearly done take them out, cut the top from the bottom, and dry them till of a nice colour on tin plates in the oven.

WAFERS.

Take a table spoonful of orange flower water, a table spoonful of flour, the same of good cream, sifted sugar to the palate, and a dessert spoonful of syrup of cinnamon; beat all the ingredients together for twenty minutes; then make the wafer-tongs hot, and pour a little batter just sufficient to cover the irons; bake them over a slow fire, and when taken from the tongs roll them round, and preserve them in a dry place.

CRACKNELS.

To half a pound of best white flour sifted add half a pound of sifted loaf sugar, a quarter of a pound of fresh butter, two table spoonfuls of rose water, a little salt, the yolks and whites of three eggs beat up, and mix all well together for twenty minutes. Then roll it out, cut it into what shapes you please with a pastry cutter, put them on baking plates rubbed with butter, wash the tops of the paste with whites of eggs well beaten, and bake them in a brisk oven.

TO BAKE PEARS.

To a pint of water add the juice of three Seville oranges, cinnamon, cloves, and mace, a small quantity of each, a bit of lemon peel, and boil them together a quarter of an hour; then strain and add to the liquor a pint of red port, plenty of loaf sugar, and a little cochineal; after which pare, cut into halves, and core, twelve large baking pears, put them into a pan, add the liquor, cover the pan with writing paper, and bake them in a moderate oven.

N. B. They may be done in the same manner in a stewpan over a fire.

TO CLARIFY SUGAR, OR CARAMEL.

To four pounds of loaf sugar put two quarts of water into a preserving pan, set it over a fire, and add (when it is warm) the whites of three eggs beat up with half a pint of water; when the syrup boils skim it clean, and let it simmer till perfectly clear.

N. B. To clarify sugar for caramel requires but a small quantity of water; and the different degrees of strength, when wanted, must be attended to with practice. They are generally thrown over a mould rubbed with sweet oil; for cakes, with a fork dipped in the sugar, &c.

SYRUP OF CLOVES, &c.

Put a quart of boiling water into a stewpan, add a quarter of a pound of cloves, cover the pan close, set it over a fire, and let the cloves boil gently for half an hour; then drain them dry, and add to a pint of the liquor two pounds of loaf sugar. Clear it with the whites of two eggs beat up with a little cold water, and let it simmer till it becomes a strong syrup. Preserve it in vials close corked.

N. B. In the same manner may be done cinnamon or mace.

SYRUP OF GOLDEN PIPPINS.

Take the pippins when nearly ripe, pare, core, and cut them into very thin slices, or bruise them a little in a marble mortar. Then put them into an earthen vessel, add a small quantity of water, the rind of a lemon, plenty of sifted sugar, and a little lemon juice. Let the ingredients remain in the pan close covered for two days, then strain the juice through a piece of lawn, add more sugar if requisite, clear it with white of egg if necessary, and boil it to a syrup.

N. B. Nonpareils, quinces, pine-apples, or the rind of lemons peeled very thin, may be done in the same manner.

SYRUP OF CAPILLAIRE.

Clarify with three whites of egg four pounds of loaf sugar mixed with three quarts of spring water and a quarter of an ounce of isinglass; when it is cold add to the syrup a sufficient quantity of orange flower water as will make it palatable, and likewise a little syrup of cloves. Put it into bottles close corked for use.

FLOWERS IN SUGAR.

Clarify sugar to a caramel height, which may be known by dipping in a fork, and if it throws the sugar as fine as threads put in the flowers. Have ready teacups with the insides rubbed with sweet oil; put into each cup four silver table spoonfuls of the sugar and flowers, and when cold turn them out of the cups, and serve them up piled on each other.

SYRUP OF ROSES.

Gather one pound of damask rose-leaves when in high season, put them into an earthen vessel, add a quart of boiling spring water, cover the pan close, and let it remain six hours; then run the liquor through a piece of lawn, and add to a pint of the juice a pound and a half of loaf sugar: boil it over a brisk fire till of a good syrup, being careful in the skimming, and preserve it in bottles close corked.

N. B. The syrup may be cleared with two eggs.

TO PRESERVE CUCUMBERS.

Take fresh gathered gerkins of a large size, and lay them in salt and water for two days; then drain and wipe them dry, put them into glasses, make boiling-hot a mixture of sugar, vinegar, and water, a small quantity of each; pour it over the cucumbers, cover and set them in a warm place, likewise boil the liquor and pour over them for three successive days. Then take a quart of the liquor, add to it plenty of cloves, mace, ginger, and lemon peel. Boil these ingredients for half an hour, strain, and put to it plenty of sifted sugar, clear it with whites of eggs if requisite, boil to a strong syrup, and put it to the gerkins. When wiped dry and in the glasses, cover them down very close.

TO PRESERVE CURRANTS.

Take large bunches of ripe currants, make a thin syrup with sugar and water, set it over a fire, when it boils put in the fruit, and let them remain in a cool place till the next day; then take them out carefully, lay them on a dish, make the liquor boil again, and put in the currants, taking care not to let them break. Take them out a second time, add more sugar to the syrup, with a quart of currant juice; clarify it, boil it to a strong syrup, and when it is cold put the currants into glasses, pour the syrup over, and tie them down close.

N. B. In the same manner may be done fish, by adding with it a little anchovic liquor, and omitting the fowl.

SWEETBREADS WITH VEAL AND HAM.

Blanch heart sweetbreads eight minutes, and wash and wipe them dry; then make an incision in the under part, take out a piece and pound it with a small quantity of light forcemeat; after which fill the cavity in the sweetbread, rub the top with white of egg, lay over it a thin slice of lean ham, a slice of veal, and a bard of bacon; put paper and a thin sheet of common paste over the whole, bake them gently for an hour, and when they are to be served up take off the paste and paper, glaize lightly the bacon, and put under the sweetbreads a good benshamelle.

ESSENCE OF HAM FOR SAUCES.

Take four pounds of slices of lean ham, and be careful it is of a good flavour; put it into a stew-pan with a little water, six peeled eschalots, and two bay leaves; cover the pan close, set it over a fire, and simmer the ham till three parts done; then add two quarts of water and boil it till tender, strain it through a fine sieve, skim it perfectly free from fat, clear it with whites of eggs, strain it through a tamis, boil it till it is reduced to a pint, and when cold put it into small bottles and cork them close.

SOUFFLE OF FOWLS.

Take a fricassee of two chickens stewed till half done, add a leason of two yolks of eggs and cream, instead of setting over a fire again, put it into a deep dish; then beat the whites of four eggs to a solid froth, put it upon the chickens, and likewise some crumbs of bread, rubbed through a hair sieve over the froth, set it in a brisk oven for half an hour.

OX HEART ROASTED.

Let the heart be very fresh, wash and wipe it, fill it with a stuffing as for a fillet of veal, tie over the top a piece veal caul, roast it gently one hour and half, and five minutes before it is done roast it quick, froth it with flour and butter, and put it on a very hot dish. Serve it up with a sauce under it made with cullis, fresh butter, a table spoonful of ketchup, and half a gill of red port boiled together. A calf's or sheep's heart may be done in the same manner.

SLICES OF COD FRIED WITH OYSTERS.

Egg, breadcrumb, and fry in boiling lard, some slices of crimped cod; when done, drain them dry, serve them up with oyster sauce in the center, made in the same manner as for beef steaks.

SMALL CRUSTS TO BE EATEN WITH CHEESE OR WINE AFTER DINNER.

Take the crumb of a new-baked loaf, pull it into small pieces, put them on a baking plate, and set them in a moderately heated oven till they are of a nice brown colour.

TO PRESERVE CHERRIES FOR TARTS.

Take morella cherries, prick each with a needle three or four times, put them into a dish, sift sugar over; let them remain all night, the next day make a syrup boiling hot, put the cherries into it for one day; then pour the syrup from the cherries and boil it to a strong consistency; put a little brandy to it, and add to the cherries; when they are cold put them into glasses, cover them with bladder and leather, preserve them in a cool place.

N. B. Plumbs, gooseberries, &c. may be done in the same manner.

DEVILLED ALMONDS.

Blanch half a pound of jordan almonds and wipe them dry; then put into a fryingpan two ounces of fresh butter, make it hot, add the almonds, fry them gently till of a good brown colour, drain them on a hair sieve, strew over cayenne pepper and some salt, and serve them up hot.

CARRAWAY PUFFS.

Beat the whites of four eggs to a solid froth, add to them sifted sugar and some carraway seeds, pounded very fine, put with a spoon the mixture in pieces the bigness of a shilling, as high as you can, on sheets of damp wafer paper, and bake them in a slack oven.

N. B. In the same manner may be made puffs with cinnamon, or ginger, &c.

BOILED TRIPE AND ONIONS.

Cut a prepared double of tripe into slips, then peel and boil some Spanish or other onions in milk and water with a little salt, and when they are nearly done add the tripe and boil it gently twenty minutes. Serve it to table with the onions and a little of the liquor in a tureen. Serve up, likewise, in a sauceboat, some melted butter with a little mustard mixed with it, and (if approved) there may be added a table spoonful of vinegar.

TRIPE AND ONIONS ANOTHER WAY.

Put the pieces of tripe into a pan and cover with milk; then bake it till tender, serve it up in a bowl, and some onion sauce made in the same manner as for rabbits, and onion to be put into butter boats. This mode will be found to be the best.

BOILED SWEETBREADS.

Blanch two heart sweetbreads, wash and trim off the pipe, then boil them in milk and water with a little salt for half an hour; drain them dry, and when they are to be served to table put over them some boiling benshamelle with a little parsley chopped very fine in it.

RASPBERRY DUMPLINGS.

Roll out a piece crisp tart paste, lay upon it plenty of raspberry jam, fold it together and cut it into pieces, form them into dumplings, boil them three quarters of an hour; serve them up with a sauce over them made with butter, sugar, and white wine. Let it be of a good thickness.

SWEETBREADS BROILED.

Blanch the sweetbreads till half done, wash and trim off the pipe, then cut them into large slices, season with a small quantity of cayenne pepper and salt, broil them gently over a clear fire till of a nice brown colour, and serve them up very hot, with some cold fresh butter on a plate.

PINE STRAWBERRY FRITTERS.

Make a batter with three ounces of flour, a little white wine, brandy, and grated lemon peel, four whites of eggs well beaten, and two yolks, dip the fruit into the batter separately, and fry them in boiling lard till of a light colour, drain them upon a sieve; then put them upon a dish, sift sugar over, and glaize with a salamander.

CONCLUSION, WITH REMARKS.

All sweets, pastry, shellfish or savoury dishes, either plain or modelled, with fat or butter, or ornaments of any kind, that are served up in second courses or ball suppers, &c. should be very light, airy, and neat; the pastry, likewise, of the best puff paste, well-baked, and rather inclining to a pale colour, which has a very good effect.
